The results of observations at the Alipore Observatory are not rigorously comparable with the registers of former years (at the Park-street Observatory). The barometer is about 8 feet higher at Alipore; and, other things being equal, reads therefore ·003 lower. The diurnal range of temperature is also greater at Alipore, and the mean temperature apparently about 0°·6 higher; and, finally, the thermometer, which furnished the record of temperature at the Surveyor-General's Office during 20 years and upwards, is found to read 0·6 higher than the Kew standard thermometer, which is the standard of reference at the present Observatory.

N. B.—In the monthly abstract for July 1886, read 129·2 hours for 128·2 hours as the total number of hours of bright sunshine during the month.

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph, and from observations made at 6h, 10h, 16h and 22h.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

MEMORANDUM.

The birth and death returns of the principal Municipalities in Bengal (excluding Howrah, from which again no return has been received up to date) for the week ending 21st August 1886 exhibit the following results:—

1. That births were registered in these Municipalities at the rate of 22·0 per 1,000 of population, as opposed to very nearly the same proportion, viz., 21·9 per 1,000, during the preceding week ending 14th August, and deaths at 29·7 per 1,000 against 31·4 per 1,000, indicating a retrogression in the registration of deaths.

2. That the highest birth and death rates were returned by the following Municipalities:—

* A special census of the Europeans in the Darjiling Municipality was recently taken, as the census of this section of the community, taken in February 1881, was not reliable owing to the Europeans being at a minimum in that month. The number of the natives remains as before, as it was not necessary to re-census them. The ratios have consequently been calculated on the revised population under all heads in the above table, except "Age," the ratios under which have been omitted, inasmuch as the census of the Europeans, above alluded to, cannot be employed as a basis of calculation owing to the results of the census under this head not having been recorded under the authorized form of age classification.

GENERAL REMARKS AND EXPLANATIONS.

From the comparative statement given above it will be seen that the results of the month's working represent an increase of 39 per cent. The gross weight lifted being 18,847·23 tons against 13,539·01 tons compared with the corresponding period of 1885 The increases have been in Food-grain, Gunny-bags, Miscellaneous, Railway material, Seeds and Tea, and the decreases in Ale, Ginger, Jute, Piece-goods, Salt, Sugar and Tobacco.

Increases.

Food-grains ... ... 6,295·86 tons

There has been a continued increase under this head for some time past owing to a favorable rice crop in these districts and demand in Calcutta and other districts where crops have failed.

Gunny-bags ... ... 69·10 tons.

This traffic after a protracted depression is again shewing signs of revival.

Miscellaneous ... ... 627 53 tons.

The fluctuations of traffic under this head continue to be influenced by local despatches of timber, bullies and machinery for the Tea districts.

Railway material ... ... 44·20 tons.

Locomotive coal has contributed to this increase.

Seeds ... ... 145 36 tons.

Mustard and linseeds appear to have been in fair request during the month.

Tea ... ... 63·15 tons.

The last month's remarks will hold good with reference to this increase.

Decreases.

Ale ... ... 5·62 tons.

Decrease due to Sonada Beer being largely obtained for the soldiers in Jullapahar.

Ginger ... ... 228 39 tons.

The demand for export has fallen off.

Jute ... ... 325·40 tons.

Decrease due to Calcutta market being dull.

Piece-goods .. .. 68·27 tons.

The increases under this head for some months past will explain the present falling off.

Salt ... ... 852·80 tons.

Decrease is due to rains having set in and carting into the interior being difficult.

Sugar ... ... 49·54 tons.

The explanation given against Salt applies to Sugar also.

Tobacco .. .. 406·96 tons.

A large quantity of this article it seems is being despatched by boat to Calcutta

By order of the High Court,

D. PHILLIPS, Offg. Asst. Registrar, for Registrar.

HIGH COURT, the 8th September 1886.

CALCUTTA SMALL CAUSE COURT.

NOTICE.

IN accordance with suggestions contained in a report to the High Court, signed by Mr. Justice Wilson and Mr. Justice Trevelyan, on their inspection of the Calcutta Small Cause Court, a new system will, on and after the 28th October 1886, be tried for the purpose of revising the list of cases which come daily into the court.

All summons cases will, on the returnable date of the summons, come before one only of the Judges, who will revise the whole list of the court for each day.

He will go through the list, enter "compromises," make decrees in cases in which the defendant does not appear, give fresh summonses in cases where the summons has not been served, grant necessary postponements, ascertain what causes are defended, and dispose of any cases which, in his judgment, can be disposed of summarily.

This would leave the whole time of the other Judges free for the trial of defended causes. The defended causes will be assigned by the Judge revising the list to the lists of the different Judges on the earliest possible days, and will be adjourned by him to those days. The Judge revising the list will have before him the list of each Judge for each day, so far as already filled up, and will arrange that there should always be a sufficient number of cases, say 25 or 30, on each Judge's list. Each of the other Judges will thus have each day his list of defended cases provided for him. When a second summons has been granted, the case will, on the new return day, come again before the Judge who revises the list for that day.

If under this system a Judge should at any time find his list becoming clogged, he will communicate with the revising Judge, and inform the latter that he must have a day or days left clear to enable him to pull up. Thus if on the first of the month a Judge finds that his lists were getting blocked, and that it will take a day to get them clear, he will tell the revising Judge that this is the case. The latter, when revising the lists of the Judge in question, may see that they are already filled, say up to the 9th: he will leave the 10th blank. The Judge who had found himself blocked, knowing that the 10th would be a clear day, will use his discretion: he will either go on as usual up to the 10th, trusting to clear himself on that day, or will adjourn a sufficient number of cases to that day to enable him to take the other cases as nearly as possible on their proper dates.

ADJOURNMENTS.

No "costs of the day" will be allowed on adjournments.

Nor will adjournments be allowed, even by consent, except upon good cause shown.

ORDERS BY THE LIEUT.-GOVERNOR OF BENGAL.

MUNICIPAL AND LOCAL.

[Second Publication.]

NOTIFICATION.

The 2nd September 1886.—The following revised rules for the management of hospitals and dispensaries under Government supervision are published for general information in supersession of the Dispensary Manual issued in September 1881.

R. H. WILSON,
Offg. Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

REVISED DISPENSARY MANUAL.

PRELIMINARY.

IN these rules—

(a) "Local authority" means any body of persons for the time being invested by law with the control and administration of any matters within a specified local area.

CLASSIFICATION.

RULE 1.—Hospitals and dispensaries under Government supervision shall be divided into the following classes :—

CLASS I.—State hospitals and dispensaries, including all institutions maintained by Provincial Funds and under Government management. (The fact that an institution is possessed of endowments, or receives contribution from local funds or private subscriptions, does not remove it from this category so long as Provincial Funds are practically responsible for all the charges connected with it.)

CLASS II.—Local Fund institutions, including all institutions which are placed under the control and administration of local authorities, or guaranteed or maintained by local funds. (The fact that such an institution is aided by private subscriptions, or receives assistance from Government in the shape of part of the salary of the medical officer, grants of medicine, or otherwise, does not remove it from this category so long as its existence is practically dependent upon local funds.)

CLASS III.—Private institutions. This class is subdivided into—

(A)—Institutions maintained entirely at the cost of private individuals or associations or from private endowments. (The fact that Government supplies superior inspection or registers does not remove an institution from this category.)

(B)—Institutions supported by private subscriptions or endowments, but receiving aid from Government or local funds.

CONDITIONS UNDER WHICH GOVERNMENT AID AND SUPERVISION WILL BE GIVEN

RULE 2.—No hospital or dispensary shall be established in Class I, and no aid shall be granted from Provincial revenues to any hospital or dispensary in Class II or Class III, without the previous sanction of Government. No hospital or dispensary shall be established in or removed from Class II, or transferred to this class from Class III, without the previous sanction of the Commissioner. No private institution shall be brought into Class III, or receive supervision or aid from Government, except with the sanction of the Commissioner, and in accordance with these rules. No private institution not included in Class III shall receive aid from Government or local funds. Any institution in Class III may be withdrawn therefrom at any time at the option of the owners or supporters, but shall, on being so withdrawn, cease to receive supervision or aid from Government or local funds.

RULE 3.—Applications for the sanction of the Commissioner under Rule 2 in respect of any hospital or dispensary shall be submitted through the Magistrate of the district concerned. On receipt of such an application, it shall rest with the Commissioner to accept, modify, or reject the proposals which it contains, and to pass such other order as he shall think fit. The Lieutenant-Governor reserves the right to withdraw his sanction, supervision, or aid in the event of a dispensary not continuing to serve adequately the purposes of a bonâ fide public charity, or if its continuance appears otherwise undesirable.

RULE 4.—A guarantee bond, in the form prescribed in Appendix A, must be executed by the intending supporters of an institution in Class III.

RULE 5.—The Managing Committee of every hospital or dispensary under these rules, whether in Class I, Class II, or Class III, shall submit to the Medical Department, through the Civil Surgeon of the district, such reports, returns, and accounts as may be prescribed from time to time. Such reports, returns, and accounts shall be in such forms, and be submitted on such dates, as may be prescribed. All books, registers, and forms which may be necessary for the preparation and submission of such reports, returns, and accounts will be supplied by Government free of cost.

RULE 6.—Every institution which is recognised by Government and brought under these rules is subject to inspection and supervision by the Commissioner of the Division, by the civil authorities of the district, by the Civil Surgeon, by the administrative officers of the Medical Department, and by any other person who may be generally or specially appointed in that behalf. No charge will be made for such inspection or supervision.

RULE 7.—Government aid to a hospital or dispensary will be conditional on the observance of due economy in the management of the dispensary funds. The Inspector-General of Civil Hospitals will bring to the notice of the Commissioner any instance in which he considers that such economy is not observed.

APPOINTMENT, PAY, LEAVE AND PENSION OF MEDICAL OFFICERS.

RULE 8.—The medical officer of every institution in Class I of these rules shall be taken from the Government establishment, and shall be appointed by the Inspector-General of Civil Hospitals.

RULE 9.—The local authority or Managing Committee vested with the control and administration of an institution in Class II, and the Managing Committee of an institution in Class III, shall be entitled appoint the ir own medical officer, subject to the following conditions, viz —

(a) that he be a duly qualified medical man, licensed or certified by a recognised medical college or school, his license or diploma being subject to examination and approval by the Inspector-General of Civil Hospitals;

(b) that he be not a dismissed servant of Government, or disqualified for his duties by age, infirmity, or character; and

(c) that in the event of misconduct, insolvency, or professional incompetence by reason of age or otherwise, being proved against him to the satisfaction of the Medical Department, he be removed from his charge on the requisition of the Inspector-General of Civil Hospitals.

Provided that on the application of the local authority or Managing Committee of any such institution, the services of a Government medical officer may be lent to such institution subject to the rules laid down in this Manual Provided also that no officer of the Government establishment who, on the date when these rules come into force, is holding medical charge of any institution in Class II, shall be removed from his appointment by the local authority, except with the consent of the Inspector-General of Civil Hospitals.

RULE 10.—In the case of a hospital or dispensary situated at the head-quarters of a sub-division, the services of the Government medical officer in charge of the sub-division will, if the local authority or Managing Committee of the institution so desire it, be made available for the charge of the hospital or dispensary in addition to his other duties, on condition that the proprietors or managers of the dispensary undertake to pay him an additional allowance of Rs. 10 a month if he is a Civil Hospital Assistant, or Rs. 20 a month if he is an Assistant Surgeon. It will be open to them, however, to obtain the services of a medical subordinate of the Government establishment of such higher rank as they may desire, on the payment by them of the full amount by which the authorised pay and allowances of such officer may exceed the amount sanctioned by Government for the medical charge of the sub-division

RULE 11.—The Inspector-General of Civil Hospitals may, at any time, for departmental or other reasons, remove or transfer any Government medical subordinate whose services have been lent to an institution in Classes II or III, and may, with the consent of the local authority or Managing Committee of the institution, appoint another medical subordinate to succeed him. In every such case, except as hereinafter provided, the transit pay and travelling allowances both of the officer transferred and of his successor shall be entirely paid by Government.

Provided that if any officer is transferred at the request of the local authority or Managing Committee, the transit pay and travelling allowances both of the officer transferred and of his successor shall be entirely paid by the local authority or Managing Committee concerned.

RULE 12.—The pay to which a Government medical subordinate in substantive charge of a hospital or dispensary is entitled, is the pay of his grade in the public service. In the event of his becoming entitled, on promotion, to a higher salary than he has received, the local authority or Managing Committee of a dispensary in Class II or Class III may at their option either (a) retain his services on payment of the higher salary, or (b) apply for the services of another officer of the Government establishment as provided in Rule 9, or (c) appoint their own medical officer, subject to the conditions prescribed in that rule.

RULE 13.—No allowance in excess of the pay to which he is entitled under Rule 12 shall be granted to any officer of the Government establishment for the charge of a hospital or dispensary in Class II or Class IIIB. An officer of the Government establishment in charge of a hospital or dispensary in Class IIIA shall receive such allowances as may be determined by the Managing Committee of the institution.

RULE 14.—Government medical subordinates appointed to the charge of a hospital or dispensary under these rules will retain their right to pension, but the amount of pension of each officer will be determined by the salary to which he may be entitled by his grade in the Government service, without reference to any additional allowances paid to him by the managers of the hospital or dispensary under the second clause of the last preceding rule.

RULE 15.—Government medical subordinates in charge of hospitals or dispensaries in Classes II and III are entitled to leave under the rules of the Civil Leave Code. All applications for leave shall be submitted through the local authority or Managing Committee and the Civil Surgeon of the district to the Inspector-General of Civil Hospitals, who alone is authorised to grant the leave. The travelling allowances and transit pay of a locum tenens under this rule shall be paid by Government.

The leave pay of an officer proceeding on privilege leave will be borne by the local authority or Managing Committee of the dispensary. In all other cases the leave pay of the officer will be paid by Government.

RULE 16.—Medical officers in charge of hospitals or dispensaries in Class II or Class III, who are not in Government service, shall be entitled to such leave as the local authority or Managing Committee may grant; provided that in the case of an institution in Class II, if rules for the grant of leave have been framed by the local authority concerned, leave shall only be granted in accordance with such rules. The local authority or Managing Committee shall provide for any expenditure that may be incurred on account of the pay of the medical officer while on leave, and the pay and travelling allowances, if any, of his locum tenens.

RULE 17.—The salaries or part salaries of Government medical subordinates, which are due from hospitals or dispensaries, must be paid for each month on or before the 15th day of the following month. If payment is not made as above, the Magistrate of the district is authorised to advance the amount due, and will be responsible for its prompt recovery.

MEDICAL STORES.

RULE 18.—Hospitals and dispensaries which pay for their own medicines and instruments shall have the option of obtaining them either from the Government stores or from private vendors approved by the Civil Surgeon; provided that a dispensary previously supplied by private vendors cannot indent on the Government stores without the sanction of the Inspector-General of Civil Hospitals. In either case the indents of the medical officer must be checked by the Civil Surgeon.

RULE 19.—Medical stores will be supplied to dispensaries from the Government Medical Store Department at cost price;* but the supply of medicines will ordinarily be confined to the articles specified in the list given in Appendix E, and it will be in the discretion of the Inspector-General of Civil Hospitals to sanction or disallow any demand.

* Cost price includes the percentage fixed from time to time by Government to cover expenditure on supervision and other charges of the Medical Store Department.

RULE 20.—Medical stores, if required from the Medical Store Department, must be indented for annually, and the annual indent must be submitted on the date fixed by the Civil Surgeon to enable him to submit the combined indent for his district on the date appointed by Government. Indents delayed beyond the date fixed will not be passed for supply from the Government stores.

RULE 21.—Payments due to the Medical Store Department for medical stores must be made within a month of the receipt of the account at the hospital or dispensary.

MANAGEMENT AND SUPERVISION.

RULE 22.—The management of hospitals and dispensaries under these rules shall be vested as follows:—

If the institution is in—

(b) Class II—in the local authority, or any Managing Committee appointed by it. Such Committee may include persons who are not members of the local authority, and shall exercise its powers subject to the directions of the local authority by whom it was appointed.

(c) Class III—in a manager or Managing Committee to be appointed by the Commissioner; provided that no Committee shall be appointed for any institution in Class IIIA, unless the proprietors or chief supporters apply for such appointment.

RULE 23.—When Managing Committees are appointed, in cases (b) and (c) of Rule 22, the names of the members shall be published by the Commissioner in the Calcutta Gazette. The Committee shall elect two of their number to be Chairman and Vice-Chairman respectively, and may also elect another of their number as Secretary.

RULE 24.—The Managing Committee shall meet at least once a quarter, and shall scrutinize the accounts and enquire into all matters affecting the welfare of the institution. They shall examine and pass the monthly accounts, and shall keep a minute-book in which their proceedings shall be recorded.

RULE 25.—The Managing Committee shall be responsible for the management of the funds of the institution. It shall be their duty to see that the guaranteed and promised subscriptions are regularly collected. After defraying the current expenses of the institution, the balance, if any, of the donations and subscriptions realised by the Committee shall be deposited by them in the Post Office Savings Bank. When the amount at credit of the dispensary is Rs. 3,000, the Comptroller-General should ordinarily be asked to invest the whole or a part of it in Government securities. No other mode of investment will be allowed without the previous sanction of Government.

RULE 26.—The Secretary shall keep the accounts of all funded and other property belonging to the institution. He shall receive from the medical officer in charge a monthly account of the receipts and disbursements, and shall examine and countersign all the establishment pay and contingent bills of the institution. He shall, at the end of each month, prepare a statement of the accounts, which he shall submit to the Committee at their next meeting.

RULE 27.—In the case of institutions in Class II, all subscriptions, donations, and the interest on endowments shall be credited to the local fund, but a separate account of dispensary receipts and expenditure shall be kept. The endowments and other invested funds of such institutions shall be held in the custody of the Comptroller-General apart from the assets of the local fund. The securities shall not be sold, and these invested funds shall not be appropriated or used in any way without the sanction of Government.

RULE 28.—The Civil Surgeon shall be the visiting Superintendent of every hospital and dispensary in his district which is classified under these rules.

RULE 29.—The Superintendent shall scrutinize the expenditure and accounts of every hospital or dispensary in his district, and shall call the attention of the Managing Committee to any irregularity or other circumstance which in his opinion deserves notice.

The Managing Committee shall be bound to consider any communication from the Superintendent, to afford him full information as to the conduct of the medical officer in charge, and all other matters affecting the welfare of the sick and the management of the institution.

If any difference of opinion arises between the Superintendent and the Managing Committee regarding any non-professional matter affecting the management of the institution, a reference shall be made through the Magistrate to the Commissioner of the Division, and the decision of the Commissioner shall be final.

RULE 30.—The Superintendent shall visit each dispensary in his district not less than twice annually, and shall prepare and submit promptly to the Inspector-General of Civil Hospitals inspection reports in Form No. XVI given in Appendix B.

RULE 31.—The Superintendent shall furnish an annual report of the working of the hospitals and dispensaries in his district to the Inspector-General of Civil Hospitals, according to the scheme given in Appendix C, and annual returns in accordance with the forms annexed.

RULE 32.—The Managing Committee of every hospital or dispensary shall cause to be kept at the institution—

(a) A record of the work done, showing day by day the number of patients treated, the affections for which they were treated, and, in important cases, some account of the symptoms; the treatment, progress, and the result.

These shall be written up daily by the medical officer in charge, and shall be open at all times to the inspection of inspecting officers.

The medical officer shall write up all other books and records prescribed under these rules or otherwise; and in any case in which this is not done, the reasons should be stated in the inspection report of the Superintendent.

RULE 33.—An extract from the proceedings of each meeting of the Managing Committee shall be promptly forwarded to the Superintendent, who may, if he thinks fit, and shall if the Managing Committtee so desire, submit it with his remarks to the Inspector-General of Civil Hospitals.

RULE 34.—A Visitors' book shall be kept in every hospital and dispensary, in which will be recorded the remarks of visitors. A copy of these remarks shall be forwarded, on the day of entry, to the Superintendent, who will, if necessary, transmit it with his remarks to the Inspector-General of Civil Hospitals within three days of its receipt in his office.

GENERAL.

RULE 35.—The medical officer in charge of a hospital or dispensary is responsible for the proper treatment of the sick, and this duty shall not on any account be delegated to a subordinate; he is also responsible for all matters connected with the comfort and well-being of the patients, and for the proper working of the dispensary establishment.

RULE 36.—The Managing Committee shall prescribe the hours of attendance (which shall not be less than four hours in the morning and two hours in the afternoon) within which the medical officer must be present at the dispensary. He must also give attention to urgent cases at other hours.

The hours of attendance shall be clearly stated in a notice posted in some conspicuous part of the dispensary.

RULE 37.—Any person attending at a charitable dispensary is entitled to receive advice free of charge; but the medical officer may exercise his discretion in refusing to supply medicines in ordinary cases where the person is not poor. Medicines should never be refused to any urgent or dangerous case attending the dispensary. The medical officer refusing to give medicines gratis shall promptly report the facts to the Superintendent and the Managing Committee

RULE 38.—No medicines may be issued from the dispensary stock to any one who does not receive treatment at the dispensary either as an in-door or out-door patient.

RULE 39.—In no case shall any money payment be received from any person attending the dispensary. Provided that where special accommodation has been provided for paying patients, fees shall be levied according to a scale previously sanctioned in that behalf by the Managing Committee.

RULE 40.—The medical officer in charge of a dispensary has the privilege of engaging in private practice, provided it does not interfere with his attendance at the dispensary during the hours prescribed under Rule 36, or in any other way with his dispensary work. The Managing Committee may, with the sanction of the Superintendent, make rules for the attendance, gratuitously or otherwise, of the medical officer on persons in their own homes who are unable by reason of sickness to attend the dispensary.

Provided that a medical officer who is on the Government establishment is bound to attend gratuitously all persons who, under the orders of Government, are entitled to such gratuitous attendance at their own homes.

RULE 41.—No medical officer in charge of a hospital or dispensary shall have any interest in a private dispensary or druggist's shop.

RULE 42.—When accommodation is provided for the medical officer in or near the dispensary, he must live in the residence provided for him.

RULE 43.—In dispensaries in which there are house-patients, a bed-head ticket in the prescribed form shall be hung over the bed of each in-patient.

RULE 44.—Medicines and instruments shall be kept under lock and key, except small quantities of the articles in daily use during the attendance of patients.

RULE 45.—Poisons must be kept under separate lock and key.

RULE 46.—No building for the location of a dispensary or hospital in Class II, and no extension to such building, shall be constructed by the local authority until the plan and estimate of such building or extension shall have been approved by the Civil Surgeon, or if the work is estimated to cost more than Rs. 1,000, by the Inspector-General of Civil Hospitals.

RULE 47.—In the case of institutions in Class II or Class III, repairs to the dispensary buildings shall be executed by, and be chargeable to, the local authority or Managing Committee as the case may be.

RULE 48.—Menial servants will be appointed and discharged by the Managing Committee of the institution. Compounders and dressers will also be appointed and be liable to removal by the Managing Committee, subject to the approval of the Superintendent.

RULE 49.—Dispensary servants must not be employed in the private service of the medical officer.

RULE 50.—The employment of apprentices is prohibited.

BOOKS AND FORMS.

RULE 51.—The following books and forms are required to be kept up at hospitals and dispensaries brought under these rules:—

(1)—Diary and register of in-door patient (Appendix B, form I).

In large hospitals it may also be convenient to keep a separate register of major operations: this should be kept in the following form:—

Register of Major operations.

Number.		Nature of operation.	Date of operation.	Result and date.				Cause of death.	Operator's name and rank.
Serial.	In hospital register.			Cured.	Relieved.	Discharged otherwise.	Died.

(2)—Bed-head ticket (form II). This should be written up daily and be filed, so as to preserve a concise history of the case and treatment. It is advisable also to keep a case-book for recording all special or important cases.

(5)—Monthly return of in and out-patients (form V). This should be prepared and submitted to the Civil Surgeon soon after the close of the month, and a copy should be kept in a book for the more easy and accurate preparation of the annual return.

(6)—A season register of vaccination for use in dispensaries to which vaccinators are attached. The form can be obtained from the Superintendent.

(7)—Annual return and report of vaccination. In duplicate; one copy to be filed, and the other to be submitted to the Superintendent, who will draw up a "general" return and report (in similar form) of the operations performed in all the dispensaries under his superintendence, and submit them, through the prescribed channel, to the office of the Sanitary Commissioner, the individual dispensary returns being filed in his own office.

(8)—Monthly bills in detail of establishment, diet, and contingencies (form VI) to be prepared by the medical officer in charge, and examined and countersigned by the Secretary for payment. These bills are then to be sent to the committee or district officer, as the case may be, for payment. In all cases in which there is a grant from Government for establishment, diet or any other charge, the bills of such expenditure are to be kept separate from the private accounts of the charity.

(10)—A monthly statement of accounts (form VII, Parts I and II) to be submitted in duplicate monthly to the Superintendent, who will send one copy to the Magistrate, and keep one for record. A copy of this is to be kept in the bill-book (9), and laid before the committee at their monthly meetings. This rule applies only to dispensaries in classes II and III.

(11)—A daily account or cash-book, showing actual receipts and expenditure in detail. This is to be kept at the dispensary, and the account totalled up at the end of each month.

(12)—A diet-book (in form VIII). This is required only in dispensaries in which there are in-patients.

(13)—Monthly return of medical subordinates and hospital servants, including acquittance roll (form IX), to be sent monthly to the Superintendent.

(14)—A subscription and donation book. This should be in form X, and should be kept up by the Secretary.

(15)—A nominal disposition roll of subordinate medical officers, Assistant Surgeons, and Civil Hospital Assistants (form XI) to be submitted to the Inspector-General of Civil Hospitals quarterly. This is to be prepared by the Civil Surgeon, and to include all medical subordinates serving under him. The report regarding the qualifications of the medical officers is to be treated as confidental, and is not to be filed in the Civil Surgeon's office.

(16)—Annual indent for European medicines and instruments (form XII), to be prepared on the printed form and submitted in duplicate.

(17)—Annual indent for forms to be prepared on the printed form (form XIII), and to be submitted in quadruplicate.

(18)—Annual return (form XIV). The annual return is to be sent through superintendents direct to the Inspector-General of Civil Hospitals. The summary report of the Civil Surgeon should be prepared in accordance with the scheme laid down in Appendix C, and be submitted through the Civil authorities. The medical officer of a dispensary is expected to draw up his report in English, but when he is unable to do so, he should prepare it in the vernacular, and it must be translated in the office of the Superintendent.

(23)—A blank book for records of post-mortem examinations, medico-legal or otherwise, and for keeping detailed records of wounds or other police cases. Instead of a book being kept up, a copy of form No. XVIII, which is to be used when despatching viscera to the Chemical Examiner, may be filed as a record of medico-legal post-mortem examinations.

DIRECTIONS AND EXPLANATIONS.

Col. 2.—The yearly numbers commence with the first new case admitted in the year and proceed regularly through the 12 months, the last number thus recording the number of admissions in the year and corresponding with the total of Col. 12.

N B.—The monthly aggregate of the daily total numbers treated divided by the number of days in the month gives the "averaged daily sick" required for the monthly Return.

Col. 3.—All the cases remaining at the end of a year are to be entered on the following 1st January by the previous year's yearly number and monthly date. Such cases and cases remaining from day to day, will only re-appear on the date on which their result is recorded. Besides being recorded on the day of its occurrence the result should also be noted (in red ink or in brackets) opposite the original entry.

Col. 5.—Hindoo, H.; Mussulman, M.; European, En., Eurasian, En., Native Christian, N. C.; and other Classes, O. C.

Col. 6.—Male, M; Female, F.; Children to be recorded as such when under 10 years old.

Col. 9.—Diseases, injuries, operations, &c., are only to be denominated by the name and number specified in the official 'Nomenclature,' and no name is ever to be used that does not appear in that book.

If variety or sub-division is to be recorded, the letter or figure in the book must follow the number of the main disease.

In the column headed "otherwise" a reference number and foot-note are to be used to indicate the mode of discharge—unrelieved, absconded, removed by friends, &c.

When Police cases are admitted into hospital, they should be distinguished by the letter P being placed after the yearly number, as 5 P on the 2nd January.

IN paragraph 7 of the Government order No. 1325—29T—M, dated the 1st July last, it was stated that the Lieutenant Governor proposed to circulate to the District Boards, when constituted under the Local Self-Government Act, a specimen set of rules which should serve as a convenient model in respect of form, wording and subject-matter for the rules for the conduct of business to be made by the Boards under section 32 of the Act. The model rules have now been framed, and I am directed to forward* copies of them for circulation to the District Boards in your Division and for record in your office. It should be clearly explained to the Boards that these rules are intended to serve only as a model for their guidance, and that they are not in any way bound to adopt any rule or rules which they may deem unsuited to the conditions of their districts.

A Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to Native Passenger Ships.

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate and amend the law relating to native passenger ships; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

PRELIMINARY.

1. This Act may be called the Native Passenger Ships Act, 1886. Short title.

[Act VIII, 1876, s. 2.] Extent and application. 2. (1) It extends to the whole of British India, and applies—

(a) to all subjects of Her Majesty within the dominions of Princes and States in India in alliance with Her Majesty;

(b) to all native Indian subjects of Her Majesty without and beyond British India; and,

(c) subject to the exceptions mentioned in sub-section (2), to vessels carrying more than thirty passengers being natives of Asia or Africa.

(2) But it does not apply—

(i) to any ship-of-war or transport belonging to, or in the service of, Her Majesty, or

(ii) to any ship-of-war belonging to any Foreign Prince or State, or

(iii) to any sailing-vessel not carrying as passengers more than thirty natives of Asia or Africa, or

(iv) to any steamer not carrying as passengers more than sixty such natives, or

(v) to any sailing-vessel or steamer not intended to convey passengers to or from any port in British India:

Provided, with respect to clauses (iii) and (iv) of this sub-section, that the Local Government may, with the previous sanction of the Governor-General in Council, declare all or any of the provisions of this Act to apply to sailing-vessels, or any class of sailing-vessels, carrying as passengers more than fifteen natives of Asia or Africa, and to steamers, or any class of steamers, carrying as passengers more than thirty such natives. [New.]

[Act VIII, 1876, s. 3.] Commencement. 3. This Act shall come into force on such day as the Governor-General in Council, by notification in the Gazette of India appoints.

[Act VIII, 1876, s. 4.] Repeal. 4. (1) On and from that day the enactments mentioned in the schedule to this Act shall be repealed to the extent specified in the third column thereof.

(2) But all ports, places and officers appointed, rules, declarations and exemptions made, bonds executed, directions given and certificates granted under any of those enactments shall, so far as may be, be deemed to be respectively appointed, made, executed, given and granted under this Act; and

(3) Any enactment or document referring to any enactment hereby repealed shall be construed to refer to this Act or to the corresponding portion thereof.

[Act VIII, 1876, s. 5.] Definitions. 5. In this Act, unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context,—

(1) "Magistrate" means a person exercising powers not inferior to those of a Magistrate of the second class, and includes a Justice of the Peace and, at the Port of Aden, the Resident or an Assistant Resident:

(2) "ship" includes every description of vessel used in navigation not propelled by oars:

(3) "master" includes every person (other than a pilot) having command or charge of a ship:

(4) "passenger" means a person above the age of twelve years, or two persons between the ages of one year and twelve years; but it does not include either a person in attendance on another person who is not a native of Asia or Africa, or a child under one year of age:

(5) "voyage" means the whole distance between the ship's port of departure and her final port of arrival:

(6) "long voyage" means any voyage during which the ship performing it will in ordinary circumstances be one hundred and twenty hours or upwards continuously out of port:

(7) "short voyage" means any voyage during which the ship performing it will not in ordinary circumstances be one hundred and twenty hours continuously out of port:

Illustration.

A ship starts from port A, and is destined finally to arrive at port B, between which ports the ordinary distance is ten days: but she is to touch at four intermediate ports, no one of which is in ordinary circumstances more than five days from the next one. This is a short voyage.

(8) "Chief Officer of Customs" means the executive officer of highest rank in the Department of Customs in any port to which this Act applies.

[Act VIII, 1876, s. 6.]

Ships to sail only from ports appointed by the Government.

6. (1) A ship carrying passengers shall not depart or proceed from, or discharge passengers at, any port or place within British India other than a port or place appointed in this behalf by the Local Government.

(2) After a ship has departed or proceeded upon a voyage from a port or place so appointed, a person shall not be received on board as a passenger except at some other port or place so appointed.

[Act VIII, 1876, s. 7.]

Master to give notice of day of sailing.

7. (1) The master, owner or agent of a ship so departing or proceeding shall give notice to an officer authorised in this behalf by the Local Government that the ship is to carry native passengers, and of her destination, and of the proposed time of sailing.

[Act VIII, 1876, s. 8.]

Power to enter and inspect ship.

8. After receiving the notice, the officer aforesaid, or a person authorized by him, shall be at liberty at all times to enter and inspect the ship and the fittings, provisions and stores therein.

[Act VIII, 1876, s. 9.]

Ship not to sail without two certificates.

9. (1) A ship intended to carry passengers shall not commence a voyage from a port or place appointed under this Act, unless the master holds two certificates to the effect mentioned in the two next following sections.

(2) The officer of the Government whose duty it is to grant a port-clearance for the ship shall not grant it unless the master holds those certificates.

[Act VIII, 1876, s. 10.]

Contents of certificate A.

10. The first of the certificates (hereinafter called "certificate A") shall state that the ship is seaworthy and properly equipped, fitted and ventilated, and the number of passengers which she is capable of carrying.

[Act VIII, 1876, s. 11.]

Contents of certificate B.

11. The second of the certificates (hereinafter called "certificate B") shall state—

(a) the voyage which the ship is to make and the intermediate ports, if any, at which she is to touch;

(b) that she has the proper complement of officers and seamen;

(c) that provisions, fuel and pure water, over and above what is necessary for the crew, and the other things, if any, prescribed for the ship by the rules under this Act, have been placed on board, of the quality prescribed by the rules, properly packed, and sufficient to supply the passengers on board during the voyage which the ship is to make (including such detention in quarantine as may be probable), according to the scale for the time being prescribed by those rules;

(d) that the master holds certificate A;

(e) if the ship is to make a short voyage in a season of foul weather, and to carry upper-deck passengers, that she is furnished with substantial bulwarks and a double awning or with other sufficient protection against the weather;

(f) if she is to sail to any port in the Red Sea, that she is propelled principally by steam and, if she is to carry more than one hundred passengers being natives of Asia or Africa, that she has on board a medical officer licensed in accordance with the rules under this Act; and [Act XVII, 1883, s. 2.]

(g) such other particulars, if any, as may be prescribed by those rules.

[Act VIII, 1876, s. 12.]

Grant of certificates.

12. The person by whom certificate A and certificate B are to be granted shall be the officer referred to in section 7.

[Act VIII, 1876, s. 13.]

Substitute for certificate A.

13. Where the master of a ship produces to that officer either of the following certificates, namely—

(a) a valid certificate granted by the Board of Trade or by a British Colonial Government, or

(b) a certificate granted under the authority of a British Indian Government on a date not more than one year before the proposed day of sailing and in force and applicable to the voyage on which the ship is to proceed or the service on which she is about to be employed, [Act VII, 1884, s. 41.]

the officer may, if the particulars required by section 10 are certified thereby, take the certificate as evidence of those particulars, and it shall then be deemed to be a certificate A for the purposes of this Act.

Survey of ship.

14. (1) After receiving the notice required by section 7, the officer aforesaid may, if he thinks fit, cause the ship to be surveyed at the expense of the master or owner by competent surveyors, who shall report to him whether the ship is, in their opinion, seaworthy and properly equipped, fitted and ventilated for the voyage which she is to make:

Provided that he shall not cause a ship holding a certificate mentioned in section 13, clause (a) or clause (b), to be surveyed unless, by reason of the ship having met with damage or having undergone alterations, or on other reasonable ground, he considers it likely that she may be found unseaworthy or not properly equipped, fitted or ventilated for the voyage.

(2) If the officer aforesaid causes a survey to be made of a ship holding any such certificate, and the surveyors report that the ship is seaworthy and properly equipped, fitted and ventilated for the voyage, and that there was no reasonable ground why the officer aforesaid should have thought it likely that she would be found unseaworthy, or not properly equipped, fitted or ventilated for the voyage, the expense of the survey shall be paid by the Local Government.

Discretion as to grant of certificate.

15. (1) The officer authorized to grant a certificate under this Act in respect of a ship shall not grant it unless he is satisfied that she has not on board any cargo likely from its quality, quantity or mode of stowage to prejudice the health or safety of the passengers.

(2) But save as aforesaid, and subject to the provisions of sub-section (3), it shall be in the discretion of the officer aforesaid to grant or withhold a certificate under this Act.

[Act VIII, 1876, s. 16.] (3) In the exercise of that discretion that officer shall be subject to the control of the Local Government, and of any intermediate authority which that Government appoints in this behalf.

16. The master or owner shall post up in a conspicuous part of the ship, so as to be visible to persons on board thereof, a copy of each of the certificates granted under this Act in respect of the ship, and shall keep those copies so posted up in that part during the voyage.

17. If an officer appointed in this behalf by the Local Government is satisfied that a passenger has brought on board a ship for his own use provisions of the quality and in the quantity for the time being prescribed by the rules under this Act, the requirements of this Act respecting the supply of provisions for passengers shall not, except as to the supply of water, apply so far as regards the supply of provisions for that passenger.

19. If a ship performing a short voyage takes additional passengers on board at an intermediate port or place, the master shall obtain a supplementary certificate from the proper officer at that port, stating—

(a) the number of passengers so taken on board; and

(b) that provisions, fuel and pure water, over and above what is necessary for the crew, and the other things, if any, prescribed for the ship by the rules under this Act, have been placed on board, of the quality prescribed by the rules, properly packed, and sufficient to supply the passengers on board during the voyage which the ship is to make (including such detention in quarantine as may be probable), according to the scale for the time being prescribed by those rules:

Provided that, if the certificate B held by the master of the ship states that provisions, fuel and pure water, over and above what is necessary for the crew, and the other things, if any, prescribed for her by the rules under this Act, have been placed on board, of the quality prescribed by the rules, properly packed, and sufficient to supply the full number of passengers which she is capable of carrying, the master shall not be bound to obtain any such supplementary certificate.

SCHEDULE.

ENACTMENTS REPEALED.

(See section 4.)

Number and year.	Title.	Extent of repeal.
VIII of 1876	Native Passenger Ships Act, 1876.	The whole.
XVII of 1883	Native Passenger Ships Act, 1883.	The whole.
VII of 1884	Indian Steamships Act, 1884.	Section 41.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The law relating to native passenger ships is contained in three enactments, namely, the Native Passenger Ships Act, VIII of 1876, and the amending Acts, XVII of 1883 and VII of 1884. Further amendments having now become necessary, the opportunity has been taken to consolidate the law in a single measure.

2. The amendments are not numerous and will be noticed in the order in which they occur in the Bill—

(a) Section 2.—The primary object of the proviso to sub-section (2) of this section is to confer on the Government of Bombay the power of having certain small vessels engaged in the pilgrim-trade between Western India and the Hedjaz examined with a view to ascertaining whether or not they are seaworthy.

(b) Section 11, clause (c).—The corresponding section of the Act of 1876 requires certificate B to state that provisions, fuel and pure water sufficient for the voyage have been placed on board. It is now proposed to require the certificate to state that the supply is sufficient not only for the voyage but for any probable period of detention in quarantine. On one occasion at least the Government has had to undertake the maintenance of a shipload of pilgrims whose private stock of provisions had become exhausted.

(c) Section 41.—Cases have occurred in which pilgrims who had engaged their passages on the understanding that they would proceed direct to the Hedjaz have been taken on long coasting voyages. The deception thus practised has caused great hardship, pilgrims very frequently taking their own provisions with them (section 18, Act VIII, 1876) and very rarely taking more than is absolutely necessary for their support on the voyage which they believe themselves to have undertaken.

(d) Section 53, sub-section (1), clause (g).—It is proposed, following section 21 of the English Merchant Shipping Act, 1876, to empower the Governor-General in Council to require native passenger ships to be provided with means for making signals of distress and with life-saving apparatus.

(e) Section 53, sub-section (2).—This sub-section is designed to meet a suggestion made by Mr. T. M. Cook, of the firm of Messrs. Thomas Cook & Son, that the embarkation of pilgrims in the "Roads" at Bombay during the monsoon should be forbidden, and that pilgrim-carrying ships should be required to go into dock for the purpose of receiving their passengers during that season.

(f) Section 54.—This section requires drafts of any rules which it is proposed to make under the Act to be published for the information of the public before the rules are made.

PART II.

SUPPLEMENTAL PROVISIONS.

[cf 13 & 14 Vic., c. 21, s. 5, and Law Rep. 4 Q B 338]

Amendment of section 3 (1), Act I, 1868

9. The words "wholly or partially" shall be inserted before the word "repealed" in clause (1) of section 3 of the General Clauses Act, 1868, and shall be deemed to have been there from the commencement of that Act. I of 1868.

[I. L. R. 3 All. 214.]

Partial application of this Act to Act III, 1880

10 In the Cantonments Act, 1880, the word "soldier" shall not include a warrant-officer but shall otherwise have the meaning assigned to it by clause (13) of section 3 of this Act. III of 1880.

Application of this Act and Act I, 1868, to Regulations under 33 Vic., c. 3, s. 1.

11. This Act and the General Clauses Act, 1868, shall apply to all Regulations which may receive the assent of the Governor-General under the Statute 33 Victoria, chapter 3, section 1, after the commencement of this Act. I of 1868.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THIS Bill is supplementary to the General Clauses Act, 1868, and is designed, as stated in the preamble, to further shorten the language used in Acts of the Governor-General in Council.

2. In section 3 there is nothing which calls for remark. The definitions in the section will materially shorten the defining clauses of Acts to be hereafter passed.

3. Section 4 is a repetition of a clause very generally employed by the Council of the Governor-General with the object of enabling the executive authorities, in the interval between the passing of an Act and its coming into force, to make preparations for bringing the Act into full operation as soon as it is legally possible to do so.

4. The English rule that a power given to the Crown by statute, having been once exercised, is exhausted and cannot be exercised again, has been applied by Indian Courts to powers conferred by the Indian legislature on the Governor-General in Council and Local Governments. Section 5 of the Bill is intended to remove the inconvenience resulting from the application of that rule.

5. Provisions in the terms of section 6 have been inserted in no fewer than eighteen Acts during the last three or four years and form part of several pending Bills. Their object is to give persons likely to be affected by statutory rules an opportunity, before the rules are made, of making objections and suggestions with respect to any matter which it is proposed to insert in them.

6. Section 7 is taken from the English Municipal Corporations Act, 1882, and is much needed in this country in the case of acts and proceedings to which the Indian Limitation Act, 1877, does not apply.

7. Section 8 is a repetition of a section which is very frequently inserted in Acts of the Governor-General in Council.

8. Clause (l) of section 3 of the General Clauses Act, 1868, has always been construed by the legislature as though the words "wholly or partially" were inserted before the word "repealed." It is proposed by section 9 of the Bill to insert those words in the clause and to require them to be deemed to have been there since the Act of 1868 was passed.

9. Difficulty has been experienced by some Courts in interpreting the word "soldier" in section 14 of the Cantonments Act, III of 1880. With the judgment of the High Court for the North-Western Provinces at I. L. R. 3 All. 214, to the effect that a warrant-officer is not a soldier within that section, the military authorities are content; but they consider it desirable that the word should have a wider meaning than has recently been assigned to it in Oudh, where the Judicial Commissioner has held a private in an European regiment, employed as a telegraph-signaller, not to be a soldier within the meaning of the section.

10. Section 11 of the Bill applies the General Clauses Act, 1868, and the proposed General Clauses Act, 1886, to Regulations to be hereafter made under the Statute 33 Vic., chapter 3.

The 1st September, 1886.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE object of this Bill is to correct certain minor defects in the Code of Civil Procedure which have been brought to the notice of the Government of India during the four years which have elapsed since the Code was passed, and to amend that portion of the Indian Limitation Act, 1877, which relates to Chapter XXI of the Code.

The several amendments which it is proposed to make in the Code are noticed in the following remarks in the order in which they occur in the Bill :—

Section 3.—The second paragraph of section 8 of the Code, which, as the second paragraph of section 8 of Act X of 1877, was repealed by the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act, XV of 1882, was unintentionally reproduced in Act XIV of 1882. Its place has been taken by section 23 and the second schedule of the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act.

Section 4.—The Explanation which it is proposed to add to section 17 of the Code is suggested by the cases reported at I. L. R. 4 All. 423 and 5 All. 277.

Section 5.—The addition proposed by this section to be made to section 27 of the Code has been suggested by Mr. Justice Plowden of the Punjab Chief Court with reference to the remark of Pontifex J. at I. L. R. 6 Cal. 376.

Section 6.—In proposing to amend section 53 of the Code in the manner set forth in this section, the Government of India has followed the almost unanimous advice of the authorities whom it consulted in its letter Nos. 22-27, dated the 5th January, 1886.

Section 7.—In April, 1882, the Governor-General in Council published a resolution directing that postage-charges on all processes, notices and such other documents as are issued from any Court, and are required to be transmitted by post, should in future be paid by means of service postage-stamps without any additional charge being levied from the parties at whose instance the documents are issued. This resolution practically superseded the section of the Code which it is now proposed to repeal.

Section 8.—The addition to section 137 of the Code has been suggested by Bábú Brajendra Coomar Seal, the District Judge of Bankoora, on the ground of the difficulty which occurs in obtaining affidavits where the applicant under the section is a pardánashin lady.

Section 9.—The object of the amendments proposed to be made in section 141 of the Code is to remove the inconvenience caused to both public officers and private persons by the detention of their records in Civil Courts. The detention of the records of a village-accountant may bring his work to a standstill, and the Hon'ble Mr. Gibbon stated to the Select Committee on the Bengal Tenancy Bill that the inconvenience is quite as great in the case of private as of public records.

Section 10.—The addition to section 216 removes the doubt expressed in the case reported at I. L. R. 7 All. 284.

Section 11.—The circumstances which have suggested clause (a) of the proposed proviso to section 245 of the Code have been described in the Statement of Objects and Reasons of the Debtors Bill. If the clause becomes part of the Code, the Courts will be competent to require the property of a judgment-debtor to be proceeded against before proceedings are taken against his person.

Section 12.—As clause (h) of section 266 is at present drawn, half the salary of a public officer or railway servant in receipt of a monthly salary of twenty-one rupees may be attached. This was not the intention of the legislature.

The primary object of the additional clause (m) which it is proposed to insert in the section is to empower the Council of the Governor of Bombay to proceed with a Bill to declare and amend the law relating to toda girás allowances.

Section 13.—This section has been introduced at the suggestion of the Advocate General of Bombay, its object being to abolish, as regards the seizure of moveable property, the privilege conferred on debtors by the fourth resolution in Semayne's case (Smith's Leading Cases, Vol. I). At present that privilege operates mainly to enable debtors to avoid or delay payment of their just debts.

Section 14.—The necessity for the first of the proposed additions to section 320 of the Code is shown by the Full Bench judgment of the High Court for the North-Western Provinces at I. L. R. 5 All. 314. As regards the second addition, it appears to the Government of India that, if the Collector is to act effectively under section 320 and the following sections of the Code, he ought to be subject to the control of the Civil Court only to the extent expressly provided by the Code, being as to the rest subject only to the control of the higher revenue-authorities.

Section 15.—The addition to section 341 has been proposed by the High Court and Government of Madras with reference to cases which have recently occurred in Southern India. In one of these cases the debtor committed to prison was suffering from leprosy in an advanced form, and in the other the prisoner was suffering from illness so serious as in the opinion of the medical officer to render it necessary that he should be immediately released from confinement.

Section 16.—The object of sub-sections (1) to (7) is to assimilate practice under Chapter XX of the Code to that to be prescribed by the proposed Indian Bankruptcy Act.

Sub-section (8) is designed to extend the jurisdiction of subordinate Courts in matters of insolvency. Most cases under Chapter XX are of little importance and may properly be disposed of by munsifs. Where any considerable sum is involved, the District Judge, who will have concurrent jurisdiction, can transfer the case to his own Court.

Sections 17 and 37.—The amendments proposed to be made in Chapter XXI of the Code and in the second schedule to the Indian Limitation Act, 1877, have their origin in the complaints of the hardship caused by the rules of limitation required by that Chapter and schedule to be observed in the substitution of legal representatives in the place of deceased parties to suits and appeals. With respect to these portions of the Code and Limitation Act, Mr. Rattigan, the Government Advocate of the Panjab, by whom the form of the amendments has been suggested, has recorded the following remarks:—

"Considerable hardship has been experienced in the Panjab in the working of those sections of the Civil Procedure Code which deal with the procedure to be followed in the case of the death of a plaintiff or defendant. It is of course perfectly correct and desirable that in the case of the death of one of the litigant parties, where the right to sue or be sued still survives, his legal representatives should be brought on the record, for it is clear that without such a process the suit could not validly proceed. But the hardship consists in requiring the legal representatives to apply for the above purpose within a comparatively short period after the death of the deceased plaintiff or defendant. In the Panjab it frequently happens in landsuits that fifty or a hundred persons are obliged, owing to community of interests, to sue or be sued in the one suit. Now, when such a suit comes up eventually to the Chief Court, a date for hearing is fixed which is generally not less than a year, and, at present, owing to the state of the work in the Court, is not infrequently eighteen months from the date of filing the appeal. Within this period it often happens that one or more of the litigants is or are carried off by death from disease or violence; the representatives of the deceased, or the appellants, being ignorant agriculturists and not knowing the requirements of the law, take no action to put the representatives on the record, and thus, when the appeal finally comes on for hearing, a pleader on the opposite side takes the objection that no application has been made within the prescribed period, and, this being ascertained to be the fact, the appeal abates, and the unfortunate appellants find themselves deprived of all remedy simply in consequence of a harsh limitation law of which they had no knowledge. It is true that sections 368 and 371 allow the Court to extend the period if the plaintiff (or appellant-plaintiff) adduces sufficient cause for not making the required application within the prescribed period. But in nine cases out of ten of the kind I refer to the only cause assignable is ignorance of the requirements of the law—and this of course cannot be deemed to be 'sufficient' within the meaning of the section. So that the law as it stands at present works considerable hardship, and the hardship is irremediable.

"The question therefore arises, whether it is really necessary to prescribe a hard-and-fast period of limitation within which alone an application to put the legal representatives of a deceased plaintiff or defendant on the record can be entertained.

"For my own part I cannot see that there is any such necessity. If I remember rightly, the rules framed under the English Judicature Acts do not prescribe a period for such applications, and I do not see why the Indian law should do so. It would surely be sufficient to require the legal representatives of a deceased plaintiff or defendant, where the right to sue or be sued survived, to be put on the record; and to leave it to the Court to direct this to be done within such time, and upon such terms as to costs or otherwise, as it thinks fit."

Sub-section (6) of section 15 of the Bill is intended to cure the defect noticed at I. L. R. 9 Bom. 56.

Section 18.—This section, which would restore the rule of the Code of 1859, has been proposed by Mr. Justice Straight.

Section 19.—The amendment made in section 386 of the Code by Act XII of 1879, whereby commissions to examine witnesses are required to be issued to a Court or a pleader of a High Court, has caused much inconvenience. In remote parts of the country High Court pleaders do not exist, and in few parts have Judges leisure to close their Courts and travel considerable distances for the purpose of taking the evidence of persons who cannot appear before them. Moreover, in some Provinces the Government maintains a staff of officials among whose duties is the execution of these commissions.

Section 20.—The addition which it is proposed to make to section 396 has been suggested by a gentleman of long standing at the Bombay bar. It is based on the Partition Act, 1868 (31 & 32 Vic., c. 40).

Section 21.—A Government Pleader does not exist in every Court.

Section 22.—It has been doubted whether the Government is empowered by section 432 to appoint a person generally to prosecute and defend all suits which it may from time to time be necessary to prosecute or defend on behalf of a Prince or Chief. It is obviously inconvenient that the Government should be compelled to make a special appointment in the case of each particular suit.

Sections 24 and 25.—The object of these sections is (a) to define more precisely, with reference to the definition of "Government" in section 2 of the Code, by whom consent to the institution of a suit against a Sovereign Prince, ruling Chief, ambassador or envoy may be given; (b) to make the provisions of section 433 more elastic as regards the mode of giving the consent, the cases in which the consent may be given, and the Courts to which the consent may apply; and (c) to prescribe the name in which a Prince or Chief may sue and is to be sued. To effect this last object it is proposed that a Prince or Chief may sue and shall ordinarily be sued in the name of his State.

Section 24.—Section 434 of the Code, under which execution may be had of a decree in a suit between British subjects, is out of place in a chapter relating to Suits by Aliens and by or against Foreign and Native Rulers. The section may conveniently take the place of section 651, which was repealed in March last by Act X of 1886.

Section 26.—The amendments proposed by this section to be made in Chapter XXXI of the Code are those referred to in paragraph 4 of the Statement of Objects and Reasons of the Guardians and Wards Bill. The additions to sections 443 and 443 confer on a guardian who has been appointed, or whose title has been declared, by a Civil Court, Court of Wards or other competent authority, a preferential right to be appointed next friend or guardian for the suit. The amendment of section 461 gives effect to a suggestion by Sir Charles Turner, late Chief Justice of Madras, that, when a Court makes over property to a next friend or guardian for the suit who is not a duly constituted guardian of the property of the minor, it should be required to give such directions as, having regard to the nature of the property, may sufficiently protect it from waste and secure its proper application. Section 461, as amended, saves all local laws relating to suits by or against minors or by or against lunatics or other persons of unsound mind.

Section 27.—There are two reported cases, I. L. R. 8 Cal. 32, and I. L. R. 7 All. 178, with respect to the meaning to be assigned to the words "direct interest" in section 539. It appears that the authority for the insertion of the words "having a direct interest in the trust" is In the matter of the Masters, Governors and Trustees of the Bedford Charity (2 Swanst. 470). There certain Jews, some being residents of Bedford and others being members of Dutch and German Synagogues in London, sought to establish the title of Jews to the benefit of the Bedford Charity. It was contended that under Sir Samuel Romilly's Act (52 Geo. III, c. 101), on which section 539 of the Code of Civil Procedure is based, any two or more persons might be petitioners, and therefore the Jews of the London Synagogues, who, though not interested, considered it their duty to support the claims of those of their own persuasion, might be petitioners. With respect to that contention, Lord Eldon, admitting that every person possessing the character of an inhabitant of Bedford and describing himself as an object of the charity was entitled to apply to the Court, asked how he could notice the members of the London Synagogues. "Under Sir Samuel Romilly's Act," he observed, * * * "no person can petition who has not a direct interest in the charity. The Act indeed, authorises 'any two or more persons' to present a petition, but I conceive that those words must be understood to mean persons having an interest. * * * Those who are interested in the fund, provided Sir Samuel Romilly's Act, or the Bedford Charity Act, apply to this case, namely, persons residing in Bedford, are entitled to the summary interference of the Court, but I know not on what ground these gentlemen residing in London can appear as petitioners."

The contention which Lord Eldon overruled was that any one, though he had no interest whatever, might petition. He did, no doubt, remark that "no person can petition who has not a direct interest," but he immediately qualified that remark by adding that the words of the Act "must be understood to mean persons having an interest." The case cannot, therefore, it seems, be taken as an authority for the proposition that the interest of the petitioner must be direct. On the contrary, it may be inferred from the case that an indirect interest would have been deemed sufficient; for, when, in support of the contention that the words "any persons" comprehend persons who may not have an interest, the counsel for the petitioners pointed out that, in the instance of charities for relief of the blind and the poor, it had been the practice to receive the petition of the minister of the parish, Lord Eldon observed that "the petition of the minister of the parish is received, because the poor may be burdensome to him."

It may be doubted whether the case justified the insertion of the word "direct" in the Code, where it assumes a peculiar pointedness and must have some definite meaning assigned to it; and after consultation with the High Courts it has been decided to propose the removal of the word.

Sections 28 and 31.—It is proposed, in accordance with the advice of the great majority of the authorities consulted by the Government of India in its letter of the 5th January last, to declare ex parte decrees to be appealable.

Section 29.—Section 561 has been so amended as to require the objection to be filed in the Appellate Court, and notice of the filing thereof to be given to the appellant, and to admit of the objection being filed and the notice given at any time not less than seven days before the actual date of hearing; and, on the suggestion of Bábú Brajendra Coomar Seal, it applies to the objection and notice under the provisions of section 5 of the Indian Limitation Act, 1877, applicable to an appeal.

Sections 30 and 32.—The amendments proposed to be made by these sections are merely to correct typographical errors in sections 568 and 596 of the Code.

Section 33.—Section 599, and the portion of section 601 which it is proposed to repeal, were repealed by Act XV of 1877 and were unintentionally reproduced in the Code of 1882.

Section 34 - This section removes a doubt which has been expressed in the cases noted on the margin of the section with respect to the construction to be placed on the word "made" in section 624.

Section 35 —Sub-section (1) of this section has been suggested by the following remarks of the Hon'ble Judges of the High Court at Fort William in their Registrar's reply to the letter of the Government of India of the 5th January last :—

"I am further to request attention to another point in this section (618) which, though not referred to in your letter, seems to the Judges to call for notice. The section gives absolute power to a Court to cause the arrest through another Court of a person summoned as a witness, and so to cause him to be sent under arrest to the Court issuing the process. The Court to which the warrant is sent has no power of hearing the person arrested or of dealing with any question except the giving of security by him. It seems to the Judges that this is a power far too great to be entrusted at any rate to the subordinate Courts in the Mufassal."

Sub-section (2) has been transferred to this Bill from the Provincial Small Cause Courts Bill, and will be of general application instead of being applicable to Courts of Small Causes only. With respect to the necessity for this addition to section 648, the District Judge of the 24-Parganas writes as follows: -

"Under section 648 I would also beg to point out that a warrant for the arrest of a person residing within the limits of the original jurisdiction must be executed through the High Court. This is very inconvenient to small suitors, and, in a case which occurred in my Court only a few weeks ago, a defendant preferred abandoning all attempts to get a recusant witness into Court to undergoing the trouble and expense of having a warrant of arrest served through the Original Side of the High Court. I would suggest that the procedure prescribed by section 86 should be made applicable to section 648, and that warrants of arrest which are to be served within the original jurisdiction should be executed by the Small Cause Court."

Section 36 —This section is designed to remove a doubt as to the extent of the powers of unchartered High Courts to make rules on matters not strictly connected with procedure.

RESOLUTION ON THE GENERAL ADMINISTRATION REPORT OF THE PATNA DIVISION FOR THE YEAR 1885-86.

GENERAL DEPARTMENT—MISCELLANEOUS.

Calcutta, the 13th September 1886.

RESOLUTION.

READ—

The General Administration Report of the Patna Division for the year 1885-86.

The report is submitted by Mr. Halliday, who was Commissioner of the Division during the year, except for three months of privilege leave, during which Mr. Hewitt officiated in his place. Mr. Quinn was in charge of Patna district throughout the year, Mr. Power of Shahabad, Mr. Price of Durbhunga, Mr. Forbes of Sarun, while Messrs. Norman, Bolton and Henry acted as Collectors of Mozufferpore, Gya, and Chumparun, with short intervals of unavoidable absence. The Division has thus had during the year the advantage of continuity of administration.

Tours.

1. The Commissioner made a very useful tour, which extended through every district in his jurisdiction. The Collector of Gya was in camp for a period a few days shorter than that authoritatively fixed; all the other Collectors fulfilled the requirements in this respect, bringing every Department of work under thorough inspection. The unusual extent of Mr. Price's tour, which lasted for 195 days, or more than double the time prescribed, suggests the warning that business at head-quarters should not suffer by the too prolonged absence of the Collector. The sub-divisional officers appear to have discharged this part of their duty very satisfactorily, and the Lieutenant-Governor is glad to notice that an opportunity was afforded to some Joint-Magistrates and Assistant Magistrates to co-operate in the work of inspection.

Weather and crops. Public health.

2. The rainfall of the year was abundant, and, though in some places it was not well distributed, and in others it caused loss by reason of local floods, the crops were, on the whole, excellent. The rubbi harvest was everywhere good, and the outturn of opium, as to which Government has the most precise information, was entirely satisfactory. The bhadoi and aghani harvests were generally above the average. In future reports it would be well if the Commissioner would give a quantitative estimate of the outturn of each crop in annas, information in this form being more precise than that conveyed by such adjectives as "fair," "good," or "disappointing." The Commissioner, in submitting his report for 1884-85, remarked that a bad year for agriculture is a good one in respect to health, and conversely it appears that the year 1885-86, in which the crops were excellent, was marked by much sickness and mortality. Malarious fever is mentioned as having increased in every district except Gya, as to which the information given is imperfect, and cholera was exceptionally prevalent. It appears that in Behar there is a well-established connexion between sickness and an excess in subsoil humidity, and this affords the strongest reasons for careful attention to drainage.

Material condition of the people.

3. The most favourable account of the permanent condition of the people comes from Shahabad, as to which district Mr. Halliday writes:—

"The Collector repeats what he said in last year's report as to the material condition of the people varying with the different geographical features of the district. In those portions which enjoy the advantages of a railway traversing it, and of a network of canals, with two bridged and metalled roads connecting a large portion of the interior with the railway, which is a considerable area, there tenant rights and easy rents prevail. Taking the Grand Trunk Road as a rough boundary, it may be said that in material condition of its inhabitants the tract north of it is superior to any other of similar size in the division. This is evidenced by well-built houses, tiled roofs, fully clad people, abundance of ornaments, paucity of women engaged in field labour, and other signs of a comparatively high standard of comfort. The large initial expenditure on canals alone greatly increased the capital of the district. South of the boundary indicated above the same causes of prosperity do not exist, but the progress of one part of the district naturally reacts on the other."

It is observed that the comparative comfort and prosperity described are found where, while material improvements have been effected by Government, rents have remained low, and the rights of the cultivators have been respected. That material improvements will not by themselves suffice to elevate the position of the ryots of Behar is suggested by the example of the adjoining district of Patna, where, though, as in Shahabad, canals have been excavated, and railways and roads constructed, the Collector reports that the permanent condition of the agricultural population is one of poverty and dependence on the mahajan. As to Gya, another conterminous district, where the bhaoli system of cultivation prevails, Mr. Bolton states that the material condition of the majority of the population remains as low as it has apparently been for generations. He states that, being new to Behar, he is struck with the contrast between the dilapidated and badly thatched houses found in almost every village of his district, and the neat and comfortable dwellings of the peasantry in most districts of Bengal.

The Collector of Chumparun reports that the ryots in his jurisdiction are in circumstances better than those of many of the neighbouring districts. The Collector of Mozufferpore remarks:—"Extreme poverty is undoubtedly the lot of the great majority of the inhabitants of this district, nor would it be reasonable to expect any other result of a continuous increase in the population, unchecked by emigration, and untempered by any important manufacturing industry. There can be no doubt that the unceasing operation of the partition law in converting the landholders into peasant proprietors, and thus enabling a larger number of human beings to squat upon the land without increasing its productiveness, is a factor in intensifying the poverty of the masses. Another painful concomitant of the sordid and penurious life led by the Mozufferpore peasant is the general aversion and inaptitude towards primary instruction, which all officers of the Education Department have to deplore." The Commissioner states that he agrees entirely in these remarks, as showing the cause of the poverty observable by new-comers among the general population. "A great deal of money is thrown into the district by indigo cultivation, opium cultivation, the manufacture of saltpetre and sulphate of soda, and the railways, roads and other public works; still the population is so enormous that these resources go but a very small way in affording any alleviation." It is presumed that the partition law to which reference is made is the Partition Act, which, while it enables co-heirs to secure relief from joint liability for the revenue, has an injurious effect on the material condition of the people by diminishing the capital which large zemindars alone can possess and might advantageously use for the benefit of their estates.

The observations quoted above relate to the permanent condition of the poorer classes in Behar; as to their state during the year 1885-86 there is a general agreement that it was better than in the years immediately preceding. In Gya the good crops of the year have brought much relief after a succession of bad harvests. In Mozufferpore plentiful stocks of food are believed to exist, and complaints of want are no longer heard. The Collector of Durbhunga writes: "The year under report was, comparatively speaking, a good year: the labourers had ample work on their own fields, or in the fields of their richer neighbours, and were not driven to the necessity of migrating to neighbouring districts in search of food." In Sarun the ryots are said to have benefited by the better results of the indigo season, and the unusually fine outturn of opium, though the effects of the last will chiefly be felt in the current year. In Chumparun a good opium crop in 1884-85, followed by the particularly fine crop of 1885-86, has diffused, the Collector says, a very large sum of money amongst the agriculturists. Mr. Henry points out that no less than 25 lakhs have been paid to the ryots for their opium in 1885-86—an amount almost sufficient to meet the whole of their rents.

The Commissioner in his report properly distinguishes between the temporary ease caused by the good harvest of a single year, and the permanent prosperity which is the result of well directed industry. The latter can be said to exist only in those parts of the division where the public and private improvements, which have been effected in no province more extensively than in Behar, have been supplemented by institutions giving to the actual cultivator, in practice as well as in name, a permanent interest in his holding. It is the object of recent legislative and executive action to extend to the whole division the legal protection which has, in a portion of it, been accompanied by such promising results.

Emigration, prices, and wages.

4. The number of emigrants registered during the year was 4,761 against 10,214 in 1884-85. This falling off is attributed by the Commissioner to the goodness of the harvests, but is probably also in some measure due to the alteration in the law effected by Act XXI of 1883, under which registration of intending emigrants in the district of recruitment is no longer necessary. The tendency of food prices has been to fall slightly, but not to the extent which might have been expected from the excellence of the harvests. A large amount of grain was exported, and it is believed that stocks have been replenished. The wages of labour are stationary, being exactly the same as in 1883-84.

Indigo.

5. The Commissioner states that—

Indigo is extensively manufactured in all districts of the division, except Patna, where there is none, and Gya, where there are only two small factories under native management.

In Shahabad the industry has gradually declined of late years, partly in consequence of successive unfavourable seasons and general depression in the trade itself, and partly owing to scarcity of land by the extension of canal irrigation, as explained in last year's report. A system of indigo cultivation called jamawa prevails in this district, under which the crop is sown in February or March and "forced" by artificial irrigation. * * *

From Mozufferpore the Collector reports that the increase in cultivation noticed in previous reports still continues, and it is said that in the year 1885, 80,000 bighas were under indigo, against 69,000 in the previous year. It was noticed in previous reports that the introduction of many so-called 'interloping factories had been attended with much friction, and that breaches of the peace had resulted in some cases.' During the year under report the 'interlopers' have in almost every instance succeeded in effecting a settlement with their neighbours, and this restoration of peaceable relations has assisted the progress of the industry. * * * * * *

The Secretary of the Behar Indigo Planters' Association writes to the Collector of Mozufferpore that he believes the relations between planters, zemindars, and ryots are satisfactory, and that during the past year there has been hardly any necessity for the interference of the Association with the affairs of any factory He adds :—'The operation of the cadastral Survey Department under Colonel Barrow, and of the record of rights under Mr. Collin, was begun in November last, and there has been, I am happy to believe, no friction between the members of the Association and the officers mentioned, owing in a great measure to the tact and courtesy displayed by them in all matters which have been brought to their notice. * * * * * *

Considerable tracts of country have recently been let in ticca en masse to indigo-planters by zemindars, who wish to draw an income without trouble as absentees; for example, the Chowdhry of Nanpore. * * * * * *

From Durbhunga the same report comes as to the relations between the planters and the ryots and zemindars being, except in a case or two, fairly satisfactory. The outturn of indigo in this district was a poor one in the year under report. In Sarun there are 53 indigo factories, including outworks. The total area under indigo was 61,200 bighas against 55,680 during the preceding year, and the outturn was 10,500 maunds against 8,500. Except in the case of one factory, where there seems to have been a good deal of friction, relations between the ryots and the factories have on the whole been very good. In this district the ryots are taking more and more to the khushki system of cultivation.

In Chumparun the outturn of indigo was 16 000 maunds against 16,660 in the preceding year, but the rise in the price of indigo in the Calcutta market gave a considerable rise in the value. In this district also the relations between indigo-planters and ryots were generally satisfactory.

The Lieutenant-Governor has, during the period of his administration, given close attention to the important subject of indigo cultivation in Behar, and it has been his object to promote the permanent interests of this most valuable industry by removing the abuses to which it is open. In this he has been ably supported by Mr. Halliday and the responsible officers of Behar, as well as by the Behar Indigo Planters' Association, and it is with much pleasure that Sir Rivers Thompson recognizes the success which has attended their efforts, and the satisfactory relations which have been established between planters and cultivators. It is understood that the cultivation of indigo now rests on a sound commercial basis, and is advantageous to all parties. Indeed, it may be hereafter impossible to conduct it on any other principle, as the ryots, it is to be hoped, will be in a position to protect their own interests.

Other manufactures.

6. The other manufactures of the Division are, excluding the opium monopoly, sugar, saltpetre, tobacco, and paper. The accounts as to sugar are favourable, the three factories in Gya are doing well, while the introduction of hand turbines in Shahabad has resulted in an increased manufacture. In Sarun several refineries closed last year were re-opened. The Commissioner writes :—

With regard to saltpetre and the manufacture of sulphate of soda, these industries, I find, showed a marked decrease in number of licenses, outturn and revenue in the Mozufferpore district The Superintendent, Northern India Salt Department, is entirely unable to account for the decrease. I have the same account from Sarun, where the trade seems to be declining, and, it is said, is not likely to revive under the present revenue rules, which do not favour the petty manufacturers of crude saltpetre, and therefore also do not favour the development of the trade in refined saltpetre, which depends on the supply of crude saltpetre. In Durbhunga and Chumparun also there has been a decrease in the outturn of saltpetre and sulphate of soda. * * * * * *

The tobacco factory at Poosa, in the Durbhunga district, continues to be kept up, but the Collector doubts whether it has proved successful. Certainly no native cultivator ever thinks it worth while to try the European method of curing.

With regard to paper manufacture, which is carried on in Shahabad and Gya, the trade, as was stated last year, is on the decline, and fast succumbing to the competition of machine-made paper turned out at the Couper Mill at Lucknow.

In Shahabad the number of mills at work during the past year was only 9 against 22 of the previous year.

Trade.

7. Under this head the Commissioner writes :—

The Collector of Durbhunga gives the total value of exports to Nepal as estimated at Rs. 2,40,000, against Rs. 2,79,000 in the year preceding. The decrease is most remarkable in salt, tobacco, silk fabrics and country piece-goods. There was, however, an increase in the exportation of food-grains and English piece-goods. In the imports from Nepaul there was an increase, it being most noticeable in the imports of rice, cattle, timber, and hides. In Mozufferpore there was a large increase in the importations from Nepal in food-grains and oilseeds, and an extensive importation of saltpetre.

Turning to the head of exportation, I find that salt weighing 25,744 maunds was exported as against 29,131. A considerable increase in the exportation of European cotton piece goods is noticed, the figures for the year under report and the preceding year being, respectively, Rs 1,52,434 and Rs. 1,20,631. The exportation of Indian piece-goods also increased by Rs. 941, and there was an increase in woollen and silk goods. The increase in the value of exportation is very satisfactory, and shows that trade with Nepal is getting brisk day by day; and taking the figures of the importation and exportation as a whole, the trade may be said to be in a flourishing state.

State of public feeling.

8. The Commissioner states that interest in public measures is, in his Division, limited to a few classes, particularly to the more influential of the zemindars. These still regard the Bengal Tenancy Act with distrust, though the excitement on the subject has to a great extent died away. The survey and record of rights in Mozufferpore have aroused no opposition. "On the whole," the Collector of Mozufferpore reports, "I consider that the zemindars are rather in favour of it than otherwise, as it will enable them to identify their lands with certainty, and to obtain full rent for lands which are at present occupied without payment of rent at all. The ryots treat the matter with the utmost apathy: they are aware that the proceedings have the sanction of Government, and are content to look on, though they do not understand the object in view."

Police and Crime.

9. The Commissioner considers that the conduct of the police has been on the whole satisfactory during the year. The statement below shows the fluctuation of crime under each class during the past four years:—

Offences against property ...	13,168	14,272	16,981	16,753
Ditto person ...	3,851	1,174	1,256	1,115
Ditto public tranquillity	307	351	442	416
Other offences	6,645	8,129	6,747	5,746
Total ...	23,971	23,926	25,426	24,030

The Commissioner reports that the attempt which is being made in the districts of Sarun and Chumparun to reclaim and settle the Mughya Domés, a tribe of vagabond thieves, has been so far successful. He writes:—

In Sarun the number of these Domes under surveillance rose from 1,017 to 1,147 during the year under review, including women and children. They are distributed among 60 settlements throughout the district, and in most places have been given two bighas of land per adult male, besides being supplied with bullocks, ploughs, seeds, fowls, goats, &c., and fairly substantial houses, which, in many cases, are now being tiled by the local zemindars. Notwithstanding, however, the best attempts to keep them contented, and to train them up to agricultural pursuits, it is evident, the Magistrate remarks, that a quiet life of toil is irksome to these people, and it only needs such provocation as is afforded by the return and bad advice of an old, hardened offender, after the expiry of a sentence in jail, or by the news of a successful raid by their fellow-castemen in a neighbouring district, to induce them to break away in twos or threes in the attempt to resume their previous mode of life. During the past year as many as 46 persons absconded from their settlements in this manner. The majority were re-arrested, and when called upon to explain their conduct, could only give the excuse that they had absented themselves on a begging expedition. This excuse could not, of course, be accepted, and in most cases the absconders were required to give security under section 110, Criminal Procedure Code, for their good behaviour. This action has had the effect of checking the evil to a certain extent, but individual cases of escape are still occasionally reported. On the whole, however, the scheme has worked well, and with much greater success than the most experienced residents of the district ever expected to witness. In many of the villages which the Magistrate has lately visited a marked improvement has been noticed in the cultivation of their lands, and in respect to the feeling with which the Domes are regarded by their fellow-villagers, by whom they are now frequently employed as field-labourers, which, it is believed, was never formerly the case.

The effect of the scheme on the crime returns continues to be of the most encouraging character, as the following number of burglary cases reported during the past four years will show:—

1885	365 „

In Chumparun the settlers have continued to behave satisfactorily, and have devoted themselves to their work as agriculturists, not only with energy, but with success. Hitherto the seasons had proved unfavourable to the agricultural operations at both settlements, but during the year under report, owing to the seasonable distribution of the rainfall, the crops have everywhere done well, and the outturn of the harvests on the lands belonging to both settlements will be so large as to render the Domes independent of Government aid from this year.

Civil Justice.

10. The suits instituted were as follow :—

		1884.	1885.
(i)	Suits for money or moveables ...	12,312	12,341
(ii)	Rent suits	14,763	14,594
(iii)	Title and other suits	3,923	4,016
	Total ...	30,998	30,951

It is observed that the introduction of the Bengal Tenancy Act does not appear to have affected in any way the number of rent suits.

Land Revenue.

11. The current demand on account of revenue and the rent of Government estates was Rs. 81,95,600, the arrear demand Rs. 2,76,760, total Rs. 84,72,360; the collections amounted to Rs. 80,55,496 or 95·1 per cent. This proportion is unusually low, and it is hoped that a sufficient explanation will be given in the Land Revenue Administration Report.

Relations between landlords and tenants.

12. The number of notices issued with a view to the enhancement of rent was only 291, against 599 in the previous year, and the decrease is attributed to the introduction of the Bengal Tenancy Act. In other respects the relations between landlords and tenants appear to have been unchanged. They are reported to be on the whole satisfactory, but with occasional exceptions.

Excise, License-tax, Stamps

13. The subjoined table shows the excise revenue of the year as compared with that of 1884-85, and with the average of the preceding five years—

Period.	Revenue.	Charges.	Net revenue.	Percentage of charges.
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
Average of 1880-81 to 1884-85	24,26,083	43,639	23,83,314	1·7
1884-85	24,38,203	42,208	23,95 995	1 7
1885-86	22,80,469	60,277	22,20,192	2·6

The decrease in receipts and the increase in charges are both due to the adoption of the suggestion of the Excise Commission, and represent a sacrifice of revenue made in order to promote temperance. The license-tax demand of the year was Rs. 2,04,420, against Rs. 2,02,860 in 1884-85. The stamp revenue was Rs. 18,46,381, against Rs. 18,41,861 in the preceding year.

Railways and Canals.

14. The Commissioner remarks that there was a large and increasing traffic on the Deegha branch line, constructed in 1884. The general working of the Patna, Gya and Tirhoot State Railways has been satisfactory, and the latter has given a great impetus to trade. The Bengal North-Western Railway has not as yet succeeded in attracting to itself the bulk of the river traffic. There were 36 accidents on the railway passing through the Patna district, and six in Shahabad district; 20 of these resulted in death.

The Lieutenant-Governor notices with satisfaction that the collection of water-rates in the district of Shahabad has improved very much, and that the arrears have been reduced from Rs. 8,40,452 to Rs. 2,86,000. In Sarun also the balances were greatly diminished. Advantage should be taken of the comparative prosperity of recent seasons to make full collections.

Roads.

15. In the Patna Division the road cess has afforded the means of making very considerable improvements in communications. The Commissioner writes—

Much still remains to be done, especially in the matter of bridges, for the various district roads throughout the division, but the means of communication have been gradually are steadily improving year after year, as may be gathered from the fact that during the last five years no less than £3½ lakhs of rupees have been expended by the several District Road Committees in the division on original works only, in the shape of constructing new roads and bridges, improving the existing district communications, and metalling them, constructing dâk and inspection bungalows, and also in opening out new and improving old village roads.

During the year a bridge over the Phalgu river in Gya was completed at an expense of Rs. 1,05,894. A bridge over the Morhur, estimated to cost Rs. 59,225, was nearly finished. Three iron bridges were opened in Durbhunga at a cost of Rs. 46,000. The Commissioner specifies several other works of importance completed or in progress during the year.

Education.

16. The following table gives the number of schools in the Patna Division, and of the students attending them, during the last two years:—

Class of Institutions.	1884-85.		1885-86.
	Number of schools.	Number of pupils.	Number of schools.	Number of pupils.
High English schools	22	5,475	22	5,722
Middle „ „	89	5,514	80	4,993
„ vernacular „	74	4,404	67	3,610
Upper primary „	285	11,761	323	12,616
Lower „ „	11,199	143,986	5,552	102,295
Indigenous „	1,246	12,108	150	2,546
Female „	61	1,174	99	1,573
Other „	5	203	5	319
Total ..	12,971	184,715	6,298	133,674

There has thus been a falling off both in the number of schools and pupils, the decrease being almost confined to lower primary and indigenous schools. The introduction of a rule under which pathsalas with less than 10 pupils on their rolls, and remaining unopened for six months of the preceding year, are not allowed to compete for rewards at the sub-centre examinations, has contributed to bring about the decrease. In Durbhunga, it is said, all private and non-stipendiary schools were excluded, the gurus not having furnished the requisite returns. The Commissioner writes:—

> The falling off under lower primary schools is more apparent than real. The great majority of the schools formerly shown in the returns, but now excluded, were it appears worthless, and from an educational point of view the districts will gain by the greater efficiency in which the surviving schools will be maintained in consequence of their receiving more attention from the inspecting officers. Each of these schools will also receive a larger share of the primary grant than hitherto.

It is at present desirable, in the Lieutenant-Governor's opinion, rather to consolidate and improve the position of primary schools already under supervision than to increase the roll by seeking for indigenous institutions, which may be beyond the range of effective control; but it is necessary to guard against the mistake of pushing this policy too far, so as seriously to diminish the number of those receiving the benefits of elementary instruction. It is observed that in this division the number of primary and indigenous schools entered in the returns has been reduced to less than half what it was last year, while the pupils have fallen off by nearly a third. These results go beyond what was anticipated when instructions were issued with the intention of limiting the increase which was noticed in former years. The subject will be considered more fully when the annual report of the Director of Public Instruction has been received.

Dispensaries and Vaccination.

17. The Commissioner considers that the working of the dispensaries in the division has been generally satisfactory. The total number of out-door patients treated was 293,475, against 288,568 in 1884, and the number of in-door patients treated was 6,686, against 6,048 in 1884. Mr. Halliday states that in the Patna district the Vaccination Act was in force, and appears to have been efficiently worked. There is a paid establishment for supervision, but the great majority of the operations were performed by licensed vaccinators. The number of operations performed was 22,729, against 20,047 in the previous year: the percentage of successful cases was 99·33.

The following figures show the number of vaccine operations performed in the six other districts of the division:—

Gya	...	...	...	1,680
Shahabad	...	...	...	3,973
Mozufferpore	...	...	...	2,392
Durbhunga	...	...	...	4 691
Sarun	...	...	...	3,292
Chumparun	...	...	...	349

Success of local bodies.

18. The District Road Committees have, on the whole, worked fairly well, but there have been instances in which particular bodies have failed to take an intelligent interest in their work. In the opinion of the Lieutenant-Governor the efficiency of a Committee over which the District or Subdivisional Officer presides depends mainly upon the gifts and conduct of the official Chairman. The favourable mention of the Hajipore Sub-Committee, and of the Education Committee of Chumparun, is noticed with satisfaction. The Municipal Commissioners elected and appointed under Act III (B.C.) of 1884 are said to take a creditable interest in the affairs committed to their charge, and to be quite willing to undertake any improvement within their means.

Conduct of zemindars.

19. The Maharajah of Doomraon has done much to promote the cause of agricultural improvement in the Shahabad district, by establishing a demonstration farm, under a trained Superintendent in communication with the Agricultural Department, and by promoting during two successive years very useful agricultural shows, at which the Director of the Agricultural Department attended. Favourable mention is also made of the Maharajahs of Bettiah, Durbhunga, and Hutwa, of Baboo Raj Rajessur of Surujpura of the firm of Messrs. Burrows, Thompson, and Mylne, and of Dulhin Saheb of Bettiah as good landlords. The Commissioner expresses no opinion as to the conduct of proprietors generally, and none appears to be directly suggested by the agrarian history of the year.

20. The Lieutenant-Governor desires to express his sense of the efficient manner in which this important division has for many years been administered by Mr. Halliday. The Commissioner's remarks as to the merits of officers will be communicated to the Appointment Department.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

P. NOLAN,

Offg. Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

RESOLUTION ON THE GENERAL ADMINISTRATION REPORT OF THE BURDWAN DIVISION FOR THE YEAR 1885-86.

GENERAL DEPARTMENT—MISCELLANEOUS.

Calcutta, the 13th September 1886.

RESOLUTION.

READ—

The General Administration Report of the Burdwan Division for the year 1885-86.

The report is submitted by Mr Lowis, who was in charge of the division for the whole year, with the trifling exception of the first twelve days of April. There were very few changes among the district officers, except in Howrah, where four Magistrates succeeded each other during the year.

Scarcity and flood.

2. The report is preluded by an account of the two calamities which formed the chief feature of the year under report. These subjects having been reviewed at some length in a Resolution of this Government, dated the 4th January 1886, it is sufficient to state that the failure of the rice crop of 1884, following on two previous bad seasons, had necessitated the opening of relief works in Beerbhoom, Burdwan, and Bankoora before the commencement of the year 1885-86, and as the hot weather advanced, it became clear that further measures were required. New works were opened, arrangements were made, with the valued assistance of the Indian Association and the Sadharan Brahmo Somaj, for the distribution of charitable relief, advances were given to wealthy gentlemen to enable them to execute works of utility on their own account, agricultural loans were granted to substantial ryots, and chakran chowkidars were relieved by similar loans on the security of their service lands. The abundant rainfall of August set at rest all fears for the rice harvest of 1885, and relief operations were finally brought to a close in November. The following statement supplied by the Commissioner shows the total expenditure of Government money under the various heads of relief operations:—

Districts.	Relief works.		Charitable relief.			Loans under Act XII of 1884		Loans under Act XIX of 1883.		Loans to chowkidars		Remarks.
			Allotment.

These are all Government grants, and do not include amounts expended on relief works by District Road Cess Committees.

But the rain of August, while conferring unmixed blessings on the tracts that had previously suffered from drought, brought its own evils in its train. The rivers Damooda and Roopnarain were flooded: their embankments were breached: and large tracts of country in Hooghly, Howrah, and Midnapore were submerged for many days. Thus, while all cause for anxiety had ceased in Burdwan, Beerbhoom, and Bankoora, distress re-appeared in a new form in the other three districts of the division. The main loss from flood was suffered in the Ghatal sub division of Midnapore, the Jehanabad sub-division of Hooghly, and Ooloobaria in Howrah. In many villages in Ghatal the water found its way into the houses, and the stocks of rice in store were damaged. The sub-divisional officer took prompt action in sending off boats with provisions for distribution to those in need of food, and the immediate pressing wants of the people having been supplied, it was found that the allotments made to the districts from the sums raised by public subscriptions in Calcutta and elsewhere would be amply sufficient to afford all the relief required. The people themselves showed great spirit and endurance in rallying from the disaster, and the poorest of them required no more than small advances to re-build their houses and purchase boro rice seeds The Commissioner adds—

"At the same time the condition of the people in the inundated tract was carefully watched, so that the earliest symptom of distress might be reported and measures taken for its alleviation. No occasion, however, arose for State interference; the people gradually put up their houses, the new grass coming up supplied food for the cattle, the unusual quantity of water lying in all hollows or depressions enabled a large extra area to be cultivated with boro rice. An unusual breadth of land was sown with cold-weather crops, and the weather during the cold season having been favourable, the ryots have now reaped and gathered an excellent spring harvest, and have recovered in a great measure from the disaster which befell them."

Annual tours.

3. The Commissioner made a very complete tour of the districts under his control. He was occupied in the performance of this duty during 141 days, inspecting every district and every sub-divisional office, and throughout the periods of scarcity and flood he was constantly in the affected tracts, conferring with and advising the local officers. All the district officers were on tour for more than the full prescribed period of 90 days, except the Magistrate of Howrah. Mr. Carstairs and Mr. Westmacott were successively prevented by accidents from taking active exercise, and their united tours only amounted to 52 days. The sub-divisional officers, with one exception (which is satisfactorily explained), remained in camp for 120 days and upwards. Only one Joint-Magistrate at a sudder station (Mr. B. Dé at Hooghly) went into camp; he was out for 22 days, chiefly engaged in preparations for the introduction of the Local Self-Government Act.

Public health, weather and crops.

4. The health of the division was generally good, but in all districts, except Howrah, the mortality from cholera was higher than usual in the dry season. The aggravation of the normal want of good water by the drying up of wells is sufficient to account for this. Considerable mortality among cattle is reported from the flooded parts of the Jehanabad sub-division of Hooghly. The Eden Canal continues to be appreciated as a drainage channel, and though not intended for such a purpose has been, with the express sanction of Government, used in times of pressure for irrigation. With the exception of Bankoora, no district in this division is effectively drained by nature, and, owing to the constant silting up of the tidal khals, questions of artificial improvement of drainage become more important every year. In the present state of the financial resources of the Government, however, it is impossible to hope that any scheme on a scale of the required magnitude can be immediately undertaken.

Weather and crops.

The rainfall was abundant, but unevenly distributed. In the earlier months sowings both of aus and amun rice were retarded for want of moisture, but full amends were made later on: and had it not been for the damage done by the August floods bumper harvests would have been secured throughout the division. In Burdwan both aus and amun yielded full average crops, except in the Cutwa sub-division; in Bankoora the outturn is characterized as "splendid," and in Beerbhoom the harvest is estimated at very slightly below the average. Three-fourths of the district of Midnapore derived benefit instead of harm from the heavy rain of August; in the Sudder sub-division the outturn was above the average, and everywhere else fair results were obtained, except in Ghatal, where the aus harvest suffered considerably and is said to have been only five annas. This was, however, in great measure compensated by a bumper crop of boro rice. The Sudder and Serampore sub-divisions of Hooghly reaped a 12-anna rice crop, and the Commissioner adds—"In the unflooded tracts of Jehanabad there was a bumper rice crop such as the present generation of cultivators has never seen." But in the parts exposed to the floods the whole crop was lost, the damage being but partly made up by very extensive cultivation of cold-weather crops. In the same way Howrah having lost a very large proportion of its winter rice, recouped itself to some extent by a good crop of boro.

Material condition of the people.

5. As previously stated, the people were badly off in the districts of Burdwan, Bankoora, and Beerbhoom during the first-half of the year, and the relief operations which had to be undertaken in some places were continued until the month of November; but the good outturn of the rice crop placed them in better circumstances before the year closed. The Commissioner observes that the high prices continued after the harvest, thus giving the cultivators an unusually good return for their produce; but this is hardly borne out by the statistical tables appended to the report, which show that, although in Burdwan no marked fall took place until February 1886, the price of rice in Beerbhoom and Bankoora fell suddenly in December 1885, and continued to decline until the close of the year. In Midnapore and Hooghly there was considerable suffering in the flooded tracts, and the condition of the weaver caste, which has been very much depressed for some years past, is said to have still further deteriorated; the rest of the population suffered no permanent change for the worse. In Howrah, owing to the ready market for produce of all kinds and the brisk demand for labour, even the floods, exceptionally disastrous as they were in this district, appear to have but a slight effect on the condition of any class of the population.

Emigration.

6. Only 3,560 persons were registered under the Inland Emigration Act, against 5,372 in 1884-85 and 6,848 in 1883-84. Mr. Lowis is inclined to regard this decrease as only apparent, and to attribute it to the development of the system of free emigration; but the statistics of inland emigration for the whole province in 1885 show that, although the proportion of free to registered emigrants has increased, the actual number of free emigrants in 1885 was lower than the total for 1884. The real cause of the decrease is not far to seek. As stated by the Commissioner in paragraph 52 of his present report, a large proportion of the emigrants registered in Burdwan are not natives of the district, but come from Chota Nagpore, the Southal Pergunnahs and Behar. During the past year of distress and high prices the influx of these strangers into Burdwan was checked, and there were therefore fewer emigrants to be passed on from that district to Assam. The Commissioner quotes without comment an opinion expressed by the Sub-divisional Officer of Rampore Haut to the effect that free recruiting is most pernicious, inasmuch as sons and daughters are enticed away from their homes under false pretences; and it appears that in two instances convictions were obtained for such offences. It is not, however, clear from the report whether the deception in these cases was practised under the cloak of free or of registered emigration. Whatever system is adopted, it behoves the Magistracy and the Police to be accessible to complaints, and careful in investigating accusations. Where the authorities are vigilant and in sympathy with the classes from which emigrants come, flagrant abuses can hardly remain unpunished.

Manufacture and mines.

7. The manufacture of silk continues to decline owing to low prices and the inferior quality of the cocoons. It is to be hoped that the interest aroused in England by the Indian Silk Courts at the Indo-Colonial Exhibition may have some effect in stimulating this languishing industry. Tusser silk is an exception to the general rule: there is now a steady demand in Europe for cloth manufactured from tusser cocoons, and large importations of the cocoons are made from Chota Nagpore into the chief centres of the industry in Burdwan, Bankoora, and Beerbhoom. The jute industry is still in a depressed state; two mills were closed during the year, and there was a considerable falling off in the outturn from those which remained open. The two cotton mills in the Howrah district yielded a better outturn than in 1884-85. The year was unfavourable for indigo, but there was no marked change in the yield of the manufactured dye. The shell-lac industry, which has its centre at Sonamukhi in Bankoora, where there are some 75 factories, continued fairly brisk during the year, but owing to reduced prices the outturn showed a slight falling off. The manufacture of brass and bell metal utensils progressed actively in Burdwan, Beerbhoom and Bankoora; but in Midnapore and Hooghly this business was very dull. Some specimens of the fine mats made in Midnapore were sent to the Indo-Colonial Exhibition. The Ranigunge pottery works turned out a smaller value of products than in 1884-85, owing mainly to the stoppage of Government works. There was a slight falling off in production at the Government Iron Works at Burrakar, and private firms also complain of a falling business. The Stone Company at Burrakar have removed their head quarters to Mirzapore in the North-Western Provinces, in consequence of the exorbitant royalty demanded by the Burrakar zemindars. The output of coal from the Ranigunge mines was slightly less than in the previous year, owing to the depression of the coal trade for the first nine months of 1885-86. There was one serious accident at the mines—a boiler explosion—resulting in the death of eight persons; and the Sub-divisional Officer of Ranigunge reports that several of the managers of the coal companies are agreed as to the necessity of the introduction of the Boiler Act. If the Commissioner agrees in this view, the matter should be made the subject of a special report.

Trade and Commerce.

8. In Burdwan the exports of rice more than doubled, and in Beerbhoom they nearly trebled, those of the previous year, an additional proof, if any were required, of the short duration of the period of distress in these districts. Even Bankoora, which imported rice early in the year, exported before the year closed to meet the demand in the flooded districts The lime trade of Ranigunge suffered from a severe depression, and the Bankoora trade in shell-lac and hides and horns shows a considerable falling off. The traffic carried by the Midnapore Canals continued to decline in value as the following statement shows:—

Year.	Imports.		Total Traffic.
	Quantity.	Value.	Quantity.	Value.
	Mds.	Rs.	Mds.	Rs.
1883-84	17,65,011	1,02,96,931	62,45,007	2,15,95,803
1884-85	17,33,117	1,02,79,675	55,97,659	1,87,59,853
1885-86	15,36,020	80,96,939	59,38,123	1,65,78,547

As regards imports, the Tarkessur Railway is said to have diverted much of the traffic that formerly passed through Oolooberia, but no satisfactory explanation is furnished of the remarkable decrease in the value of exports.

Public feeling and the Press.

9. The districts of Burdwan and Hooghly are to a great extent metropolitan, and in them the Hindus who have received an English education share in the opinions and feelings freely expressed in Calcutta by members of their class. The Commissioner states that—"A very noticeable feature is the extent to which the educated natives are learning to combine and form themselves into local associations for the purpose of discussing public questions and of representing their grievances to the authorities. Mr. Toynbee, the Collector of Hooghly, one of the most advanced districts in Bengal, says that a noteworthy sign of the time is the number of societies and associations which are springing up all over the country, and the increase of the 'agitate' movement. At present this is controlled by professional agitators and wire pullers, but it may have eventual political results of no mean importance, and therefore requires to be carefully watched." The Commissioner states that the interest taken in the Bengal Tenancy Act, which was at first confined to the upper classes, has extended to the ryots, but he does not give any account of the views entertained by the latter on the subject. He notices that in some parts of Burdwan, Midnapore, and Hooghly tenants withheld payment of rents owing to a misunderstanding between them and their landlords as to the particulars which should be entered in the form of receipt prescribed by the Act. The law upon this subject, though necessarily strict, is very clear, and it is expected that, if the zemindars really tender full and fair receipts according to the form prescribed, ryots will accept them on the estates referred to, as they do generally throughout Bengal. Local Self-Government is reported to have roused attention only among the educated classes, but as, the Commissioner observes, "the District and Local Boards, however, have not yet been formed, it would be premature, therefore, to hazard an opinion as to the extent to which the people will co-operate in the working of the measure." The Income-tax Act, it is said, caused some discontent, as every new tax does, among those who have to pay it. The only local papers are the Education Gazette at Hooghly, the Burdwan Sanjivani at Burdwan, and the Nava Medini at Midnapore. The tone of these journals is moderate and their criticisms generally fair. But newspapers printed elsewhere circulate largely in the Division, particularly among pleaders, Government servants, and school-boys. The Commissioner condemns the tone of some of those publications, which he considers to have at present the bad effect of raising class animosities, while in the future the constant misrepresentations put forward may have consequences still more deplorable.

Model farms.

10. A model farm, 10 acres in area, has been established on the Burdwan Raj estate, near the town of Burdwan, under the supervision of Mr. A. C. Sen, Assistant to the Director of the Agricultural Department, and agricultural experiments are being carried out under the supervision of the same gentleman in five Government estates in Hooghly. The result of these works, so far as they have gone, cannot be gathered in any detail from the Commissioner's report, but will be explained in full in the annual report of the Director of Agriculture.

11. The following statement exhibits the number of cognizable cases reported during the year, the number proved to be false, and the number of true cases in each class in the several districts of the Division as compared with the previous year:—

There was a general decrease in all classes of crime except offences against public tranquillity; and the number of true cognizable cases fell from 14,626 to 12,877. The increase of 22 1 per cent. in offences coming under class I (against the State, public tranquillity, &c), which is not noticed by the Commissioner, appears to be accounted for by marked increases under the heads of rioting and resistance to the authority of public servants. This will be further noticed when the Annual Police Report of the Province comes under consideration. No clearly satisfactory reasons are alleged for the decrease under other heads. The conduct of the police is reported to have been "pretty good," but the number of punishments, both judicial and departmental, was larger than in the previous year.

Civil Justice.

12. The following statement compares the number and value of the suits instituted in 1884 and 1885 respectively:—

Class of suits.	1884.		1885.
	Number.	Value.	Number.	Value.
		Rs.		Rs.
For money or moveables	31,613	29,54,170	32,090	36,16,972
Rent suits	31,042	16,19,376	33,282	16,03,033
Title and other suits	5,902	35,04,530	5,840	21,01,850

The most noteworthy fact is an increase of 2,240 in the number of rent suits instituted, accompanied by a slight fall in the value of such suits. What is probably the true explanation of this is supplied by the Magistrate of Midnapore, viz., that a large number of rent suits were instituted under the old law shortly before the Tenancy Act came into operation, in order to avoid possible difficulties under the new Act.

Land and Land Revenue.

13. The percentage of collections of land revenue on total demand rose from 85·8 to 93 82, but the improvement is only apparent, and is due to the accidental circumstance that Rs. 8,00,000 due from the Burdwan Raj estate remained unpaid on the last kist day of March 1885. This unduly lowered the percentage of current collections for 1884-85, and swelled the percentage of arrear collections for 1885-86. Of all other arrears the collections in the latter year amounted to 82 per cent. of the demand. If this sum of 8 lakhs were excluded from the outstanding balance for 1884-85, there would be an increase under this head of Rs. 1,73,471, due entirely to short collections in the district of Midnapore, where the large balance was attributable partly to distress in the flooded tracts, and partly to the difficulties with the ryots about the form of rent receipt already adverted to. The collections on account of irrigation amounted to Rs. 1,22,266, against Rs. 1,28,435 in the previous year.

Excise, Stamps and License-tax.

14. The excise revenue amounted to Rs. 9,95,963 against Rs. 10,28,844 in the previous year. A central distillery was opened in Burdwan in July 1885, and the effect of this change will no doubt be made the subject of comment in next year's report, when more time has been afforded for observation. The stamp revenue advanced by 3·3 per cent.—from Rs. 14,84,337 to Rs. 15,35,832. Hooghly (including Howrah) as usual yielded the largest revenue, and accounts for most of the increase, which is attributed to an unusually large number of certificate cases under Act VII (B.C.) of 1880, and of civil suits. Ninety prosecutions under the stamp laws were instituted, and 70 convictions obtained. The figures for 1884-85 were 61 and 37 respectively. The license-tax was collected without difficulty; the demand and collections were slightly in excess of the figures for the preceding year.

Communications.

15. No new lines of railway were opened in the division during the year, and the Commissioner considers that the amount of money spent on the construction of new roads, a little less than Rs. 63,000, was hardly equal to the requirements of the country. "With the growing prosperity of the people," he writes, "the gradual development of commerce and extension of railways, the demand for roads and communications has much increased, and the present road cess funds are not sufficient to keep pace with the demand. The road cess funds will not increase, and the problem which will ere long be presented for solution will be, how fresh roads are to be constructed. In nearly every district the limit has been nearly reached, beyond which the construction of original works cannot be carried. It appears to me that the question of again imposing tolls, at least on all pucca roads, is one that must be faced." The difficulty is one which is much felt in the metropolitan districts, where the demand for roads seems out of proportion to the rental, upon which the road cess is collected. As the Lieutenant-Governor took occasion to tell a large body of zemindars, assembled at the opening of the Tarkessur Railway, the only way in which the continuous demands for new roads can be met is by increasing the rate under which the road cess is levied. In the more remote divisions the fund seems sufficient to meet all reasonable requirements.

Education.

16. Although the number of schools in the division decreased from 10,962 to 10,350, owing to the exclusion from the returns of patshalas having less than 10 pupils, there was a substantial increase in the number of students, which is now 263,187. Special attention was paid to Muhammadan education in Beerbhoom and Midnapore. In the former district Persian and Urdu are taught in the zillah school; in two middle English schools three lower primary scholarships are set apart for Muhammadans, and arrangements have been made to open lower primary schools in purely Muhammadan villages, where no schools at present exist. Midnapore has had a Muhammadan Sub-Inspector since June 1882, and the number of Muhammadan pupils in all schools in the district is steadily increasing. Technical education is attempted at the Bankoora school and at Bishenpore in the same district, but without much success. On the other hand, the Baptist Mission Industrial school in Midnapore appears to be a useful institution. It is gratifying to observe that the Bhimpore Sonthal Normal school was able for the first time to send up Sonthali competitors at the vernacular scholarship examination, of whom two out of four were successful. The statistics of girls' schools are not very clearly given in the report. It appears, however, that, although the number of girls' schools decreased, there was an increase in the number of girls under instruction both at schools reserved exclusively for girls and at mixed schools. The results of the examinations were on the whole successful. It is worthy of note that a Muhammadan girl succeeded in gaining a junior scholarship.

Dispensaries.

17. A new dispensary was opened during the year at Bhuddessur, to be maintained entirely by the Municipality. With some exceptions, the charitable dispensaries throughout the division are said to have been well managed, especially when they have been in the hands of Municipal Commissioners. The Commissioners of the Burdwan and Soory Municipalities deserve special credit for the attention paid by them to the medical institutions under their charge.

Committees.

18. The Commissioner considers that, with certain exceptions which he specifies, the various Committees by which local funds are administered did good work during the year. The elective system is reported to have infused fresh blood into the management of municipal affairs. The Commissioners of the Bally Municipality in particular are noticed for the steady, unobtrusive work they have done.

Post Office.

19. The increased facilities afforded to the public by the Postal Department in recent years for investment and remittance of money and delivery of letters are thoroughly appreciated. The closure of the district savings banks has brought more business to the post office savings banks. The money-order system is now extensively used for payment of Government dues, and the Lieutenant-Governor hopes that it will be possible to extend still further its usefulness in this respect.

Court of Wards.

20. Nineteen estates were under the management of the Court of Wards during the year, the most important of which was the Burdwan Raj, made over to the Court under the will of the late Maharajah at the close of 1884-85. The Commissioner observes with regard to a family dispute which has unfortunately complicated the management of this large estate:—

"During the lifetime of Maharajah Mohtab Chand Bahadur, certain properties were purchased in the name of his wife, the Dowager Maharani, out of the profits of the estate. On the death of the last Maharajah Aftab Chand, the Maharani set up a claim to these estates as her own independent property, and attempted to take possession of them. As the Maharani never had actual possession, never enjoyed the profits of the estates, and could produce no document of any kind to show that the estates had ever been bestowed on her, the Court of Wards have resisted her claim, treated the purchase in her name as a benami transaction of which the history of the family affords many instances. The state of affairs in these properties is most unsatisfactory, and must remain so until some final decision of the question is arrived at by the Board and Government."

The Lieutenant-Governor has long wished to settle this contention, which has its roots in the benami system so repeatedly condemned as obscuring titles, and fomenting litigation. He would be glad to receive any fair proposals for the settlement of the questions at issue by an amicable adjustment; and he has lately authorized an offer to pay from the funds of the estate the reasonable costs of any legal proceedings the Dowager Maharani may wish to take to establish her claim, if she will submit it to the judgment of the Civil Courts.

21. The Commissioner reports that, with a few exceptions, the relations between landlords and tenants have been peaceful and friendly. Among the cases in which there has been a failure in this respect, he instances the levy, by the leaseholder of some villages in Moureshur thana, of an illegal cess of nine annas in the rupee of rent, an exaction which is said to have occasioned the migration of many ryots. It is hoped that under the new law such abuses will cease. Maharani Surnomoyi of Cossimbazar, whose name is a household word for her acts of beneficent charity throughout Bengal, effected improvements in the water-supply of the villages in her Burdwan zemindari, and Rai Radhabullubh Singh Bahadur of Kuchiakole, and Baboo Raghunath Panja of Rajgram, maintain their reputation for liberality and public spirit.

22. Mr. Lowis has administered his division with success. The Commissioner's remarks on the officers serving under him will be communicated to the Appointment Department.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

P. NOLAN,

Offg. Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

RESOLUTION ON THE GENERAL ADMINISTRATION REPORT OF THE BHAGULPORE DIVISION FOR THE YEAR 1885-86.

GENERAL DEPARTMENT—MISCELLANEOUS

Calcutta, the 13th September 1886.

RESOLUTION.

READ—

The General Administration Report of the Bhagulpore Division for 1885-86.

The Lieutenant-Governor records with much regret the death of Mr. G. N. Barlow, who had as Commissioner administered very ably the affairs of this division for a lengthened period. The present report is submitted under circumstances of exceptional disadvantage, inasmuch as the Commissioner, Mr. Alexander, received charge towards the close of the year, and most of the Collectors are also new to their districts These unavoidable changes in the administrative staff, the result of death, of the departure of officers on furlough, and in one instance of promotion, deprive the report of some of the value which attaches to those received from other divisions, particularly in the sections which deal with such matters as the working of committees, the tone of public opinion, and the conduct of zemindars.

Tours.

2. The Commissioner's tour was sufficiently long, but owing to changes in the incumbents of the office it was not conducted on a systematic plan, and was far from complete. There seems reason to doubt whether the tours of Collectors and subdivisional officers in this division were supervised with strictness, so as to ensure that they might be productive of as much public good as possible. Thus it is stated that in Monghyr, while the portion of the district to the south of the Ganges was thoroughly inspected, little was done in the part north of that river; and in Purneah, the Arrareah subdivision was not inspected. The Collector of Monghyr spent only 75 days on tour, the Collector of Purneah only 81, ill-health being assigned in both cases as the cause of failure to observe the prescribed period of 90 days. In Maldah and the Sonthal Pergunnahs, on the other hand, the tours of the district officers were unusually extended: in Maldah the whole tour occupied 132 days, 42 of which were spent by Mr. Marindin, during the rains, in enquiring into the effect of the floods on the crops and the condition of the people; while in the Sonthal Pergunnahs Mr. Forbes was in camp for 181 days. All the subdivisional officers, except two, spent more than the prescribed period of 120 days on tour, and both the exceptions are satisfactorily accounted for. In every district where there was a Joint-Magistrate at head-quarters, he spent some days in camp, and the Magistrate of Bhagulpore was accompanied through a portion of his tour by a young Assistant Magistrate. Mr. Craven, the Senior Deputy Magistrate at the head-quarters of the Sonthal Pergunnahs, was out for 116 days.

Weather and crops

3. The rainfall in all districts in the division was heavier than it has been since 1881-82: it was also very unevenly distributed over the different months of the rainy season, and the excessive fall in August and September was followed by floods in some part of every district. In Monghyr, Bhagulpore, Purneah and Maldah the bhadoi crop suffered more or less; and in some parts of Bhagulpore and Purneah the winter rice crop was also affected. In the southern part of the district of Maldah the bhadoi crop was almost entirely destroyed, and so much distress was occasioned that relief operations had to be set on foot in the month of August 1885. The scarcity was, however, confined to a very limited area. Indeed, it appears that from August to November the price of rice steadily fell from 13 seers to 24 seers per rupee—a fact altogether inconsistent with the existence of any widespread distress. The loss of the bhadoi crop was compensated by a fair average outturn (estimated by the local officer at 14 annas) of winter rice, and an unusually large crop of kalai.

The following table shows the estimate made, in annas, of the yield of the different harvests in the other districts of the division:—

	Monghyr.	Bhagulpore.	Purneah.	Sonthal Pergunnahs.
Bhadoi	12	10	9	12
Aghani	10	10	11	16
Rubbi	14	12	10	20

Public health.

4. Cholera was unusually prevalent throughout the division during 1885-86, and the year was in other respects also an unhealthy one. Deaths from cholera rose from 1,456 to 5,943 in Monghyr, from 1,604 to 6 714 in Bhagulpore, and from 1,584 to 3,946 in Maldah. In Purneah, too, there was a severe epidemic of the disease, but no statistics are given. The death-rates per mille of the population increased as follows:—

	1884-85.	1885-86.
Monghyr	18·5	32·6
Bhagulpore	21 6	31·04
Maldah	19 44	23 25
Sonthal Pergunnahs	15·52	18 43

The figures for Purneah are not given.

As regards Monghyr, the Commissioner writes:—"The death-rate in this district has risen from 18·5 in 1884-85 to 32 6. Some portion, however, of this increase is no doubt due to an improved system of registration of deaths introduced by Major Ramsay." It is, indeed, obvious that the death-rate could never have been in reality as small as the figures given for the year 1884-85 would indicate.

Considerable progress was made in vaccination in Monghyr, owing to the extension of the Act for the prevention of inoculation to the remaining portion of the district. Twenty-five thousand six hundred persons were vaccinated, and the opposition organised last year by the Marwaris having given way, the Compulsory Vaccination Act worked more smoothly in the town of Monghyr. The vaccinators continued their work in the other districts, and the total number of operations performed during the year in the division reached the total of 189,044.

Material condition of the people.

5. The condition of the people, never very satisfactory in the districts of this division south of the Ganges, seems on the whole to have improved during the year under report, and they are slowly but surely recovering from the effects of previous bad seasons. The Officiating Collector of Monghyr observes:—

"The material condition of the people has been better than in preceding years * * *. The condition of the peasantry is improving, economically as well as morally. The construction of roads and railways has put it in the power of the cultivators to dispose of their surplus produce to greater advantage. The condition of the artisan class is improving owing to the greater facilities of communication and the general development of trade. The condition of the landless classes, especially the Dharies, Dome, and Mushars, is bad."

Mr. Wace writes from Bhagulpore:—

"The year began with distress, not amounting to actual want, in those parts of the district most affected by the drought of the previous three years, but the favourable weather early in the rains put heart into the cultivators, gave the labourers plenty of work, and opened more freely the stores of grain throughout the district. Expectations were scarcely realized, but still in the latter part of the year the condition of the people had decidedly improved. The weddings, however, which have been going on have probably left many families as straitened as they were this time last year. The floods of course did considerable damage to houses for many circles within reach of the Ganges, but, as I have said, a bumper rubbi crop has almost compensated for the loss caused by them, except in one respect. The loss of cattle was most serious all through the inundated villages, and the replacing of them has doubtless thrown most of this bumper crop into the hands of the mahajans. The tract of country north of the Mundar hill, up to and including part of the sudder thana, is the poorest part of the district. The crops there this year again have been very poor. Traversing part of it in camp, I was much struck with the contrast between villages there and over the rest of the district I have been developing Mr. D'Oyly's project for serving this tract by a canal, and I shall shortly have occasion to bring its condition prominently to your notice."

The Purneah ryot is proverbially well off as compared with his fellows in neighbouring districts, and the observations of the present Collector bear out his predecessors in this respect. In Maldah the Collector lays great stress on the effect of the partial floods, and concludes that the people are very much poorer than they were three years ago. The Commissioner considers that they are better off than they were last year, and are in a fair way towards recovery from the condition to which they had been reduced by a succession of scanty harvests. In the Sonthal Pergunnahs the great want of the people is means of communication to enable them to dispose advantageously of their produce Considering their disadvantages, they are fairly well off, and Mr. Forbes writes:—

"Comparing the people of the district, class by class, I should say that the Sonthals as a body are better off as agriculturists than any other class in the community. I attribute this to three causes, viz., to their honesty, great industry as husbandmen, and few wants. Their houses are better, more substantially built, and their homesteads are cleaner, and they possess more cattle and till, man for man, more land than any of their neighbours"

Emigration.

6. The annexed statement gives the results of registered emigration during the last three years:—

Districts	1883-84				1884-85				1885-86
	Male.	Female.	Dependents.	Total.	Male	Female	Dependents.	Total	Male	Female	Dependents.	Total.
Monghyr	874	420	780	2,073	894	451	755	2,100	628	369	689	1,686
Bhagulpore	189	59	45	293	368	121	99	588	177	84	79	340
Purneah ...	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
Sonthal Pergunnahs	..	..	..	3,907	906	659	1,137	2,702	696	530	994	2,220

There is also a considerable amount of unregistered or free emigration to the tea gardens of Assam, as to which the officers of the Sonthal Pergunnahs write unfavourably, considering that the recruiters by whom it is promoted should be placed under stricter control. The statements regarding the prevalence of abuses are general, and no specific instances are adduced in support of the assertion. The view of the local officers is not adopted by the Commissioner, and indeed the increasing numbers of voluntary emigrations would seem to indicate that the system is popular, and that the coolies leave their homes to better themselves.

Prices of food and labour.

7. The prices of the two principal food-grains for the past three years are shown in the following statement:—

Districts	1883-84.		1884-85		1885-86.
	Rice per rupee	Wheat per rupee.	Rice per rupee	Wheat per rupee.	Rice per rupee	Wheat per rupee
Monghyr	18 13	14 7	12 15	20 0	13 15	10 9
Bhagulpore	16 1	16 0	14 11	18 13	12 11	17 15
Purneah	16 7	16 8	14 13	16 12	16 8	17 13
Maldah	15 9	18 4	14 4	19 11	18 8	18 3
Sonthal Pergunnahs	19 11	14 9	15 3	15 3	17 11	16 1

The marked differences between Monghyr and Bhagulpore and the rest of the division are no doubt to be accounted for by the superior means of disposing of agricultural produce in these two districts. Prices were on the whole much lower than in the previous year owing to fair winter crops and prospects of a good rubbi harvest. Wages of labour remained steady throughout the year.

Agricultural experiments

8. The cultivation of maize, murwa and jowar, introduced into Purneah by Mr. Weekes during the previous year, is reported to be gradually increasing. The present Collector reports:—"Now-a-days crops of it are to be found almost in every village and every ryot's house, though the amount raised by individual ryots seems still small." Some valuable experiments in the cultivation of wheat have, according to Mr. Finucane's recent wheat report, been made by Mr. Hossein, Assistant to the Director of Agriculture at Bhagulpore. They show that Buxar wheat can be grown with success at Bhagulpore, and the Chamber of Commerce has reported that the grain of Mr. Hossein's crop is worth 6 annas a maund more than the grain hitherto locally produced. Buxar wheat is pronounced by the same authority to be the best wheat in India, and if it can be extensively grown in Bhagulpore, it will be a very important addition to the staples of that district.

Manufactures and mines.

9. The outturn of indigo diminished in Bhagulpore and Monghyr, but for the loss thereby occasioned compensation was in part made by an enhancement in the price of the manufactured article. The Commissioner reports that there are signs of a revival of indigo cultivation in Maldah The silk industry of this district is in a state of decay, and the Commissioner places the tussur and bafta industry of Bhagulpore in the same category. This would at first sight appear inconsistent with the present brisk European demand for tussur, but the Lieutenant-Governor understands that this demand is largely supplied by French manufacturers, who import tussur silk in the raw state and weave it into cloths in France. The manufacture of bidri work in Purneah is said to be gradually dying out.

The Commissioner writes:—

"The Deoghur copper mine is still in an experimental stage. Only two coal mines in the Government estate of the Damin-i-Koh were worked during the year.

There are no other mines at work in the division. Copper, talc, coal, antimony, iron, silver and lead are said to abound in the Banka subdivision of the Bhagulpore district, but the zemindars are too greedy and rapacious in their demands, and so deter those who would make experiments, and are too deficient in enterprise and knowledge to undertake anything themselves."

Mr. Ambler, who has successfully worked slate quarries in Monghyr for some years, has started a patent enamelling process by which slates are made up to resemble granites, serpentine marble. Specimens will be in the market in the course of a few months. On the stone quarries in the Sonthal Pergunnahs the Commissioner reports:—

"There is a considerable amount of stone quarrying carried on in the Sonthal Pergunnahs, both along the chord and loop lines. Some of the quarries belong to Government, but the great bulk to private individuals These quarries give employment to considerable number of labourers; but though the wages are high, they do not attract the amount of labour the quarries are capable of absorbing. This is due to the monotonous and severe character of the labour required. The Deputy Commissioner says that many of the quarry farmers with large contracts are willing to employ as many as 4,000 or 5,000 labourers a day, if they could get them."

Trade and commerce.

10. There was a considerable increase in the export of agricultural produce in the districts of Bhagulpore, Monghyr, and the Sonthal Pergunnahs; and in Purneah and Bhagulpore larger imports of European piece-goods are recorded, owing, it is said, to returning prosperity, and to the large number of marriages that took place during the year, which seems to have been regarded as an unusually auspicious one. In Monghyr, however, it is reported that the value of European piece-goods imported fell off from Rs. 4,67,062 to Rs. 3,06,453, and the principal reason assigned for this decrease is the successful competition of Indian piece-goods. But there appears to be some mistake about the figures on which this report is based. The East Indian Railway returns for the past three years show the following quantities of European piece-goods imported into the Monghyr district by rail:—

1883-84.	1884-85.	1885-86
Mds.	Mds.	Mds.
24,153	26,743	24,914

The value of the imports in 1885-86, at the ratio of Rs. 72 per maund, the equivalent sanctioned by the Government of India, would thus appear to be Rs 17,93,808; and of this amount Rs 11,11,976 (representing 15,458 maunds) were imported into the town of Monghyr itself. From the Sonthal Pergunnahs comes the same report as has been received from Chota Nagpore, that the bad quality of European piece-goods has made them very unpopular and checked their importation. This is a matter for careful enquiry and report.

The value of tussur and bafta exports from Bhagulpore fell from Rs. 1,91,500 to Rs. 1,13,088.

As usual, the statistics of trade with Nepal are reported to be very incomplete owing to the impossibility of registering the large proportion of the traffic that finds its way across the borders along bye-roads and footpaths.

The new trade in "sabai" grass in the Sonthal Pergunnahs is reported to have "already assumed important dimensions."

Public feeling

11. As in other divisions, the actual working of the Tenancy Act has roused among the cultivators the interest they could not feel in the subject before the practical effect of its provisions became known; and the detail which excites most attention is, in Bhagulpore as elsewhere, the form of rent-receipt. In the Sonthal Pergunnahs the important question of the validity of sales of jote land has been raised, and some excitement has been caused by the decisions of the district courts. The matter is now the subject of special enquiry. Only one newspaper (the Bhagulpore Times) is published in the division. Its tone is said to be moderate.

Police and crime.

12. The total number of cognizable cases varied very slightly from the total of the previous year, the figures being 13,644 to 13,574. Offences against property increased by 420, while there was a falling off of 50 in cases against the person. Six hundred and eight false cases are reported, or 84 less than in the preceding year. In 163 (or 26·8 per cent.) of these cases prosecutions were instituted, with a percentage of convictions of 25·7. Of persons brought to trial, 63·7 per cent. were convicted; but in sessions trials the percentage was only 53·1. Maldah was especially unfortunate in the results of commitment to the sessions.

The conduct of the police in Bhagulpore and Purneah seems to have been unsatisfactory. This matter will call for separate consideration in connection with the annual crime report. The rural police is reported to have worked satisfactorily throughout the Regulation Districts.

Civil justice.

13. The number of civil suits instituted under the three main divisions was as follows:—

		1884	1885
1.	Suits for money or moveables	23,074	19,853
2.	Do. under the rent law	15,164	14,481
3.	Title or other suits	4,088	4,229

Very little attempt is made to explain the fluctuations, owing no doubt to the fact that all the reporting Collectors are new to their districts. The Collector of Purneah should, however, have made some attempt to ascertain the cause of the marked increase (from Rs. 98,952 to Rs. 7,63,065) in the value of title suits in his district. The Commissioner has called upon him to supply the omission.

Land revenue.

14. The current demand on account of land revenue was Rs. 33,62,145, against Rs. 33,61,530 in the previous year. The collections amounted to Rs. 33,25,623. The following table shows the total demand, collections, remissions and balances, current and arrear:—

Districts	Demand	Collection.	Remission	Balance	Percentage of collection.
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs	Rs.
Monghyr	9,10,146	8,67,136	38	42,702	95·3
Bhagulpore	6,10 797	5,85,913	777	24,107	95 92
Purneah	11,86,966	11,64,994	28	22,944	98 06
Maldah	4,43,236	4,17,912	119	25,205	94·3
Sonthal Pergunnahs	2,93,908	2,90,608	510	2,790	98 87

These results, except in Maldah, are satisfactory.

Excise, stamps, license tax.

15. The excise revenue fell from Rs. 11,23,825 to Rs. 10,26,244, a decrease of Rs 97,581, of which Rs. 74,845 represents the loss under the head of country spirits. The decrease was most marked in Bhagulpore (Rs 45,134, of which Rs 38,303 was in country spirits), owing principally to the re-introduction of the sudder distillery system in that district in the course of the year. Some madat and opium shops have been opened in the Monghyr district, and petty vendors are now allowed to purchase opium from the Monghyr treasury in quantities less than a seer. It is hoped by these means to check the opium smuggling which is said to have become prevalent in that district. The realisations of the Stamp Department amounted to Rs 9,74,919 as compared with Rs. 10,10,697 in 1884-85. An increase in postage stamps partially counteracted the considerable falling off of Rs. 57,787 in judicial and court-fee stamps—a necessary corollary of the decrease in civil litigation already noticed. The demand of license tax was Rs. 1,76,900, of which Rs. 1,47,904 was collected, and Rs. 26,877 remitted or refunded. There was a large balance of Rs. 1,368 unrealized at the close of the year in Monghyr The net proceeds of the tax decreased from Rs. 1,58,422 to Rs. 1,50,023.

Communications

16. Some important work was done in Monghyr in the construction of new roads, particularly the "Nepal road" from Monghyr to the Bhagulpore boundary, the "Tirhoot road" from Monghyr to Begumserai, and the feeder road to the Borio railway station. Considerable progress was made in Bhagulpore towards the completion of a feeder road to the Ghogha railway station, which will open a way to the railway from the Godda subdivision of the Sonthal Pergunnahs. No new roads have been begun in Purneah or Maldah, though in the former district the opening of the railway from Purneah to Manihari will require the development of a system of feeder roads, and in Maldah two new lines of road are reported to be urgently necessary. As regards the Sonthal Pergunnahs, the Commissioner reports:—

"Work has been confined generally to the improvement of existing roads A bund with masonry escape channels across a stream at the 87th mile, Suri road, has been made and a causeway across another large stream at the 80th mile.

A very large bund, with masonry escape culverts on either side, is being constructed at the 19th mile, Doomka to Rampore Hât road, where there was a timber bridge which needed renewal.

Much good has been done in this district during the last three years, large reservoirs being formed by the banking up instead of bridging deep and well-defined gorges in the line of roads in rocky or gravel soil, masonry escape channels being provided. Many fine sheets of water have been in this way formed at a less expense than bridges would have cost, and this in a district where every drop of water held up is of use."

In Monghyr, Bhagulpore and the Sonthal Pergunnahs a great many trees were planted out on the roadside, but the Lieutenant-Governor regrets to learn that in the Sonthal Pergunnahs less attention than usual has been paid to the protection of trees already planted, and that they have suffered considerable damage.

Education.

17. The following statement compares the number of schools and pupils for the last two years:—

Class of Institution.		1884-85.		1885-86
		Schools.	Pupils	Schools.	Pupils
Secondary	High English	11	2,050	11	2,080

	Indigenous	55	747	40	543
	Total	7,638	99,977	4,571	86,400

The loss of 3,080 lower primary schools and 14,941 pupils is more apparent than real, being mainly due to the exclusion from the returns of all schools attended by less than 10 pupils. There is at present one boy at school in every 7·4, and one girl in every 126. Every 4·5 square miles have a school, and there are 10·7 pupils in every 1,000 of the population. The results of the departmental examinations were fairly good. Gratifying progress is being made in the education of the aboriginal races of the Sonthal Pergunnahs. There are more schools and pupils for every thousand of the population in that district than in any other. Aborigines form 7·8 per cent. of the whole population of the division, but pupils of those races are 8 3 per cent. of the total number of pupils.

There was a considerable increase in the number of girls under instruction, as the following statement shows:—

Districts.	1884 85.			1885-86.
	Number of girls' schools, aided and unaided	Number of students on the rolls on 31st March 1886.	Number of girls in boys' schools.	Number of girls' schools, aided and unaided.	Number of students on the rolls on 31st March 1886.	Number of girls in boys' schools

Total	118	2,268	2,027	128	3,201	1,875

In the Damin-i-Koh the number of patshalas opened in pursuance of the special scheme sanctioned for this estate was increased from 82 to 99 within one of the whole sanctioned number; and the Lieutenant-Governor is glad to observe that the expenditure incurred (Rs. 4,585) has been well within the estimate, which amounted to Rs. 6,500. There is a difficulty in obtaining qualified gurus in this remote tract, and of 37 who went up for the lower primary scholarship examination only two were able to pass. Progress must necessarily be gradual in so backward a part of the country, but much may be hoped for if a spirit of emulation and a desire to qualify for their work by recognized standards can be instilled into the teachers 18 The remarks on the merits of the officers employed in the division will be considered in the Appointment Department.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

P. NOLAN,

Offg. Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

ALEXANDER PEDLER,

Offg. Meteorological Reporter to the Govt. of Bengal.

METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL SUMMARY OF THE PROVINCE OF BENGAL FOR THE MONTH OF AUGUST 1886.

THE normal meteorological conditions in Bengal during August resemble those of July to a very great extent, and the month is therefore nearly as important as July from a meteorological point of view. The south-west monsoon winds continue to blow over the Province with almost undiminished force during the greater part of August, though towards the end of the month, or commencement of September, wind velocities begin to fall off. The normal rainfall in August is distinctly, though slightly, smaller than in July, and this would tend to show that the monsoon current even in August commences to weaken. The greater part of the rainfall in Bengal in August is undoubtedly brought up by the Bay of Bengal current, but a considerable part of the rainfall at the western stations of the Province is also due to the Bombay branch of the current, which, interacting in these districts with the Bengal branch, causes ascensional air motion, and consequently increased precipitation of rain. The Bay of Bengal branch alone gives the heaviest rainfall to the southern, eastern, and northern districts, but the interaction just mentioned increases the rainfall in the western districts, and thus supplements the action of the Bengal current, and tends to produce greater uniformity of rainfall over the whole Province.

The actual amount of rainfall in August will no doubt depend mainly on the strength and volume of the Bay of Bengal monsoon current, the heaviest rainfalls usually occurring in the eastern and northern districts, and the amount slowly diminishing towards the western districts, but the actual distribution will be affected by the causes which have been discussed in the previous monthly summaries. One of the causes which will produce marked variations from the normal distribution of rainfall will be the formation and passage of areas of barometric depression or small cyclonic storms, which bring large amounts of rain to the districts through which they pass. The formation of such storms is a prominent characteristic of many rainy seasons, though they are to a certain extent absent in others: and as the line of country through which they pass varies very considerably, they are prominent causes in modifying the distribution of rain in particular years. A second cause which modifies the normal distribution of the rainfall is the varying strengths of the two currents, and the amount and position of their interaction, and it will be seen that, if from any cause a larger amount of interaction than usual takes place over the western districts of the Province, the rainfall will be increased by a corresponding amount.

The normal distribution of rainfall during the month is comparatively simple. The two localities in which rainfall is heaviest, and where the amount exceeds 20 inches, include, first, the Chittagong, Noakholly, and Backergunge districts; and second, the Julpigoree, Cooch Behar, and Darjeeling districts. The area which receives a rainfall of between 20 and 15 inches starts from Saugor Island and runs nearly parallel to the sea coast, then turns to the north, runs parallel to the Tipperah and Sylhet hills, and through the centre of the Rungpore district to Kissengunge in the Purneah district. The greater part of Chutia Nagpur, and of South-West, Central, East and North Bengal, receives a rainfall of from 12 to 15 inches, while the greater part of Behar receives only from 10 to 12 inches. The central districts of Behar receive the smallest amounts of rain, the average being generally rather less than 10 inches.

Meteorology of the month.—The main features of interest in the meteorology of the month have been particularly heavy rainfall in North Behar and in East Bengal, rainfall decidedly above the normal in North Bengal and South Behar, and rainfall somewhat below the normal over the remainder of the province. There has also been a decided absence of the small barometric depressions or cyclonic storms which so commonly occur during the rainy season, and in fact there was only one formed, which was generated over the sea area off the Ganjam coast. This depression was of considerable size and intensity at sea, but in its progress over the land it was comparatively feeble, though it had a decidedly long life history, having been formed on the 12th, and only filling up on the 20th.

At the commencement of the month, ordinary monsoon conditions obtained over the whole province, and for the first few days these conditions were those of a strongly developed monsoon current. At this period there was perhaps a rather unusual prominence of westerly and south-westerly winds. The rainfall brought up was particularly heavy in North Bengal and North Behar, and for the first week of August the rainfall in these districts was about three times the normal quantity. Rainfall then began to diminish in quantity, and pressure became unusually high, and with the establishment of the higher pressure there was a tendency of the monsoon current to fall off in strength, and to give less copious rainfall than had previously been the case. These conditions were clearly marked at the close of the first week of August, and a slight and partial break in the rains then became established. The precise date of commencement of any partial break in the rains is always more or less difficult to state; but roughly the break in the rains in South Behar commenced from the 8th, over the northern part of Chutia Nagpur the break commenced about the 9th, while in North Behar and Orissa the break partook more of the nature of lighter and very local showers than of an entire absence of rain. In South-West Bengal also rainfall became rather scanty and decidedly local from the 11th, while in East Bengal the falling off was noticed on about the 12th. At this period also a further feature was developed in the meteorology of the Bay of Bengal which rather intensified the break in the rains. On the 12th instant, pressure became decidedly low off Masulipatam and Coconada, and on the following day a very feeble but distinctly marked cyclonic storm developed off this station, and round this there was the usual cyclonic circulation of winds, so that in the place of the westerly current which had previously prevailed, there was a distinct tendency of the winds in Bengal, and, particularly at the south-westerly stations, to become easterly. At the same time the existence of this feeble storm almost completely stopped anything like a strong monsoon current from passing beyond the northern half of the Bay, and thus the conditions tended to strengthen the break in the rains which had previously been established.

The very feeble depression which had appeared off Masulipatam on the 12th and 13th had, on the 14th, almost disappeared; but on the 15th a rapid fall of pressure took place over the northern part of the Bay, the fall at False Point being no less than 0·13″, while over the remainder of the province the fall of pressure was small. A more pronounced barometic depression was therefore produced, and on this day, with the formation of the depression, a very distinct cyclonic circulation of winds set in over the whole of the northern part of the Bay of Bengal. On the 16th these conditions were intensified, and a very well marked, though more or less feeble cyclonic storm was generated, which on this day was to the south-east of Gopalpore. On the 17th, a rapid fall of pressure took place at Gopalpore, while over the remainder of the province pressure was rising, and the cyclonic storm, which had thus again intensified slowly, was still to the south-east of Gopalpore, and it was evidently approaching the coast to the north of that station. At 10 A.M. of the 18th the centre of the feeble storm was over the coast a little to the north of Gopalpore, and on the afternoon of that day it had advanced inland and was at 4 P.M about 20 miles south of Cuttack, and finally on the 20th, the storm had moved into the Central Provinces and was near Raipur, after which it filled up and disappeared.

The storm, as judged by the land observations, was feeble, though pressure at Cuttack fell on the 18th below 29·4″, and yet the velocity of the cyclonic circulation of winds at the land stations, which accompanied the formation and advance of the storm, was never more than moderate. From the logs of certain vessels navigating the Bay at this time, and which passed near the area occupied by the storm, it would appear that at sea weather was very squally and unsettled, and though perhaps the depression never reached the extent of a fierce storm, very bad weather undoubtedly obtained over this part of the Bay for some days.

The cyclonic circulation of winds, though feeble in force, was of large extent, and practically the whole of Bengal and the northern half of the Bay were thus affected. The monsoon winds thus continued to be deflected and prevented from blowing in their usual course over Bengal, and, except in the districts immediately affected by the formation and advance of the feeble storm, rainfall was light and scanty for the whole of this period, and even in those districts influenced by the depression, the rainfall, though general, was in almost all instances light.

This storm had almost completely kept the monsoon winds from advancing over the greater part of Bengal for nearly the whole of the period from the 12th up to the 20th, but with its disappearance a tolerably steep baric gradient was established over the Bay, and a somewhat powerful monsoon current commenced to flow over Bengal, and it continued to give rainfall almost without a break from about the 23rd to the 27th. The re-commencement of the rains over the province which accompanied this re-setting in of the monsoon current was the main feature in the meteorology of the closing part of the month, and the remaining days were only marked by the usual oscillations of pressure and temperature and the normal intensifying and falling off in strength of the two branches of the monsoon, current, that is, the alternate appearance of westerly and south-westerly winds and of easterly and south-easterly winds, over considerable parts of the province, which gave rise to considerable interaction and generally to heavy rainfall, but as is usual at the end of August and commencement of September there was a distinct tendency to diminution in the strength of the wind current.

The variations of pressure during the month have been large. At the commencement of August pressure was almost normal, but the changes in the early part of the month brought about a general excess, which amounted in some instances to more than a tenth of an inch. This was followed by the slight break in the rains above described, and then by the formation of the barometric depression off the Ganjam Coast. During the existence of the depression, the pressure changes were of course governed by its movement and development, and at this time at all the stations affected by the storm pressure was in defect of the normal by more than a tenth of an inch. Pressure then recovered itself with the filling up of the depression, but even at the end of the month it was distinctly below the normal. For the whole month the mean pressure has consequently not varied very largely from the normal, and the variation is only an excess of 0·012″. In Orissa and at Gya pressure is even below the normal, while, on the other hand, at Durbhunga it has been 0·045″ in excess of the normal.

The variations of temperature have also been large, owing to the fact of there having been two distinct periods of very heavy rainfall, when temperature was decidedly low, separated by a distinct period of comparative absence of rain, when temperature rose somewhat rapidly. These variations have of course to a great extent compensated each other, and thus the mean temperature of the province for the month of August has been in defect of the normal by only three-tenths of a degree. As might be expected from the distribution of the rainfall above indicated, temperature has been in distinct defect of the normal in Behar, where the defect is 0·7° and in East Bengal where it is 1°; while, on the other hand, it is in excess of the normal in Orissa by 0·9° and in South-West Bengal by 0·1°.

The only actual measure of the strength of the monsoon current is obtained by recording the wind velocity. This record is manifestly important, though imperfect, for it only deals with one of two important factors, for the monsoon current may not only vary in velocity, but also in depth or volume, and probably of the two the latter will be the more important factor in influencing the rainfall. The estimation of the second of these factors is impossible, and thus the actual strength of the monsoon current blowing can only be judged by the measurement of the wind velocity. At the end of August the strength of the monsoon undoubtedly begins to diminish, but on the other hand if the wind velocities measured during August are equal to or above the normal, there is a reasonable probability that the strength of the monsoon (i.e, both velocity and depth) is fully equal to the normal, and that the monsoon will continue to blow and to give rain for the normal period. This has been the case during the past month, and during August, except at one or two isolated stations, wind velocities have been quite equal to the normal for the month. In the following table the actual and normal wind velocities are given at the typical coast stations at the head of the Bay, and also at five or six of the most important inland stations of the province. The average of the whole of the eleven stations shows that the actual daily wind velocity has been 127 inches against the normal 126 inches.

There is therefore a reasonable probability that the present monsoon will be of about the usual duration.

Rainfall, as has been stated previously, has been particularly heavy in the northern and eastern districts. The actual distribution during August generally resembles the normal distribution for the month inasmuch as there are the two centres of heavy rainfall, one in the hills of North-Bengal, and the second in South-East Bengal, and from these two centres the rainfall decreases, though rather unequally, until the smallest rainfalls are generally received in the western districts of South Behar and in Chutia Nagpur. The actual rainfall of the province during August has varied from 66·33 inches at Buxar and 46·36 inches at Siliguri to 4·77 inches at Mohanea in the Shahabad district and to 3·39 inches at Contai in the Midnapore district. A peculiar band of comparatively small rainfall stretches quite across the province, commencing in the east at the foot of the Garo Hills, where, in the Rungpore district, it is represented by Bhowanigunge with a rainfall of only 8·72 inches; it then passes through and includes a part of the Dinagepur district as represented by Baloorghat with a rainfall of 7·87 inches; it also takes in part of the Maldah district as represented by Chanchal with a rainfall of 9·85 inches; it then includes part of the Bhagulpore district as represented by Kolgong with a fall of 6 20 inches and Banka with a fall of 9·97 inches. It further takes in part of the Monghyr district, as at Jamui with a fall of 8·53 inches and then merges into the area of general small rainfall which usually exists in the west of the province. In addition to this, there is another area of exceptionally small rainfall in the southern part of the Midnapore district as represented by such stations as Contai 3 39 inches, Devog 4·62 inches, Heria 5 63 inches, and Tumlook 7·6 inches. Further areas of diminished rainfall are to be found in parts of the Jessore, Nuddea, Hooghly, Burdwan, Pooree, Cuttack, Balasore, Mymensingh, and Noakholly districts.

When the rainfall is compared with the normal fall, the province is found to be roughly divided into two parts by a line of normal rainfall starting from the Khoolna district, and which runs, with rather considerable contortion, in a north-westerly direction to the Sarun district. To the south of this line a defective rainfall has been received, and to the north of the line the rainfall has been in most districts in decided excess. In some cases the defective fall has been very considerable, and thus at Contai the defect exceeds 10 inches and over a large area of the Midnapore, Manbhoom, and Singbhoom and part of the Hooghly, Nuddea, Cuttack, and 24-Pergunnahs districts the defect has been 5 inches and upwards. Another area of very considerable defect is in the Shahabad district, where Sasseram has received 5·20 inches and Buxar 4·87 inches less than the normal. In that part of the province which has generally received an excess fall, there are also two or three defective areas, one comprising considerable parts of the South Bhagulpore and Gya districts and another comprising parts of the Dinagepore, Maldah, Rungpore, and Cooch Behar districts. The falls in excess of the normal have in many cases been very large, and thus at Buxar the excess is no less than 22·41 inches and at Siliguri 21·18 inches. A very large part of North Behar and East Bengal has received an excess fall of from 5 to 10 inches, but the general excess of the northern and eastern parts of the province is not larger than from 1 to 3 inches.

The heaviest average rainfall is recorded in East Bengal, where 21·38 inches have fallen on 23·5 days, which is no less than 5·8 inches in excess of the normal. In North Behar there has been an average fall of 17·81 inches on 19·7 days, and the actual fall is the large amount of 6·7 inches in excess of the normal. In North Bengal the average fall has been 15·82 inches on 20·3 days, but the excess rainfall is only 1·77 inches. South Behar has received an average of 12·38 inches of rain on 17·5 days, and the excess fall above the normal is 0·98 inch. In other districts the average falls have been in defect of the normal; thus South-West Bengal has received 11·71 inches on 19 days and the fall is 1·32 inches less than the normal, Chutia Nagpur has received 10·91 inches on 20·9 days and the fall is 2·59 inches less than the normal, and, finally, Orissa has received 9·37 inches of rain on 18·5 days and the actual fall has been 2·06 inches less than the normal. These numbers would give a general average rainfall of 14·19 inches on 19·9 days for the whole province, while the normal rainfall is 12·86 inches on 18·9 days.

The comparison of the actual rainfall of the various great divisions of the province during August with the normal is most accurately shown in the form of a percentage. The figures representing the rainfall for the month calculated in this way are included in the table below under the heading of August. This table really gives a condensed summary of the rainfall statistics of the present year up to date for each meteorological division, the first eight columns giving the actual rainfalls in each division in each month expressed as a percentage of the normal, while the ninth column gives the actual rainfall for the first eight months of the year expressed as a percentage of the rainfall for the period. The figure 100 in this table will therefore represent a normal fall: a number larger than 100 an excess fall; and so on.

Generally speaking, up to the end of August the whole province has received a rainfall about 7 per cent. in excess of the normal; the only districts which have received defective falls are North Bengal where the defect has been only 7 per cent. of the normal and Chutia Nagpur where the defect has been rather large, as it amounts to 17 per cent. of the normal fall.

The following table gives full data for the comparison of the actual and the normal rainfall of the month of August in all districts of the province. The figures are derived from the average and actual rainfall of the rain-recording stations in each district, due allowance or weight being made for the area which each station represents. This gives a more accurate average than the arithmetical means given in the weekly and monthly meteorological tables. The first column gives the normal or average district rainfall as determined from the rainfall observations of the past 15 years. The second column gives the actual district rainfall as determined from the weighted actual rainfalls of the month at the reporting stations in each district. The third column expresses the ratio of the actual district rainfall of the past month to the normal rainfall as a percentage. The fourth column gives the same information as the third column in a slightly different form. It states as a percentage how much the district rainfall of the month varied in excess or defect from the normal rainfall, and is hence the difference between the numbers in the third column and 100 :—

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph, and from observations made at 6h, 10h, 16h and 22h

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables compiled in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

Explanation.—Summary.—The normal means of air pressure and temperature are the arithmetical averages or means of the readings during the same period for the past ten years. The Humidity of the atmosphere is expressed as a percentage, saturated air being represented by 100. A clear sky is denoted by 0 and an overcast sky by 10. The number of stations in the district sending in returns divided by the number of stations. A rainy day is one on which at least hundredth of an inch fell for the week ending Friday, the 10th of September 1886.

CALCUTTA, the 7th September 1886.

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL, FOR THE WEEK ENDING FRIDAY, THE 10TH OF SEPTEMBER 1886.

THE meteorological conditions which obtained at the commencement of the present week were those of a gradually diminishing monsoon current. The distribution of pressure was of the usual kind for the season, as pressure was lowest in the western districts of Behar and comparatively high in the southern and south-eastern districts, but the actual pressures recorded were decidedly above the normal, and in some cases the excess was more than a tenth of an inch. Westerly and south-westerly winds were blowing at almost all stations, and rainfall was almost absent over the western districts, and light and local only over the remainder of the province On the 5th instant the changes of pressure resulted in the formation of a feeble but distinct barometic depression over Central Bengal, the centre of the disturbance on this day appearing to be between Berhampore and Krishnagore. The formation of the depression was accompanied by a very distinct tendency to cyclonic circulation of winds, though on this day the circulation was not very clearly defined, and with the cyclonic circulation of winds rainfall re-commenced. On the following day the area of low pressure had extended partly to East and North Bengal, and partly to Behar, and the cyclonic circulation of winds appeared to be disappearing. On the 7th pressure fell rapidly over the western districts of the province, and Behar and Chutia Nagpur formed a distinct low pressure area, while on the 8th this depression very considerably developed, and on this day there was a very decided barometric depression over Behar, the centre of the depression appearing to be between Patna and Bhagulpore. With the development of the depression, a very distinct cyclonic circulation of winds set in, and the wind directions of almost every station in the province were thus affected. The position of the depression appeared to be almost unchanged on the 9th, and on the 10th it had moved forward slowly in a north-westerly direction, and its centre was to the south-east of Patna. The cyclonic circulation of winds therefore continued, and this practically determined the wind system of the province for the greater part of the week, though throughout the existence of the storm the wind velocities in connection with it were small. It will thus be seen that, with the exception of the first day of the week, the meteorological conditions have been favourable for the production of heavy and continuous rain over a large part of the province, and the only part of the province which has not been exposed to the influence of the barometric depression has been Orissa. Consequently, rainfall has been very heavy in all divisions, except Orissa, and the average fall has been in many cases from two to three times the normal amount.

The mean pressure for the week for the whole of the province has been almost absolutely normal, but the actual mean distribution has been to a great extent dependent on the existence of the barometric depression above described ; and thus while at Gya the mean pressure has been in defect by 0·043″ and at Patna by 0·035″, at False Point on the one side pressure has been in excess by 0·02″, and at Chittagong on the other the excess has been equal to 0·026″.

Temperature owing to the excessive rainfall has been decidedly below the normal, and thus the mean temperature for the week for the whole province has been in defect of the normal by 1·2°. In Orissa temperature has been actually in excess, for here the rainfall has been deficient, but the excess temperature is only small and amounts to 0·2° ; in South-West Bengal the defect also has been small, and it is only half a degree, but in Chutia Nagpur, South Behar, and East Bengal the defect has been between 1° and 2°, and in North Behar it has been as much as 2·3°.

The rainfall during the week has been exceptionally heavy and continuous in all districts except Orissa. In this district rain has only fallen on an average of 3·6 days, and the average amount recorded has been 2·58 inches. This compared with the normal fall for the week in Orissa, and expressed as a percentage, shows the actual fall to have been only 94 per cent. of the normal. In South-West Bengal the average rainfall at all the stations has been 5·34 inches on 4·9 days, and, expressed as a percentage, this fall is 198 per cent. of the normal. In East Bengal rain has fallen on 6·0 days, and the average fall has been 7·35 inches. This represents 216 per cent. of the normal for the period. North Bengal records an average rainfall of no less than 10·18 inches during the week, and rain has fallen on 6·4 days, or practically on every day of the week, and this, compared with the normal, shows a percentage of 834. North Behar has received 7·15 inches on 5·6 days, and the percentage of the normal is 308; while South Behar has received an average fall of 7·64 inches on 6·1 days, and the percentage of the normal is 335. Finally, in Chutia Nagpur an average rainfall of 4·90 inches is reported on 5·4 days, and, compared with the normal fall for the week, the percentage is 192. Taking the seven divisions to have an equal value, it may be said that the whole province has received an average rainfall for the week of 6·45 inches on 5·4 days. Practically speaking, then at all stations rain has fallen on almost every day of the week under review, and on each day an average of nearly an inch of rain has been received. Expressed as a percentage of the normal, the rainfall for the week has been equal to 240 per cent.

Several stations, indeed, have received an average of more than two inches a day throughout the week, or a rainfall of 14 inches and upwards. This has been the case at Joydebpore (Dacca district), Raigunge, in the Dinagepore district, which has received 20·83 inches, Kalimpong (Purneah district), and Bahera (Durbhunga district). Falls of between 10 and 14 inches during the week have been common, and in East Bengal this quantity has been reported by 10 stations, in North Bengal also by 12 stations, by eight stations in North Behar, and by four stations in South Behar Some extraordinary rainfalls are reported on particular days, and thus on the 10th at Bahera, in the Darbhunga district 11·65 inches, and at Sitamarhi (Mozufferpore district) 7·44 inches were reported, while on the 8th Brahmunberiah (Tipperah district) reported 8·85 inches, Joydebpore (Dacca district) 9 67 inches, and on various days many stations reported rainfalls in excess of five inches.

The following table gives the summary of the temperature and rainfall data of each of the seven meteorological divisions of the province for the week ending Friday, the 10th of September 1886 :—

indicating chiefly that the mortality from fever and from the maladies grouped under the head of "Other causes" was higher during the week under notice in comparison with that of the preceding week.

4. Excluding small-pox and injury, the casualties from which were nowhere noticeably large, and fever and bowel-complaints which proved conspicuously fatal only in the Gya town, viz., at the rates of 27·2 and 12·3 per 1,000 of population, respectively, Cholera and "Other causes" caused the greatest loss of life in the following Municipalities :—

N. St. L Carter,
Traffic Manager.

Traffic Manager's Office, Jamalpore, the 9th September 1886.

General Remarks on the fluctuation of principal staples carried over the East Indian Railway during month ended 24th July 1886.

INCREASES

Coal.—This increase was due to improved despatches by Gwalior and Cawnpore for the local mills, and to Foreign Railways.
Cotton.—The small increase in this staple is assignable to ordinary fluctuation of trade
Rice (husked and unhusked).—The improvement under this head is accounted for by better crops last season
Seeds.—The increase in seeds was due to continued active demand attended with good prices in the Calcutta market.
Tobacco.—Improved crops and better demand this year may be accepted as the reasons for the increase in this commodity.

DECREASES

Piece-goods.—This decrease is attributable to excess despatches in May last, and the up-country markets being consequently overstocked.
Wheat.—A sudden lull in the demand for export towards the end of June caused almost a stagnation in the traffic, leading to a heavy decrease in this staple
Gram and pulse.—There was an increase in the weight carried, but a decrease in the earnings owing to the despatches having been for short distances
Other rain and spring crops.—Want of demand in the mofussil trade centres accounts for the decrease in these staples
Lac.—Calcutta prices not being sufficiently good, little business was done, causing a falling off in this article of commerce.
Railway material, Foreign.—The heavy decrease under this head is attributed to the completion of works on State line which were under active construction last year.
Salt.—Reduction in the rates for Liverpool salt and diversion of traffic account for the decrease in this commodity
Sugar.—This is attributable to ordinary fluctuation of trade

CALCUTTA SMALL CAUSE COURT.

NOTICE.

IN accordance with suggestions contained in a report to the High Court, signed by Mr. Justice Wilson and Mr. Justice Trevelyan, on their inspection of the Calcutta Small Cause Court, a new system will, on and after the 28th October 1886, be tried for the purpose of revising the list of cases which come daily into the court.

All summons cases will, on the returnable date of the summons, come before one only of the Judges, who will revise the whole list of the court for each day.

He will go through the list, enter "compromises," make decrees in cases in which the defendant does not appear, give fresh summonses in cases where the summons has not been served, grant necessary postponements, ascertain what causes are defended, and dispose of any cases which, in his judgment, can be disposed of summarily.

This would leave the whole time of the other Judges free for the trial of defended causes. The defended causes will be assigned by the Judge revising the list to the lists of the different Judges on the earliest possible days, and will be adjourned by him to those days. The Judge revising the list will have before him the list of each Judge for each day, so far as already filled up, and will arrange that there should always be a sufficient number of cases, say 25 or 30, on each Judge's list. Each of the other Judges will thus have each day his list of defended cases provided for him. When a second summons has been granted, the case will, on the new return day, come again before the Judge who revises the list for that day.

If under this system a Judge should at any time find his list becoming clogged, he will communicate with the revising Judge, and inform the latter that he must have a day or days left clear to enable him to pull up. Thus if on the first of the month a Judge finds that his lists were getting blocked, and that it will take a day to get them clear, he will tell the revising Judge that this is the case. The latter, when revising the lists of the Judge in question, may see that they are already filled, say up to the 9th: he will leave the 10th blank. The Judge who had found himself blocked, knowing that the 10th would be a clear day, will use his discretion: he will either go on as usual up to the 10th, trusting to clear himself on that day, or will adjourn a sufficient number of cases to that day to enable him to take the other cases as nearly as possible on their proper dates.

ADJOURNMENTS.

No "costs of the day" will be allowed on adjournments.

Nor will adjournments be allowed, even by consent, except upon good cause shown.

By order of the Court,

COURT OF SMALL CAUSES OF CALCUTTA,
The 28th July 1886.

Serial	In hospital register			Cured	Relieved	Discharged otherwise	Died

(2)—Bed-head ticket (form II). This should be written up daily and be filed, so as to preserve a concise history of the case and treatment. It is advisable also to keep a case-book for recording all special or important cases.

(5)—Monthly return of in and out-patients (form V). This should be prepared and submitted to the Civil Surgeon soon after the close of the month, and a copy should be kept in a book for the more easy and accurate preparation of the annual return.

(8)—Monthly bills in detail of establishment, diet, and contingencies (form VI) to be prepared by the medical officer in charge, and examined and countersigned by the Secretary for payment. These bills are then to be sent to the committee or district officer, as the case may be, for payment. In all cases in which there is a grant from Government for establishment, diet or any other charge, the bills of such expenditure are to be kept separate from the private accounts of the charity.

(10)—A monthly statement of accounts (form VII, Parts I and II) to be submitted in duplicate monthly to the Superintendent, who will send one copy to the Magistrate, and keep one for record. A copy of this is to be kept in the bill-book (9), and laid before the committee at their monthly meetings. This rule applies only to dispensaries in classes II and III.

(11)—A daily account or cash-book, showing actual receipts and expenditure in detail. This is to be kept at the dispensary, and the account totalled up at the end of each month.

This is to be prepared by the Civil Surgeon, and to include all medical subordinates serving under him. The report regarding the qualifications of the medical officers is to be treated as confidental, and is not to be filed in the Civil Surgeon's office.

(16)—Annual indent for European medicines and instruments (form XII), to be prepared on the printed form and submitted in duplicate.

(17)—Annual indent for forms to be prepared on the printed form (form XIII), and to be submitted in quadruplicate.

(18)—Annual return (form XIV). The annual return is to be sent through superintendents direct to the Inspector-General of Civil Hospitals. The summary report of the Civil Surgeon should be prepared in accordance with the scheme laid down in Appendix C, and be submitted through the Civil authorities. The medical officer of a dispensary is expected to draw up his report in English, but when he is unable to do so, he should prepare it in the vernacular, and it must be translated in the office of the Superintendent.

(23)—A blank book for records of post-mortem examinations, medico-legal or otherwise, and for keeping detailed records of wounds or other police cases. Instead of a book being kept up, a copy of form No. XVIII, which is to be used when despatching viscera to the Chemical Examiner, may be filed as a record of medico-legal post-mortem examinations.

DIRECTIONS AND EXPLANATIONS.

Col. 2.—The yearly numbers commence with the first new case admitted in the year and proceed regularly through the 12 months, the last number thus recording the number of admissions in the year and corresponding with the total of Col. 12.

N. B.—The monthly aggregate of the daily total numbers treated divided by the number of days in the month gives the "averaged daily sick" required for the monthly Return.

Col. 3.—All the cases remaining at the end of a year are to be entered on the following 1st January by the previous year's yearly number and monthly date. Such cases and cases remaining from day to day, will only re-appear on the date on which their result is recorded. Besides being recorded on the day of its occurrence, the result should also be noted (in red ink or in brackets) opposite the original entry.

Col. 5.—Hindoo, H.; Mussulman, M.; European, Eu., Eurasian, En., Native Christian, N. C.; and other Classes, O. C.

Col. 6.—Male, M.; Female, F.; Children to be recorded as such when under 10 years old.

Col. 9.—Diseases, injuries, operations, &c., are only to be denominated by the name and number specified in the official 'Nomenclature,' and no name is ever to be used that does not appear in that book.

If variety or sub-division is to be recorded, the letter or figure in the book must follow the number of the main disease.

In the column headed "otherwise" a reference number and foot-note are to be used to indicate the mode of discharge—unrelieved, absconded, removed by friends, &c.

When Police cases are admitted into hospital, they should be distinguished by the letter P being placed after the yearly number, as 5 P on the 2nd January.

10. The Collector of the district shall, on or before the 1st October in each year, prepare and transmit to the District Board an estimate of the balance of the District Road Fund to be transferred to the credit of the District Fund during the financial year next ensuing under section 52, clause (1) of the Act.

11. A budget estimate in Form No. II showing the probable receipts and expenditure of the District Fund under all heads during the ensuing financial year, shall be prepared by the Finance Committee constituted under section 55 of the Act, and shall be laid before the District Board at a meeting to be held not later than the 15th November in each year.

12. The budget estimate shall set forth estimated receipts and expenditure under major and minor heads of account only; and shall be accompanied by a schedule in Form No. III for each major head, in which shall be entered full details of the estimated receipts and expenditure under that head, working up to the totals shown under that head in the budget estimate.

13. The budget estimate and schedules shall show (1) the actual receipts and expenditure for the latest year for which the accounts have been closed; (2) the sanctioned estimate, the revised estimate, and six months actuals for the year then current; and (3) the probable receipts and expenditure for the ensuing financial year.

14. In entering the details of receipts and expenditure in the schedule for each major head, the same forms and the same degree of particularity shall be observed as are prescribed for district budget estimate under the orders of Government, the Accountant-General, Bengal, or other competent authority. In preparing the schedule for Public Works under the control and administration of the District Board, the rules and forms prescribed for the budget estimates of District Road Committees under the Cess Act IX (B.C.) of 1880 shall be observed.

15 The budget estimate and schedules shall be accompanied by explanatory notes, explaining any new and important item of receipt or expenditure, and when any new charge requires the sanction of superior authority, by a copy of the order of sanction.

16. The District Board shall never, except with the previous sanction of the Lieutenant-Governor exhaust or exceed its balance in the treasury; and the budget estimates shall be framed so as to provide for an adequate working balance throughout the year, and for an adequate closing balance. The Commissioner shall decide what constitutes an adequate working and closing balance, and his decision shall be final.

17. No change shall be made in the major or minor account headings prescribed by Government, and the same account headings shall be used in all accounts and returns prepared or submitted by the District Board.

The minor heads of account may be subdivided in the Cash Abstract registers as may be found convenient, but all statements and returns shall be compiled by totals of minor heads.

18. In preparing the budget estimate, attention shall be given to the following points:—

(a) What is expected to be paid (under proper sanction) during the year shall be provided for, not the liability falling due within the year.

(b) For fixed charges the detailed estimate shall show the full amount of the sanctioned scale: when it is found by experience that a saving will arise from any cause, a lump deduction may be made.

(o) The number of employés shall be carefully stated in the detailed estimates, and checked; the rate of pay shall be stated, wherever possible, in order to admit of verification of the column of charge.

19. The District Board may at any time, without further sanction, transfer grants from one major head of account to another, and from one minor head to another minor head subordinate to the same major head; provided that the total budget grant is not thereby exceeded. Any such transfer shall be promptly reported for the information of the Commissioner.

20. If at any time during the year the District Board has reason to believe that the budget under any head is likely to be exceeded, and that the excess cannot be met by a reduction under some other head, a supplementary budget estimate shall be prepared with the least possible delay, and submitted through the Magistrate for the orders of the Commissioner in the manner prescribed in sections 47 to 49 of the Act.

If the Board has reason to suppose the receipts under any head are likely to fall materially short of the budget estimate, a revised budget estimate shall be prepared with the least possible delay, and submitted as above for the orders of the Commissioner.

TRANSACTIONS WITH THE TREASURY.

21. The District Fund shall be lodged with the Collector of the district, who shall keep a separate account thereof.

22. The District Board shall not appropriate towards expenditure any moneys received by its servants, but shall immediately send them intact to be credited in the treasury.

23. All money paid into the treasury to credit of the District Fund shall be accompanid by a challan in Form No. IV, bearing the signature or initials of the Chairman. This challan shall show clearly the nature of the remittance, the person on whose account it is made, and the name of the person through whom the payment is made.

24. All moneys remitted to the treasury by the District Board, and all payments made by the treasury on cheques or otherwise on account of the District Board, shall be entered in a pass-book; the pass-book shall remain in the custody of the Chairman, and it shall be sent to the treasury with every remittance, and also on the last working day of every month. On receipt of the pass-book by the treasury officials, the entry of the remittance made (if any) shall be intialled by the Treasury Officer, and then the charge side shall be written up to date, and the book returned at once to the office of the District Board.

The pass-book will be supplied by the treasury. It is not a District Fund account book, but is simply a copy of the account kept in the treasury of the money paid into the credit of, and disbursed on account of the District Board, and must therefore always be written up only by the Government Treasury Department, by whom the original account is kept.

25. No entries or marks shall under any circumstances, be made in the pass-book by any one connected with the District Board's office.

26. At the close of each month the balance in the pass-book shall be struck, the amount written in words, and signed by the Treasury Officer.

27. The Chairman shall examine the pass-book from time to time, and shall immediately call the attention of the Treasury Officer to any discrepancy that may appear between the credits and debits shown in the pass-book, and those shown in the accounts of the District Board's office.

28. When a grant is made to the District Fund from Provincial revenues, either as a general grant-in-aid, or for expenditure on any specific object, the Chairman shall apply to the Treasury Officer to credit the amount of the grant to the District Fund, forwarding a copy of the orders of Government sanctioning the same; and the Treasury Officer shall, on receipt of instructions from the Accountant-General, place the amount of the grant to credit of the District Fund. The credit shall be made by book transfer; no bill or cheque shall be drawn, and no money shall be paid out of the treasury.

29. The balance of the District Road Fund on the last day of each month shall be transferred to the credit of the District Fund on the first day of the following month, and duly entered in the pass-book. The Collector shall send to the Chairman a separate intimation of the amount so transferred.

30. The Treasury Officer shall supply the Chairman, immediately after the close of each month, with a balance certificate in the following form :—

Abstract of District Fund Account for the month of in the Treasury of

PAYMENT OF CLAIMS.

31. For the payment of petty charges, the Chairman shall hold a permanent advance of such amount as the District Board may fix from time to time. Provided that without the sanction of the Commissioner the District Board shall not fix the amount of the permanent advance at more than Rs. 100.

32. The permanent advance shall be recouped as often as may be necessary, and in the manner prescribed for the recoupment of the permanent advance of the District Magistrate and Collector. Provided that the cash for the recoupment of the permanent advance shall be drawn from the treasury by cheque.

33. Payments of not more than Rs. 20 shall be made from the permanent advance. Provided that no charge on account of the salary of any employé of the District Board shall be made otherwise than as prescribed in Rules 34 and 38.

34. All payments exceeding Rs. 20, and all payments on account of salaries of employés of the District Board of whatever amount, shall be made by cheque.

35. Cheque-books will be supplied by the Treasury Officer only, and no other form shall be used. Cheque books and the counterfoils of used cheques shall be kept in the custody of the Chairman.

36. Cheques for sums not exceeding Rs. 100 shall be signed by the Vice-Chairman. Cheques for sums exceeding Rs. 100 shall be signed both by the Chairman and Vice-Chairman. If the Vice-Chairman is absent, or is from any cause incapacitated from signing, the cheque shall be signed by some member of the Finance Committee on behalf of the Vice-Chairman.

37. No cheque shall be signed unless required for immediate delivery to the person to whom the money is to be paid.

38. Every cheque shall be drawn in English in favour of the person to whom the money is actually due. Payment shall not be made to any other person except on production of a written authority from the creditor to receive it on his behalf. This rule does not apply in the case of a cheque issued for a sum of money distributable as pay or wages among a number of District Fund employés, or in recoupment of permanent advance.

39. The amount of every cheque shall be written in words as well as in figures, both on the cheque itself and on the counterfoil, and the counterfoil shall be initialled by the person or persons who sign the cheque. The word "only" shall always be inserted after the amount written in words in the body of the cheque.

40. Every cheque drawn for a sum in excess of Rs. 20 shall bear a receipt stamp of the value of one-anna, and such receipt stamp shall be affixed before the cheque is signed.

41. When a signed cheque is cancelled, it shall be stamped "cancelled" by the Chairman. The cancelled cheque shall be destroyed as soon as the accounts for the month in which the cheque was drawn have been audited. The amount of the cancelled cheque shall be entered as a receipt on the debtor side of the cash-book (Form No. V), and shall be treated as a refund. (See Rules 57 and 58.)

42. Every bill or other claim for payment from the District Fund shall be presented in the first instance to the Accountant, who shall check and examine it, and if it be found correct and in order, shall submit it for orders to the Chairman. If payment of the bill so presented is to be made, an order for the payment shall be endorsed upon it. The order for payment shall run as follows:—"Pay Rupees only (Rs.)," the amount being written in words as well as in figures, and shall be signed by the Chairman.

43. If payment is to be made from the permanent advance, the Chairman shall first cause the bill to be stamped with the words "Paid in cash," and shall then sign an order for payment across the bill, and pay the money from the permanent advance.

44. If payment is to be made by cheque, the Chairman shall cause the bill to be endorsed with the words "Paid by cheque No. "; and shall then sign the endorsement, and cause the cheque to be drawn out, signed and issued.

45. When any payment is made either by cheque, or in cash from the permanent advance, it shall be immediately entered in the accounts of the District Board. In the former case it shall be entered in the cash-book (Form No. V). In the latter case it shall be entered in the permanent advance account (Form No. VI).

46. Every payment made, either in cash or by cheque, shall be covered by a receipt, stamped if necessary, signed by the person to whom the money is due, and to whom it has actually been paid. A receipt signed by another person for the creditor, or with a stamp, is invalid.

47. All bills and vouchers that have been paid by cheque shall be numbered consecutively for the year in order of payment, and shall be pasted in a guard book.

Bills and vouchers that have been paid in cash out of the permanent advance shall be numbered consecutively, and abstracted in a register (Form No. VII) as they are paid. The originals shall be submitted to the Chairman when the permanent advance is being recouped, and the Chairman shall cause them to be destroyed in his presence before issuing the cheque for recoupment of the permanent advance.

CASH-BOOK.

48. The District Fund cash-book shall be kept in Form No. V. The receipt entries in this book shall be made direct from the pass-book in the case of amounts credited direct to the Fund by the Collector of the district. In the case of other receipts, the cash-book shall be posted as soon as any money is received in the District Board's office, irrespective of whether the money is immediately remitted to the treasury or not.

All moneys received by the servants of the District Board shall be remitted at once to the Board's office, and shall not be paid into the treasury direct.

Expenditure shall be entered day by day, as cheques are issued. (See also Rule 45.)

49. The cash-book shall be closed and balanced once a month, and shall be signed by the Chairman. In the event of any cheques issued during a month remaining uncashed by the treasury at the close of the month, there will necessarily be a difference between the balance brought out in the cash-book and that of the treasury pass-book, and of the certificate issued by the Treasury Officer under Rule 30. This difference shall be explained by a note in the last page of the cash-book for the month in the following manner:—

	Rs. A. P.	Rs. A. P.
Balance as per cash-book		5,047 15 6
Add cheques uncashed—
No. 4, dated 10th April 1886 ...	50 0 0
„ 23 „ 21st „ „ ...	40 0 0
		90 0 0

PERMANENT ADVANCE.

50. When the permanent advance is drawn for the first time, or is subsequently recouped, the amount so drawn or recouped shall be charged off at once in the cash-book as soon as the cheque is issued. The amounts so drawn shall be debited to the head "Advances," and posted in the advance ledger (Form No. VIII), and shall remain at the personal debit of the Chairman till they are repaid or accounted for.

51. When it becomes necessary to recoup the permanent advance, the Chairman shall compare the bills and vouchers paid since the last recoupment with the entries in the Abstract Register (Form No. VII), and shall initial the latter. He shall add the total of the latter to the cash in hand, and shall compare the aggregate with the sanctioned amount of the permanent advance; and shall then cause the original bills and vouchers to be destroyed in his presence, and shall issue a cheque for the amount to be recouped.

CASH ABSTRACT REGISTER OF RECEIPTS AND EXPENDITURE.

52. All the entries on the receipt side of the cash-book (Form No. V) shall be posted direct from the cash-book into the cash abstract register of receipts (Form No. IX), and all the entries on the payment side of the cash-book shall be posted into the cash abstract register of expenditure (Form No. X).

The cash abstract registers shall be posted as frequently as may be convenient, but in no case latter than ten days after the close of the month to which the accounts relate.

53. Each item of receipt or payment appearing in the cash book shall be posted separately into the cash abstract registers. Thus, if there be two or three payments on the same day on account of the same head of expenditure, there will similarly be two or three entries under the same head in the cash abstract register; i.e., the separate items appearing in the cash-book, and not the totals of the daily receipts or expenditure for each head, shall be posted into the cash abstract registers.

54. The columns of the cash abstract registers shall be totalled every month, and the totals of the different heads of receipt and expenditure must necessarily be equal to the totals of receipts and payments in the cash-book.

ADJUSTMENTS.

55. At the foot of each month's account in the cash abstract registers of receipts and expenditure (Form Nos. IX and X) two lines are left blank for the purpose of entering therein, and bringing upon the books of the District Fund, the adjustments made during the month.

56. Adjustments are transactions which have to be recorded in the monthly and annual account of the District Fund, but which are not actual cash transactions, and which therefore do not in all cases appear in the District Fund cash-book.

57. Adjustments are of four kinds—

(1) The transfer from one head to another of items of receipt or expenditure wrongly classified in the first instance in the cash abstract registers.

(2) The transfer of a sum of money from the head "Advances" to a head of expenditure.

(3) Refunds of revenue received or of expenditure incurred during the current year of account.

(4) The debit to a head of expenditure by credit to "Deposits received" of a sum of money due on a contractor's bill, but not paid, being retained as a security deposit for the due execution of future works.

58. In case (1) the adjusment shall be made by entering the amount in the line for "Adjustments by addition" in the column for the head to which the amount is to be added, and again in red ink in the line for "Adjustments by deduction" in the column for the head from which the amount is to be deducted. Both entries will be made in the cash abstract register of receipts if the amount is to be transferred from one head of revenue to another, and both will be made in the cash abstract register of expenditure if the amount is to be transferred from one head of expenditure to another.

In case (2) the adjustment shall be made by entering the amount in the line for "Adjustments by addition" in the column of the cash abstract register of expenditure for the head to which charges on account of the particular expenditure incurred are to be taken, and in the cash abstract register of receipts in the line for "Adjustments by addition" under the head "Advances recovered." A corresponding entry must of course be made on the receipt or credit side of the advance ledger (Form No. VIII of the person by whom the expenditure was incurred, and to whom the amount adjusted was originally advanced.

In case (3) the adjustment shall be made by entering the amount in the line "Adjustments by deduction" in the column of the cash abstract register of receipts or expenditure for the head to which the amount refunded was originally credited or debited, and in the cash abstract register of expenditure or receipts in the line for "Adjustments by deduction" in the column for "Refunds."

This procedure, however, shall not be followed when the refund made during the month is on account of revenue received during a previous year of account. In this case the amount refunded will remain at the debit of the head "Refunds," and no adjustment shall be made.

In every case of refund of revenue a note of the refund shall be made against the original entry of receipt in the cash-book or other register, so as to guard against a second refund of the same amount being accidentally made.

In case (4) the adjustment shall be made by entering the amount in the cash abstract register of expenditure in the line for "Adjustments by addition" in the column for the head to which the balance of the charges of the bill from which the deduction has been made has been taken, and in the cash abstract register of receipts in the line for "Adjustments by addition" under "Deposits received."

59. Adjustments made by deduction in the cash abstract registers shall always be exhibited in red ink.

MONTHLY, QUARTERLY, AND ANNUAL ACCOUNTS.

60. Registers of monthly receipts and expenditure shall be kept in Forms Nos. XI and XII.

These registers shall be posted month by month from the cash abstract registers of receipts and expenditure respectively.

61. At the close of every month a monthly abstract of receipts and charges extracted by totals of minor heads from the registers of monthly receipts and expenditure (Forms Nos. XI and XII) shall be prepared by the District Board in Form No. XVIII. The memorandum on the first page A of the Form showing the balance of the Fund, will simply be a repetition of the memorandum as explained in Rule 49 in connection with the cash-book, reconciling the balance of the cash-book with the balance of the pass-book.

The account shall be despatched to the Accountant-General, Bengal, not later than the 25th day of the month following that for which the accounts are due.

62. The quarterly and annual accounts prescribed by section 54 of the Act shall be compiled from the registers of monthly receipts and expenditure, and shall be in Forms Nos. XIII and XIV.

63. The quarterly account shall be published by lodging a copy, signed by the members of the Finance Committee and countersigned by both Chairman and Vice-Chairman, in the office of the Magistrate and Collector of the district. The annual account shall be published by lodging a copy, signed and countersigned as above, in the office of the Magistrate and Collector of the district, and by publishing it in the Calcutta Gazette.

64. The quarterly and annual accounts shall be published as provided in the last preceding rule not more than one month after the close of the period to which they respectively relate.

ADVANCES AND DEPOSITS.

65. All moneys advanced to officers or employés of the District Board, or to contractors or other persons (whether on account of the permanent advance or otherwise), shall in the first instance be charged to the head "Advances" in the cash abstract register of expenditure, and entered in the advance ledger (Form No. VIII). A separate account shall be opened in this ledger for each person to whom an advance has been given, and this account shall be credited with the amount of payments made, and of adjustments made in the manner prescribed in the second clause of Rule 58.

66. All sums of money received by way of security deposit from contractors or others, and all sums received which are not the property of the District Fund, and have been placed with the District Board for a temporary purpose only, shall be credited to the head "Deposits received" in the cash abstract register of receipts (Form No. IX), and shall be entered on the credit or receipt side of the deposit ledger (Form No. XV). A separate account shall be opened in this ledger for each person by whom a deposit is made; and this account shall be debited with amount of repayments made, and of adjustments made in the manner prescribed in the last clause of Rule 57.

67. Each separate account in the ledgers of advances and deposits shall be balanced by the Chairman not less often than once a quarter

68. At the close of every month abstract accounts shall be prepared of all advances and deposits given or received, and adjusted during the month, and the balances remaining unadjusted.

The abstract of advances shall be prepared in Form No. XVI, and the abstract of deposits in Form No. XVII.

AUDIT.

69. The Finance Committee appointed under section 55 of the Act shall audit the accounts of the District Fund before they are submitted to the Accountant-General, and shall certify the result and the correctness of the account as audited by them. The certificate shall be given in Form No. XIX.

70. The accounts of the District Fund shall be examined and audited by the Examiner of Local Accounts in Bengal not less often than once in 12 months.

In auditing the accounts, the Examiner shall see that they have been kept and are presented in proper form, that the particular items of receipt and expenditure are stated in sufficient detail, and that the payments are supported by adequate vouchers and authority. He shall ascertain whether all sums received, or which ought to have been received, are brought into account, and shall examine whether the expenditure is in all cases such as might lawfully be made. He shall also reduce such payments and charges as are exorbitant; and shall surcharge moneys not duly accounted for, or lost by negligence, upon the person who ought to account for the same, or whose negligence or improper conduct has caused the loss; and shall disallow and strike out such paymants as are not authorised by law or competent authority.

The reports of such examinations shall be forwarded by the Accountant-General, Bengal, through the Commissioner of the Division to the Chairman of the District Road, and the Chairman shall be bound to remedy any defects or irregularities that may be pointed out by the Accountant-General or the Examiner.

LOCAL BOARDS.

71. The statement of requirements and estimate of probable expenditure to be submitted by the Local Board to the District Board under section 51 of the Act shall be in Form No. II, and shall be accompanied by detailed schedules in Form No. III for each major head of account in respect of which the Local Board has been empowered under section 101 of the Act.

72. The District Board shall forward to each Local Board subordinate to it an extract of so much of the budget estimate of the District Fund, as sanctioned, as relates to the matters under the control and administration of the said Local Board.

73. The District Board shall from time to time make allotments of funds to each Local Board subordinate to it for expenditure on the matters under their control and administration.

74. In making any such allotment, the District Board shall simultaneously send an intimation to the Sudder Treasury Officer, and to the officer in charge of the treasury or sub-treasury at or near the head-quarters of the Local Board concerned.

75. On receipt of such intimation, the officer in charge of the treasury or sub-treasury shall place the amount of the allotment to the credit of the Local Board, and shall enter it on the receipt side of the pass-book of the Local Board. The Local Board shall obtain funds by drawing cheques against the amount of the allotments thus placed at its credit from time to time.

76. Moneys paid into a sub-treasury on account of the District Fund shall not be credited in the pass-book of the Local Board; but shall, when incorporated in the Sudder Treasury account, be credited in the pass-book of the District Board. The Local Board shall send an account of such payments to the District Board not less often than once a month.

77. The Local Board shall keep a cash-book in Form No. V. On the receipt side shall be posted the allotments made by the District Board from time to time; and on the expenditure side shall be posted details of the cheques drawn by the Local Board against the amount of those allotments.

The cash-book shall be closed and balanced on the last day of each month, and signed by the Chairman of the Local Board; and an authenticated copy thereof, supported by vouchers in original, shall be sent within seven days to the Chairman of the District Board.

78. The transactions of the Local Board, as exhibited in the authenticated copy of their cash-book, shall be scrutinized and passed by the Chairman of the District Board, and if found correct shall be at once incorporated in the cash-book and other accounts of the District Board.

(b) that she has the proper complement of officers and seamen;

(c) that provisions, fuel and pure water, over and above what is necessary for the crew, and the other things if any, prescribed for the ship by the rules under this Act, have been placed on board, of the quality prescribed by the rules, properly packed, and sufficient to supply the passengers on board during the voyage which the ship is to make (including such detention in quarantine as may be probable), according to the scale for the time being prescribed by those rules;

[New.]

(d) that the master holds certificate A;

(e) if the ship is to make a short voyage in a season of foul weather, and to carry upper-deck passengers, that she is furnished with substantial bulwarks and a double awning or with other sufficient protection against the weather;

(f) if she is to sail to any port in the Red Sea, that she is propelled principally by steam and, if she is to carry more than one hundred passengers being natives of Asia or Africa, that she has on board a medical officer licensed in accordance with the rules under this Act; and [Act XVII, 1883, s. 2.]

(g) such other particulars, if any, as may be prescribed by those rules.

[Act VIII, 1876, s. 12.]

Grant of certificates.

12. The person by whom certificate A and certificate B are to be granted shall be the officer referred to in section 7.

[Act VIII, 1876, s. 13.]

Substitute for certificate A.

13. Where the master of a ship produces to that officer either of the following certificates, namely—

(a) a valid certificate granted by the Board of Trade or by a British Colonial Government, or

(b) a certificate granted under the authority of a British Indian Government on a date not more than one year before the proposed day of sailing and in force and applicable to the voyage on which the ship is to proceed or the service on which she is about to be employed, [Act VII, 1884, s. 41.]

the officer may, if the particulars required by section 10 are certified thereby, take the certificate as evidence of those particulars, and it shall then be deemed to be a certificate A for the purposes of this Act.

Survey of ship.

14. (1) After receiving the notice required by section 7, the officer aforesaid may, if he thinks fit, cause the ship to be surveyed at the expense of the master or owner by competent surveyors, who shall report to him whether the ship is, in their opinion, seaworthy and properly equipped, fitted and ventilated for the voyage which she is to make:

Provided that he shall not cause a ship holding a certificate mentioned in section 13, clause (a) or clause (b), to be surveyed unless, by reason of the ship having met with damage or having undergone alterations, or on other reasonable ground, he considers it likely that she may be found unseaworthy or not properly equipped, fitted or ventilated for the voyage.

(2) If the officer aforesaid causes a survey to be made of a ship holding any such certificate, and the surveyors report that the ship is seaworthy and properly equipped, fitted and ventilated for the voyage, and that there was no reasonable ground why the officer aforesaid should have thought it likely that she would be found unseaworthy, or not properly equipped, fitted or ventilated for the voyage, the expense of the survey shall be paid by the Local Government.

Discretion as to grant of certificate.

15. (1) The officer authorized to grant a certificate under this Act in respect of a ship shall not grant it unless he is satisfied that she has not on board any cargo likely from its quality, quantity or mode of stowage, to prejudice the health or safety of the passengers.

[Act VIII, 1876, s. 16] (3) In the exercise of that discretion that officer shall be subject to the control of the Local Government, and of any intermediate authority which that Government appoints in this behalf.

16. The master or owner shall post up in a conspicuous part of the ship, so as to be visible to persons on board thereof, a copy of each of the certificates granted under this Act in respect of the ship, and shall keep those copies so posted up in that part during the voyage.

17. If an officer appointed in this behalf by the Local Government is satisfied that a passenger has brought on board a ship for his own use provisions of the quality and in the quantity for the time being prescribed by the rules under this Act, the requirements of this Act respecting the supply of provisions for passengers shall not, except as to the supply of water, apply so far as regards the supply of provisions for that passenger.

Provided that, if the certificate B held by the master of the ship states that provisions, fuel and pure water, over and above what is necessary for the crew, and the other things, if any, prescribed for her by the rules under this Act, have been placed on board, of the quality prescribed by the rules, properly packed, and sufficient to supply the full number of passengers which she is capable of carrying, the master shall not be bound to obtain any such supplementary certificate.

SCHEDULE.

ENACTMENTS REPEALED.

(See section 4.)

Number and year.	Title.	Extent of repeal.
VIII of 1876	Native Passenger Ships Act, 1876.	The whole.
XVII of 1883	Native Passenger Ships Act, 1883.	The whole.
VII of 1884	Indian Steamships Act, 1884.	Section 41.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The law relating to native passenger ships is contained in three enactments, namely, the Native Passenger Ships Act, VIII of 1876, and the amending Acts, XVII of 1883 and VII of 1884. Further amendments having now become necessary, the opportunity has been taken to consolidate the law in a single measure.

2. The amendments are not numerous and will be noticed in the order in which they occur in the Bill—

(a) Section 2.—The primary object of the proviso to sub-section (2) of this section is to confer on the Government of Bombay the power of having certain small vessels engaged in the pilgrim-trade between Western India and the Hedjaz examined with a view to ascertaining whether or not they are seaworthy.

(b) Section 11, clause (c).—The corresponding section of the Act of 1876 requires certificate B to state that provisions, fuel and pure water sufficient for the voyage have been placed on board. It is now proposed to require the certificate to state that the supply is sufficient not only for the voyage but for any probable period of detention in quarantine. On one occasion at least the Government has had to undertake the maintenance of a shipload of pilgrims whose private stock of provisions had become exhausted.

(c) Section 41.—Cases have occurred in which pilgrims who had engaged their passages on the understanding that they would proceed direct to the Hedjaz have been taken on long coasting voyages. The deception thus practised has caused great hardship, pilgrims very frequently taking their own provisions with them (section 18, Act VIII, 1876) and very rarely taking more than is absolutely necessary for their support on the voyage which they believe themselves to have undertaken.

(d) Section 53, sub-section (1), clause (g).—It is proposed, following section 21 of the English Merchant Shipping Act, 1876, to empower the Governor-General in Council to require native passenger ships to be provided with means for making signals of distress and with life-saving apparatus.

(e) Section 53, sub-section (2).—This sub-section is designed to meet a suggestion made by Mr. T M Cook, of the firm of Messrs. Thomas Cook & Son, that the embarkation of pilgrims in the "Roads" at Bombay during the monsoon should be forbidden, and that pilgrim-carrying ships should be required to go into dock for the purpose of receiving their passengers during that season.

(f) Section 54.—This section requires drafts of any rules which it is proposed to make under the Act to be published for the information of the public before the rules are made.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THIS Bill is supplementary to the General Clauses Act, 1868, and is designed, as stated in the preamble, to further shorten the language used in Acts of the Governor-General in Council.

2. In section 3 there is nothing which calls for remark. The definitions in the section will materially shorten the defining clauses of Acts to be hereafter passed.

3. Section 4 is a repetition of a clause very generally employed by the Council of the Governor-General with the object of enabling the executive authorities, in the interval between the passing of an Act and its coming into force, to make preparations for bringing the Act into full operation as soon as it is legally possible to do so.

4. The English rule that a power given to the Crown by statute, having been once exercised, is exhausted and cannot be exercised again, has been applied by Indian Courts to powers conferred by the Indian legislature on the Governor-General in Council and Local Governments. Section 5 of the Bill is intended to remove the inconvenience resulting from the application of that rule.

5. Provisions in the terms of section 6 have been inserted in no fewer than eighteen Acts during the last three or four years and form part of several pending Bills. Their object is to give persons likely to be affected by statutory rules an opportunity, before the rules are made, of making objections and suggestions with respect to any matter which it is proposed to insert in them.

6. Section 7 is taken from the English Municipal Corporations Act, 1882, and is much needed in this country in the case of acts and proceedings to which the Indian Limitation Act, 1877, does not apply.

7. Section 8 is a repetition of a section which is very frequently inserted in Acts of the Governor-General in Council.

8. Clause (1) of section 3 of the General Clauses Act, 1868, has always been construed by the legislature as though the words "wholly or partially" were inserted before the word "repealed." It is proposed by section 9 of the Bill to insert those words in the clause and to require them to be deemed to have been there since the Act of 1868 was passed.

9. Difficulty has been experienced by some Courts in interpreting the word "soldier" in section 14 of the Cantonments Act, III of 1880. With the judgment of the High Court for the North-Western Provinces at I. L. R. 3 All. 214, to the effect that a warrant-officer is not a soldier within that section, the military authorities are content; but they consider it desirable that the word should have a wider meaning than has recently been assigned to it in Oudh, where the Judicial Commissioner has held a private in an European regiment, employed as a telegraph-signaller, not to be a soldier within the meaning of the section.

10. Section 11 of the Bill applies the General Clauses Act, 1868, and the proposed General Clauses Act, 1886, to Regulations to be hereafter made under the Statute 33 Vic., chapter 3.

The 1st September, 1886.

Offg. Secretary to the Government of India.

XIV of 1882.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE object of this Bill is to correct certain minor defects in the Code of Civil Procedure which have been brought to the notice of the Government of India during the four years which have elapsed since the Code was passed, and to amend that portion of the Indian Limitation Act, 1877, which relates to Chapter XXI of the Code.

The several amendments which it is proposed to make in the Code are noticed in the following remarks in the order in which they occur in the Bill :—

Section 3.—The second paragraph of section 8 of the Code, which, as the second paragraph of section 8 of Act X of 1877, was repealed by the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act, XV of 1882, was unintentionally reproduced in Act XIV of 1882. Its place has been taken by section 23 and the second schedule of the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act.

Section 4.—The Explanation which it is proposed to add to section 17 of the Code is suggested by the cases reported at I. L. R. 4 All. 423 and 5 All. 277.

Section 5.—The addition proposed by this section to be made to section 27 of the Code has been suggested by Mr. Justice Plowden of the Punjab Chief Court with reference to the remark of Pontifex J. at I. L. R. 6 Cal. 376.

Section 6.—In proposing to amend section 53 of the Code in the manner set forth in this section, the Government of India has followed the almost unanimous advice of the authorities whom it consulted in its letter Nos. 22-27, dated the 5th January, 1886.

Section 7.—In April, 1882, the Governor-General in Council published a resolution directing that postage-charges on all processes, notices and such other documents as are issued from any Court, and are required to be transmitted by post, should in future be paid by means of service postage-stamps without any additional charge being levied from the parties at whose instance the documents are issued. This resolution practically superseded the section of the Code which it is now proposed to repeal.

Section 8.—The addition to section 137 of the Code has been suggested by Bábú Brajendra Coomar Seal, the District Judge of Bankoora, on the ground of the difficulty which occurs in obtaining affidavits where the applicant under the section is a pardánashin lady.

Section 9.—The object of the amendments proposed to be made in section 141 of the Code is to remove the inconvenience caused to both public officers and private persons by the detention of their records in Civil Courts. The detention of the records of a village-accountant may bring his work to a standstill, and the Hon'ble Mr. Gibbon stated to the Select Committee on the Bengal Tenancy Bill that the inconvenience is quite as great in the case of private as of public records.

Section 10.—The addition to section 216 removes the doubt expressed in the case reported at I. L. R. 7 All. 284.

Section 11.—The circumstances which have suggested clause (a) of the proposed proviso to section 245 of the Code have been described in the Statement of Objects and Reasons of the Debtors Bill. If the clause becomes part of the Code, the Courts will be competent to require the property of a judgment-debtor to be proceeded against before proceedings are taken against his person.

Section 12.—As clause (h) of section 266 is at present drawn, half the salary of a public officer or railway servant in receipt of a monthly salary of twenty-one rupees may be attached. This was not the intention of the legislature.

The primary object of the additional clause (m) which it is proposed to insert in the section is to empower the Council of the Governor of Bombay to proceed with a Bill to declare and amend the law relating to toda girás allowances.

Section 13.—This section has been introduced at the suggestion of the Advocate General of Bombay, its object being to abolish, as regards the seizure of moveable property, the privilege conferred on debtors by the fourth resolution in Semayne's case (Smith's Leading Cases, Vol I). At present that privilege operates mainly to enable debtors to avoid or delay payment of their just debts.

Section 14.—The necessity for the first of the proposed additions to section 320 of the Code is shown by the Full Bench judgment of the High Court for the North-Western Provinces at I. L. R. 5 All. 314. As regards the second addition, it appears to the Government of India that, if the Collector is to act effectively under section 320 and the following sections of the Code, he ought to be subject to the control of the Civil Court only to the extent expressly provided by the Code, being as to the rest subject only to the control of the higher revenue-authorities.

Section 15.—The addition to section 341 has been proposed by the High Court and Government of Madras with reference to cases which have recently occurred in Southern India. In one of these cases the debtor committed to prison was suffering from leprosy in an advanced form, and in the other the prisoner was suffering from illness so serious as in the opinion of the medical officer to render it necessary that he should be immediately released from confinement.

Section 16.—The object of sub-sections (1) to (7) is to assimilate practice under Chapter XX of the Code to that to be prescribed by the proposed Indian Bankruptcy Act.

Sub-section (8) is designed to extend the jurisdiction of subordinate Courts in matters of insolvency. Most cases under Chapter XX are of little importance and may properly be disposed of by munsifs. Where any considerable sum is involved, the District Judge, who will have concurrent jurisdiction, can transfer the case to his own Court.

Sections 17 and 37.—The amendments proposed to be made in Chapter XXI of the Code and in the second schedule to the Indian Limitation Act, 1877, have their origin in the complaints of the hardship caused by the rules of limitation required by that Chapter and schedule to be observed in the substitution of legal representatives in the place of deceased parties to suits and appeals. With respect to these portions of the Code and Limitation Act, Mr. Rattigan, the Government Advocate of the Panjab, by whom the form of the amendments has been suggested, has recorded the following remarks :—

"Considerable hardship has been experienced in the Panjab in the working of those sections of the Civil Procedure Code which deal with the procedure to be followed in the case of the death of a plaintiff or defendant. It is of course perfectly correct and desirable that in the case of the death of one of the litigant parties, where the right to sue or be sued still survives, his legal representatives should be brought on the record, for it is clear that without such a process the suit could not validly proceed. But the hardship consists in requiring the legal representatives to apply for the above purpose within a comparatively short period after the death of the deceased plaintiff or defendant. In the Panjab it frequently happens in land-suits that fifty or a hundred persons are obliged, owing to community of interests, to sue or be sued in the one suit. Now, when such a suit comes up eventually to the Chief Court, a date for hearing is fixed which is generally not less than a year, and, at present, owing to the state of the work in the Court, is not unfrequently eighteen months from the date of filing the appeal. Within this period it often happens that one or more of the litigants is or are carried off by death from disease or violence; the representatives of the deceased, or the appellants, being ignorant agriculturists and not knowing the requirements of the law, take no action to put the representatives on the record, and thus, when the appeal finally comes on for hearing, a pleader on the opposite side takes the objection that no application has been made within the prescribed period, and, this being ascertained to be the fact, the appeal abates, and the unfortunate appellants find themselves deprived of all remedy simply in consequence of a harsh limitation law of which they had no knowledge. It is true that sections 368 and 371 allow the Court to extend the period if the plaintiff (or appellant-plaintiff) adduces sufficient cause for not making the required application within the prescribed period. But in nine cases out of ten of the kind I refer to the only cause assignable is ignorance of the requirements of the law—and this of course cannot be deemed to be 'sufficient' within the meaning of the section. So that the law as it stands at present works considerable hardship, and the hardship is irremediable.

"The question therefore arises, whether it is really necessary to prescribe a hard-and-fast period of limitation within which alone an application to put the legal representatives of a deceased plaintiff or defendant on the record can be entertained.

"For my own part I cannot see that there is any such necessity. If I remember rightly, the rules framed under the English Judicature Acts do not prescribe a period for such applications, and I do not see why the Indian law should do so. It would surely be sufficient to require the legal representatives of a deceased plaintiff or defendant, where the right to sue or be sued survived, to be put on the record; and to leave it to the Court to direct this to be done within such time, and upon such terms as to costs or otherwise, as it thinks fit."

Sub-section (6) of section 15 of the Bill is intended to cure the defect noticed at I. L R. 9 Bom. 56.

Section 18.—This section, which would restore the rule of the Code of 1859, has been proposed by Mr. Justice Straight.

Section 19.—The amendment made in section 386 of the Code by Act XII of 1879, whereby commissions to examine witnesses are required to be issued to a Court or a pleader of a High Court, has caused much inconvenience. In remote parts of the country High Court pleaders do not exist, and in few parts have Judges leisure to close their Courts and travel considerable distances for the purpose of taking the evidence of persons who cannot appear before them. Moreover, in some Provinces the Government maintains a staff of officials among whose duties is the execution of these commissions.

Section 20.—The addition which it is proposed to make to section 396 has been suggested by a gentleman of long standing at the Bombay bar. It is based on the Partition Act, 1868 (31 & 32 Vic., c. 40).

Section 21.—A Government Pleader does not exist in every Court.

Section 22.—It has been doubted whether the Government is empowered by section 432 to appoint a person generally to prosecute and defend all suits which it may from time to time be necessary to prosecute or defend on behalf of a Prince or Chief. It is obviously inconvenient that the Government should be compelled to make a special appointment in the case of each particular suit.

Sections 23 and 25.—The object of these sections is (a) to define more precisely, with reference to the definition of "Government" in section 2 of the Code, by whom consent to the institution of a suit against a Sovereign Prince, ruling Chief, ambassador or envoy may be given; (b) to make the provisions of section 433 more elastic as regards the mode of giving the consent, the cases in which the consent may be given, and the Courts to which the consent may apply; and (c) to prescribe the name in which a Prince or Chief may sue and is to be sued. To effect this last object it is proposed that a Prince or Chief may sue and shall ordinarily be sued in the name of his State.

Section 24.—Section 434 of the Code, under which execution may be had of a decree in a suit between British subjects, is out of place in a chapter relating to Suits by Aliens and by or against Foreign and Native Rulers. The section may conveniently take the place of section 651, which was repealed in March last by Act X of 1886.

Section 26.—The amendments proposed by this section to be made in Chapter XXXI of the Code are those referred to in paragraph 4 of the Statement of Objects and Reasons of the Guardians and Wards Bill. The additions to sections 443 and 445 confer on a guardian who has been appointed, or whose title has been declared, by a Civil Court, Court of Wards or other competent authority, a preferential right to be appointed next friend or guardian for the suit. The amendment of section 461 gives effect to a suggestion by Sir Charles Turner, late Chief Justice of Madras, that, when a Court makes over property to a next friend or guardian for the suit who is not a duly constituted guardian of the property of the minor, it should be required to give such directions as, having regard to the nature of the property, may sufficiently protect it from waste and secure its proper application. Section 464, as amended, saves all local laws relating to suits by or against minors or by or against lunatics or other persons of unsound mind.

Section 27.—There are two reported cases, I. L. R. 8 Cal. 32, and I. L. R. 7 All. 178, with respect to the meaning to be assigned to the words "direct interest" in section 539. It appears that the authority for the insertion of the words "having a direct interest in the trust" is In the matter of the Masters, Governors and Trustees of the Ledford Charity (2 Swanst 470). There certain Jews, some being residents of Bedford and others being members of Dutch and German Synagogues in London, sought to establish the title of Jews to the benefit of the Bedford Charity. It was contended that under Sir Samuel Romilly's Act (52 Geo. III, c. 101), on which section 539 of the Code of Civil Procedure is based, any two or more persons might be petitioners, and therefore the Jews of the London Synagogues, who, though not interested, considered it their duty to support the claims of those of their own persuasion, might be petitioners. With respect to that contention, Lord Eldon, admitting that every person possessing the character of an inhabitant of Bedford and describing himself as an object of the charity was entitled to apply to the Court, asked how he could notice the members of the London Synagogues. "Under Sir Samuel Romilly's Act," he observed, * * * "no person can petition who has not a direct interest in the charity. The Act indeed, authorises 'any two or more persons' to present a petition, but I conceive that those words must be understood to mean persons having an interest. * * * Those who are interested in the fund, provided Sir Samuel Romilly's Act, or the Bedford Charity Act, apply to this case, namely, persons residing in Bedford, are entitled to the summary interference of the Court, but I know not on what ground these gentlemen residing in London can appear as petitioners."

The contention which Lord Eldon overruled was that any one, though he had no interest whatever, might petition. He did, no doubt, remark that "no person can petition who has not a direct interest," but he immediately qualified that remark by adding that the words of the Act "must be understood to mean persons having an interest" The case cannot, therefore, it seems, be taken as an authority for the proposition that the interest of the petitioner must be direct. On the contrary, it may be inferred from the case that an indirect interest would have been deemed sufficient; for, when, in support of the contention that the words "any persons" comprehend persons who may not have an interest, the counsel for the petitioners pointed out that, in the instance of charities for relief of the blind and the poor, it had been the practice to receive the petition of the minister of the parish, Lord Eldon observed that "the petition of the minister of the parish is received, because the poor may be burdensome to him."

It may be doubted whether the case justified the insertion of the word "direct" in the Code, where it assumes a peculiar pointedness and must have some definite meaning assigned to it; and after consultation with the High Courts it has been decided to propose the removal of the word.

Sections 28 and 31.—It is proposed, in accordance with the advice of the great majority of the authorities consulted by the Government of India in its letter of the 5th January last, to declare ex parte decrees to be appealable.

Section 29.—Section 561 has been so amended as to require the objection to be filed in the Appellate Court, and notice of the filing thereof to be given to the appellant, and to admit of the objection being filed and the notice given at any time not less than seven days before the actual date of hearing; and, on the suggestion of Bábú Brajendra Coomar Seal, it applies to the objection and notice under the provisions of section 5 of the Indian Limitation Act, 1877, applicable to an appeal.

Sections 30 and 32.—The amendments proposed to be made by these sections merely correct typographical errors in sections 558 and 585 of the Code.

Section 33.—Section 599, and the portion of section 601 which it is proposed to repeal, were repealed by Act XV of 1877 and were unintentionally reproduced in the Code of 1882.

Section 34.—This section removes a doubt which has been expressed in the cases noted on the margin of the section with respect to the construction to be placed on the word "made" in section 624.

Section 35.—Sub-section (1) of this section has been suggested by the following remarks of the Hon'ble Judges of the High Court at Fort William in their Registrar's reply to the letter of the Government of India of the 5th January last:—

"I am further to request attention to another point in this section (648) which, though not referred to in your letter, seems to the Judges to call for notice. The section gives absolute power to a Court to cause the arrest, through another Court of a person summoned as a witness, and so to cause him to be sent under arrest to the Court issuing the process. The Court to which the warrant is sent has no power of hearing the person arrested or of dealing with any question except the giving of security by him. It seems to the Judges that this is a power far too great to be entrusted at any rate to the subordinate Courts in the Mufussal."

Sub-section (2) has been transferred to this Bill from the Provincial Small Cause Courts Bill, and will be of general application instead of being applicable to Courts of Small Causes only. With respect to the necessity for this addition to section 648, the District Judge of the 24-Parganas writes as follows:—

"Under section 648 I would also beg to point out that a warrant for the arrest of a person residing within the limits of the original jurisdiction must be executed through the High Court. This is very inconvenient to small suitors, and, in a case which occurred in my Court only a few weeks ago, a defendant preferred abandoning all attempts to get a recusant witness into Court to undergoing the trouble and expense of having a warrant of arrest served through the Original Side of the High Court. I would suggest that the procedure prescribed by section 86 should be made applicable to section 648, and that warrants of arrest which are to be served within the original jurisdiction should be executed by the Small Cause Court."

Section 36.—This section is designed to remove a doubt as to the extent of the powers of unchartered High Courts to make rules on matters not strictly connected with procedure.

AMENDMENT OF THE CALCUTTA MUNICIPAL ACT.

HIS HONOR the President said:—Before I call upon the Hon. the Advocate-General to bring forward the motion which stands in his name, I think I had better briefly explain to hon. members the circumstances which have led the Government to intervene in this matter. It was during my visit here in July and August that I had interviews with several gentlemen of the native community, who represented, at the instance, I believe, of the Municipal Commissioners of Calcutta, that discoveries had been made with regard to the adulteration of an article of food which is very commonly consumed among them. I had also an interview with my hon. friend Mr Harrison, who affirmed that statement, and it became a point for consideration whether the Government should interfere in the matter or not. It was shown by analyses which were made of the ghee that, in the opinion of experts, it was not noxious to health, but that it contained substances which were most objectionable and offended most seriously the religious susceptibilities of both Muhammadans and Hindus alike. The offence therefore could not be touched under the Penal Code, and if the Government had to do anything, it must be by fresh legislation. Under these circumstances, I obtained the assistance of the learned the Advocate-General in framing a draft Bill for submission to the Government of India, with a statement of all the facts to which I have now alluded. I had then to leave Calcutta on tour, but before I did so I had several interviews with native gentlemen, some of whom I see present to-day, and it seemed to me from the expression of their views that though they would have preferred that the matter should be taken up by the Legislature at once, they were satisfied with the fact that the Government had announced its intention to bring in a Bill on the subject, and said that the publication of the Bill and giving the widest publicity possible to it would allay the excited feelings of the people for the time. I then left Calcutta, in the belief that it would be sufficient if the Bill was taken up in November. Since then I have received several communications, and hon. members are aware that there is a great excitement and almost a panic upon the question of adulterated ghee. I thought it my duty, therefore, to ask for the sanction of the Government of India to proceed at once to introduce the Bill. The Bill, I believe I am right in saying, has been drafted on the lines of the English law on the subject. It is, as you are all aware, a measure which chiefly concerns the natives: Europeans are not affected by the adulteration of ghee, and the way in which the urgency of the matter has been pressed upon me is that, as ghee is used like water during the great festival of the Durga Pujas, it is very desirable that legislation should be taken in hand, and that the Bill should be passed before those holidays commence. Therefore we have a Bill which the native community very urgently want, and they also want it to pass in a very short time. Since my arrival I have had placed in my hands memorials from the Howrah, Suburban, and Patna Municipalities, from the Muhammadan Association, and from the Health Society, all asking for a Bill of a much wider scope, and also asking for the extension of the provisions of the Bill to the mufassal. It will remain for the discussion which will probably ensue to show what course should be taken with regard to these suggestions; but all I wish to say is that, if the Bill is to be a large one, larger than the one we have before us to-day, and involves questions of technicality or difficulty, it will scarcely be possible to pass that Bill within the short time remaining between this and the commencement of the holidays. But this will be a point which will come up for consideration after my hon. friend makes the motion which I now call on him to move.

The Hon. the Advocate-General said:—I shall briefly introduce the subject on which legislation is sought, and I think a very few words will suffice to impress upon the Council the importance and gravity of the legislative measure which I am about to propose. Ghee which is, or ought to be clarified butter, is, as hon. members are aware, extensively used as an article of human food, and its purity, as it appears to me, is necessary, if not indispensable, to health; but when it is adulterated in the manner I am about to describe, its use is not only deleterious to health, but offensive to the religious sentiments of the inhabitants of India, and destructive of their caste. It has lately been discovered that the ghee sold in the shops and bazars of Calcutta is adulterated with mutton and beef fat, and lard and other greasy and oleaginous matter. This discovery has produced great, I may say wild, excitement, dismay, and disgust among the native inhabitants of Calcutta, both Hindu and Muhammadan, who naturally regard the admixture of such substances as I have mentioned with the pure article as an outrage on their religious tenets and feelings, and justly consider it prejudicial to their health. I have reason to believe that thousands of persons, especially the Marwaris, than whom a more peaceful and industrious race scarcely exists in India, have left off the use of ghee, and are now living upon dry rations, with a view to atone for the sin they have committed, though unconsciously, by using the adulterated article. The richer classes of Muhammadans and Hindus have been subjected to great expense and inconvenience in importing ghee from distant places, while the poorer classes have been obliged to abstain from using an article of food so essential to their daily wants. Under these circumstances, it cannot but appear to the Council that the adulteration of ghee in the manner I have described is an abominable malpractice, an evil of the most serious kind. The evil is of recent birth, but of rapid growth, and deserves to be repressed in a firm and determined manner. It is for that purpose I propose to bring in the present Bill.

But before doing so I will make a few remarks on the existing law, the opinions which prevail on the nature of that law, and the probability of bringing offenders to justice under its provisions Section 272 of the Penal Code, with reference to the adulteration of articles of food or drink, says:—"Whoever adulterates any article of food or drink, so as to make such article noxious as food or drink, intending to sell such article as food or drink, or knowing it to be likely that the same will be sold as food or drink, shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to six months, or with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees, or with both." Section 273 relates to persons who sell articles of food or drink with the knowledge that they are noxious &c., &c. No doubt experts and men of note, whose opinions are entitled to great weight, have declared that the intermixture with ghee of fat and other matter of a similar kind does not make it noxious as food. I shall not attempt to discuss that subject, because it is sufficient for my present purpose to state that, having regard to the delicate frame and constitution of the natives of Bengal, this opinion will scarcely be accepted. I think that ghee adulterated with fat and substances of a like nature cannot but be more difficult of digestion than ghee or clarified butter; and if it be so, it naturally follows that with the classes to which I have referred it must produce, in a great many instances, indigestion, and consequently the ordinary train of maladies incidental to that complaint. If that be so, it may fairly be taken that the adulteration of ghee in the manner I have described is prejudicial and noxious to the health of the people of Bengal. Whether it is so or not in reference to Europeans and the hardier races of India is foreign to my present purpose. The universal native opinion is that adulterated ghee is noxious to health, and it can be scarcely doubted that if a person were indicted in respect of an offence either under section 272 or 273 of the Penal Code before a jury composed of native gentlemen, and it were proved that he had either adulterated ghee with the intention of selling it, or sold or offered for sale adulterated ghee with guilty knowledge, he would be found guilty of the offence charged against him. But however that may be, if we assume that these sections do not apply to the adulteration of ghee with fat, I think that section 415 of the Penal Code, which provides for the offence of cheating, clearly applies. I take it that the palming off of an adulterated or spurious article as genuine upon a person who, if he knew it was adulterated, would not purchase it, is a form of cheating of the highest conceivable order. The terms of the section are sufficiently wide to embrace such an offence as that. Section 415 says: "Whoever by deceiving any person fraudulently or dishonestly induces the person so deceived to deliver any property to any person or to consent that any person shall retain any property, or intentionally induces the person so deceived to do or omit to do anything which he would not do or omit if he were not so deceived, and which act or omission causes or is likely to cause damage or harm to that person in body, mind, reputation, or property, is said to cheat." I think all the elements of cheating as given in that section apply to the case of the sale of adulterated ghee by a person cognizant of such adulteration. There is the fraudulent intent, there is the dishonesty in the making of unlawful gain, and the further element the inducing of a person to do something which that person would not do if he were not so deceived. Therefore, if the earlier sections of the Code to which I have referred do not apply, this section will apply; and I think that if a proper prosecution were instituted before the authorities, there would be a fair and reasonable prospect of conviction. But the above sections do not touch those persons who profess to sell adulterated ghee in ignorance of the fact of adulteration. It is very difficult to believe that a person who sells adulterated ghee does not know that it is adulterated, but at the same time it is difficult to bring home to him the knowledge of adulteration, and it is for this class of cases that the present Bill has been devised, namely, to make all persons who sell adulterated ghee criminally responsible.

The Bill is already in the hands of hon. members, and I will only say briefly that the first clause (section 2) dealt with that subject by amending section 292 of Bengal Act IV of 1876 The other sections, except the last, extend the operation of section 292, and make it more workable than it now is. The law about to be introduced, as His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor has already observed, is adapted from the English Act. It will be novel in its application here, but not so in its conception, and it is hoped that it will have the effect of allaying, to a very great extent, the complaints which have been made by the native community. It will depend on the Executive authorities to set the law in motion, and I have little doubt that, when this Bill is passed and its provisions properly administered, the feelings of dismay and apprehension which now exist will be dissipated. If any one subject above others commends itself to our legislative intelligence and sympathy, it is that which concerns the welfare and happiness of large classes of Her Majesty's subjects. I therefore confidently apply for your sanction to enable me to introduce the Bill.

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon. the Advocate-General then applied to the President to suspend the Rules for the conduct of business to enable him to move that the Bill be read in Council.

The President having suspended the Rules—

The Hon. the Advocate-General moved that the Bill be read in Council.

The Hon. Joy Prokash Lall said:—I am afraid the Bill before the Council will not satisfy the requirements of the grave crisis in which the people now find themselves. Throughout the whole province of Behar there is a strong feeling on the subject. I hold in my hand a telegram which I received only this morning. With His Honor's leave, I shall read it to the Council [read]. The telegram is only typical of the general panic that has seized the population, and it is spreading. What we want, therefore, is not an amendment of the Calcutta Municipality Act of 1876, but a separate and independent Act altogether for the prevention of the adulteration of food in all places under the Bengal Government, where there may exist Municipalities, District and Local Boards, Union Committees, and Punchayets under the Chowkidari Act. To each of such places the Act may be extended with such modifications as may be deemed proper by the Executive Government: and these bodies may be invested with certain powers in respect of the prosecution of offenders.

It may be argued that in places outside Calcutta adequate means do not exist for chemical analyses of adulterated food. This argument is of no weight. In cases of suspected poisoning contents of stomachs are almost daily sent down to Calcutta, and there is no reason why samples of food may not be sent down in the same way.

The legislation on the subject should not only be directed against the prevention of sale or storage of adulterated food, but also against its manufacture, and not only food which is injurious to health should be interdicted, but also food adulterated with articles hurtful or offensive to the religious feelings of the people. It is to be remembered that the main features of the Bill are reproduced from English legislation. But in England there exists no religious prejudice against the use of lard or other animal fat. I regret to find also that a fine of Rs. 100, which the Bill seeks to impose for the sale of adulterated food, is by far too small and too inadequate for the offence, when we remember that a dealer makes thousands of rupees a month by carrying on his obnoxious trade. The maximum fine should be sufficient to act as a real deterrent to every class of dealers, and it should be distinctly provided that persistent repetition of the offence shall be visited with heavier fine.

The Hon. Ban Behari Kapur said:—While admitting the usefulness and necessity of the measure, I regret my inability to accord to it my cordial support on account of its narrowness of scope, which renders it almost feeble in comparison with the magnitude of the evil which the amendment is intended to remove. In order to meet a grievance which is felt throughout India, we must devise a remedy which, if not exactly co-extensive with it in its operation, should at least be reasonably commensurate with its vast extent. Let Calcutta have a protective law by all means, but similar legislative help must be extended to the other parts of Bengal as well

The Act must bring within its scope all the different centres of ghee trade in Bengal. This article, which is as much an essential of life to the Hindu, as meat, butter, and pastry put together are to the European, has of late been placed under a ban, and the sufferings of all classes of the people who use it in almost every one of their dishes can be better imagined than described.

As ghee forms the most essential element in sacrificial and propitiatory homa, this panic of ghee adulteration has caused a deadlock in all important religious and purificatory ceremonies of the Hindus—a people that are more sensitive on points of religion than on any other point of vital importance.

So the evil on account of its magnitude and emergency calls for immediate legislation on the part of the Imperial Council, and I respectfully ask Your Honor to move it to take prompt steps towards the introduction of such a Bill. Your Honor, I hope, will, in the meantime, inaugurate a measure that will govern the whole of Bengal, especially those places in the western parts of it which may be regarded as the fountain head of all adulteration.

The punishment prescribed in the Bill seems to me to be out of all proportion to the enormity of the offence. The practice of adulteration, especially when it is adopted on an extensive scale, is so lucrative that those who thrive by it may well risk the small penalty in case of detection, the chances of which as against those of escape are too slight to have a deterrent effect upon dishonest traders. With respect to the opinion of doctors about the harmless nature of lard, &c., as mixed with gee, I think that, however innocuous they may prove to persons who consume them daily, they are sure to have a deleterious effect upon the Hindus, the majority of whom live upon a strictly vegetable diet, and abstain on principle from all sorts of animal food. Besides, it happens most curiously that the ingredients mixed with ghee are of such a nature as to be repugnant to the religious feelings of the Hindus and the Muhammadans alike; and these two sections of the community, it must be allowed, form the bulk of the Indian population. I beg leave to suggest, in conclusion, that all adulteration of articles that are sold as pure, with ingredients however unobjectionable in themselves, should be made punishable by law, inasmuch as everybody has a right to insist upon having the identical article for which he pays a fair price, and to object to having things which he has not bargained for. It is a clear case of swindling, when having paid for one thing a man is offered quite another.

The contemplated measure, therefore, commends itself to us on economic grounds apart from all considerations of religion and usage.

The Hon. Mr. Anunda Mohun Bose said:—After the remarks which have fallen from my hont. friends to the left, I should have felt considerable reluctance in addressing the Council but for one consideration, namely, that it occurs to me that it is possible, even by immediate legislation, to extend the scope of the measure at any rate to the whole of Municipal Bengal. But before I come to that point, I think it my duty to express the gratitude of the whole community for the readiness with which Your Honor's Government has responded to the appeal which has been made to it, and for the sympathy with which Your Honor has listened to the expressions of a grievance which in some quarters was almost assuming the proportions of a disastrous panic. With regard to what has fallen from my hon. friends as to the desirability of extending the scope of the proposed legislation, I am entirely at one with them, and it seems to me that the anxiety for that legislation will become all the greater in consequence of the passing of this Bill. I need not point out the anomaly of having a matter, which is viewed with the highest moral abhorrence by the whole Hindu and Muhammadan community, and which, if this Bill passes into law, will be legally punishable in Calcutta, yet remaining beyond the reach of law or punishment on the other side of the Circular Road or in Howrah across the Hooghly; and the position of these municipalities will, indeed, be worse after the passing of the Bill, for all the adulterated ghee which now finds its way to Calcutta will readily be passed over to the neighbouring municipalities and their second state will be worse than the first. Has this Council the right by its own action to thrust this evil, to inflict this wrong, on their inhabitants? Therefore, I would ask the Council earnestly to consider whether it may not be possible at once, without taking in within the scope of the Bill the whole of Bengal, to include at least the whole of Municipal Bengal within its operation, and this, I would beg to point out, may be done easily enough. I may mention that I have received intimation from a gentleman of high respectability that even in places so remote as the trade centre of Jhalakathi, in Backergunge, a great deal of adulterated ghee has recently found its way, and I have also received a telegram, similar to that to which reference has already been made, from the People's Association of Behar asking for the extension of the Bill to the mofussil; and this, as well as many other indications, show that the feeling of anxiety in regard to this burning question, though it has naturally found its earliest and strongest expression in Calcutta where the adulteration was first discovered, has already extended and is fast extending into the remote parts of Bengal and Behar, if not into Orissa. By simply altering a few words of the present draft Bill, it will be possible to embrace within its range the whole of Municipal Bengal. Section 251 of the Mofussil Municipal Act III (B C.) of 1884 exactly corresponds with section 292 of the Calcutta Act, and that being so, it seems to me that if instead of reading "for section 292 of Bengal Act IV of 1876" we were simply to add the words "and for section 251 of Bengal Act III of 1884," the rest of the section remaining as it is, we shall be able to bring all the municipalities of Bengal within the scope of this Bill. And if a few similar and very slight alterations be made in the remaining sections of the Bill, there will be no difficulty in at once extending its operation to those places where there is a probability of adulterated ghee or other articles of a similar nature being placed in the market. In those municipalities where the necessary machinery does not exist, the Act will simply be inoperative. I may also draw the attention of the Council to the fact that section 251 of the Bengal Municipal Act finds its place in Part VI of that Act, and therefore it can only apply to those municipalities to which, on the application of the Commissioners and with the consent of the Local Government, the section has been extended, and thus a safeguard will of itself be provided against any apprehension that the Act is to apply to any municipality in which the necessary machinery for working the Act did not exist.

The next point to which I shall refer, and which I throw out simply as a suggestion for the consideration of the Council, is this, namely, whether instead of proceeding on the footing of the English Statute on the subject which is based on purely trade or commercial considerations, it might not be desirable at the present moment to proceed on the basis which is indicated, and, indeed, demanded by public opinion so far as it has expressed itself. The public opinion, which has led to the introduction of the Bill, has been aroused into alarm by the attempt to wound the deepest sentiments, the most cherished religious feelings of the Hindu and Muhammadan communities. Under these circumstances, it may be a matter for consideration whether, while increasing the penalty for adulteration, it might not be desirable, in the present hurried legislation, to provide against only that form of adulteration in which articles exposed for sale are mixed with foreign substances, the presence of which would be calculated to wound the religious feelings of any class of persons, without the fact being notified by the vendor. The Legislature has already separated from the general class of adulterations that special class in which the effect of adulteration is to make the article injurious to health, and has treated it in a very special way. It may be said that in the circumstances of this country there is ample ground for similarly separating and treating as apart and distinct from the rest that class of adulteration the effect of which would be to alarm and wound the religious feelings of the community. In England, of course, the question of adulteration had never presented itself in this particular shape; but in this country, circumstances were different as regards this special aspect of the matter I place this view of the subject, which has been mentioned to me by some Hindu friends, before the Council for its consideration. Should it commend itself to its approval, all that would be necessary will be to alter the drafting of the first section of the Bill by providing to the effect that no person shall sell any article which is adulterated with any substance, the presence of which is likely to wound the religious feelings of any class of persons, without notifying the fact; and in such cases I certainly think the penalty ought to be made more stringent than merely a fine of Rs. 100.

There is another matter to which I wish to refer, namely, that in case the Council should adopt the view that legislation ought to proceed on the basis of the English Statute, or the purely commercial aspect of the question as apart from the religious aspect which has convulsed public opinion here and created the demand for this legislation, it seems to me there is one matter in regard to which there has been an omission, and that relates to that important article of consumption—milk. Section 292B enacts that the Commissioners, or any person authorized by them in that behalf, may, at all reasonable times, enter into and inspect any market, building, shop, stall, or place used for the sale or storage of articles intended for food, and may examine any such articles which may be therein, and, if upon examination such articles or any of them appear to be unfit for food, may seize the same. This is not to apply to that class of cases in connection with the sale of milk where it is delivered at the house in pursuance of a contract entered into with the vendor. The Commissioners would not have the power to inspect, procure, or examine milk thus delivered; and I may draw the attention of the Council to the fact that the English Legislature, after passing the Statute of 1875, 38 and 39 Vic, c. 63, on which the present Bill is based, found it necessary in an amending Act to introduce a special provision (by section 3 of Statute 42 and 43 Vic., c. 30) giving the Medical Health Officer, Inspector, &c., power to procure samples of milk at the places of delivery. I hope the Select Committee to which this Bill will be referred will consider the expediency of extending the operation of section 292B on the basis of the English Statute of 1879, so as to include the important class of cases I have mentioned in connection with milk, an article so conducive to health when pure and yet so dangerous in the communication of disease when improperly dealt with. He drew attention to the provision of the English law in which that special procedure has been found necessary in order that the object of the Legislature might not be defeated.

There is only one other point to which I need refer in this place, viz., to the desirability of a provision to the effect that the burden of proving that an article comes within the exceptions provided in the Bill should be on the vendor himself. That probably is implied, but it would be perhaps better expressly to lay it down, as is done by section 24 of the English Statute of 1875, which provides that when an article comes within any of the exceptions, the burden of proving this shall be on the person who claims that it falls within those exceptions.

With these observations, I will leave the Bill in the hands of the Council.

The Hon. Mr. Irving said:—I notice that the Bill is drawn in general terms, and does not specially refer to the adulteration of ghee, and I think it will be extremely satisfactory if its provisions can be extended, limited of course for the present to Calcutta, so as to deal with all articles used as human food; and while fully sympathizing with our native friends on the subject of the adulteration of ghee, I think that the feeling of the European community as regards the purity of other articles of food should not be lightly set aside, and this seems a fitting opportunity to provide, as far as may be practicable, a check against many extremely noxious and unwholesome practices which are carried on in the preparation of food in this country. It will therefore be very desirable to extend the operation of the Bill to places in which the manufacture or preparation of food is carried on. It is notorious that in our markets there are many practices which are extremely filthy, and which Europeans would be very glad to see amended; and it would be well therefore to put them under regulation. I will not refer at present to the Bill at any length. I merely call attention to these points, and I have no doubt that the Select Committee will take into consideration the memorial which has been sent up by the Calcutta Public Health Society on the subject of this Bill.

The Hon. Mr. Harrison said:—I think it is generally well known that the reason why, in the first instance, this Bill was made applicable in Calcutta was because adulteration was detected in Calcutta, and it was the insufficiency of the Calcutta Act which first attracted attention. When the Health Officer was consulted as to whether the adulteration of ghee in such a manner was noxious to health so as to come under section 292 of the Municipal Act, he gave his opinion that it was not so, and that it would be impossible to obtain a conviction before a Magistrate. At the same time I have little doubt that if Your Honor will give permission, it may be possible in Committee to extend the Bill very much in the manner in which my hon. friend opposite has suggested. Many of the amendments which he has proposed may possibly be found feasible. But the Council and the public ought to recognize that it is essentially necessary that legislation should be deliberate, and we are in this dilemma, either that the measure must be passed substantially as it now stands a Bill of the moderate compass such as we have before us, or, if it is extended, that it should be under consideration for a longer period. I think the public ought to recognize that it is not possible between this and the Durja Pujas to pass an Act of a very comprehensive character, the whole bearings of which should be carefully thought out, and therefore if we are to proceed to legislation immediately the present Bill should be so amended as not to affect its substance. I think also that if we were to recast the Bill on lines merely affecting such adulterations as are offensive to religious feelings, it would cause much disappointment. The speech of the Hon. Mr. Irving shows that the European members of the community will be sorry if the opportunity is lost of making adulteration of all serious descriptions penal, and even the hon. member who proposed to recast the Bill on the religious basis called attention to one of the provisions of the English Act which he wished reproduced, and which would not come under a Bill thus framed. Then, it has been pointed out that this Bill is very short, while the English Statute is a large measure, but it was not intended that in the first instance this Bill should be more than tentative. There was no reason to suppose that the feeling was so strong as it has proved to be, and it was thought that it would be sufficient to pass a small Act, which might be extended as experience indicated. Moreover, some of the provisions of the English Act could not be incorporated in the Bill, inasmuch as they would involve an alteration of the Evidence Act which this Council was not competent to make. For these reasons, in preparing the Bill, only such portions of the English Act were selected in the first instance as would meet the requirements of the case. It was never intended that the few sections which the Bill contains should eventually form the totality of an Adulteration Act in India. All that seemed desirable was that, after some experience had been gained, such other provisions as might be found necessary might be enacted. I think the public should be satisfied if such amendments are made as are feasible consistently with care and deliberation in legislation.

The Hon. the Advocate-General in reply said:—I think the words in section 2 of the Bill are large enough to cover the sale of adultered milk, to which the Hon. Mr. Anunda Mohun Bose referred, and also to offences against the religious feelings and sentiments of the purchaser. The words are "shall sell to the prejudice of the purchaser any article of food which is not of the nature, substance or quality of the article demanded by such purchaser." That section, in point of fact, compels the seller to guarantee the article which he sells. If he sells ghee, it must be "ghee," and if it is adulterated he is liable under the section to a penalty. Then, with regard to the apparent feeling of disappointment which this section has produced in not inflicting a higher penalty than a fine of Rs. 100, I may be allowed to observe that it would be unjust to inflict a larger punishment on a person who has no guilty knowledge of the fact that he is selling an article which does not correspond to the article which is demanded by the purchaser. The sections of the Penal Code to which I have referred extend the penalty to a fine not exceeding Rs. 1,000, with or without rigorous imprisonment not exceeding six months. Those provisions refer to a person who consciously commits the offence; but inasmuch as a person who sells an adulterated article might himself purchase it believing it to be genuine, I should be extremely sorry to see him punished with imprisonment, and I think a fine of Rs. 100 sufficient. Then, section 292B is merely, as I said before, an extension of section 202 of Act IV of 1876 with greater facilities for working, and by providing not only for interference in markets, shops, or stalls, or places for the sale of articles of food, but also in places for the storage of such articles. It may be said that persons of wealth in the ghee trade would not be much injured by the infliction of a penalty of Rs. 100, but I think that a conviction once obtained and known extensively would induce intending purchasers to shun the place of business of the trader convicted, and would thus put a stop to his nefarious trade. This would of itself constitute a severe penalty.

I agree with the hon. member, Mr. Harrison, that this Bill was designed to serve a limited purpose and not to extend to all possible cases. I think, however, that the second section will be found to be very wide, and will fairly apply to the sale of articles of various descriptions.

There is one thing more I want to add. In section 292C, these words occur—"and may impose a penalty not exceeding Rs. 100 upon the owner or person in whose possession the same was found, such person not being merely a carrier or bailee thereof." The word bailee is here used in the same sense as it is used in the Contract Act, which says that "a bailment is the delivery of goods by one person to another for some purpose upon a contract that they shall, when the purpose is accomplished, be returned or otherwise disposed of according to the directions of the person delivering them. The person delivering the goods is called the 'bailor.' The person to whom they are delivered is called the 'bailee'." The moment the goods are delivered to, or left with, a person for the purpose of sale, he becomes the agent for sale, and does not occupy the position of an ordinary bailee as mentioned in the section.

His Honor the President said:—Before putting the motion to the vote I would just remark, in confirmation of what has fallen from my hon. friend, Mr. Harrison, that he has, to a very great extent, expressed what I also feel and partly mentioned in bringing forward the Bill before the Council in its present form. If this Bill is to be extended, it can hardly be passed in the time left to us before the holidays. It has been adopted, as has been more than once expressed, as an experimental measure for a limited area. It is thought that if the mischief which was discovered in Calcutta was checked, it will be checked generally throughout the country. I have not been surprised to hear from the speeches which have been delivered by the hon. native members of the Council that it is thought desirable that the Bill should have a wider scope, that it is too narrow in many of its details, and that the penalties contemplated in it are too light. I also listened not with surprise to the remarks which fell from the Hon. Mr. Irving that the occasion should be taken advantage of to introduce into this Bill measures connected with the general question of the adulteration of food, its storage, supervision and other matters which were of interest to him and to the members of the Health Society. But if all these questions are to be taken up, we cannot pass the Bill in the time which remains to us before the vacation, for I shall, in the first instance, be compelled, as a matter of necessity, to publish the Bill for one month. I could not undertake to pass a Bill of that kind without giving it the fullest publicity and without knowing what people outside the Council; and who are interested in it, have to say; and as I understood that the object of intervention now is to adopt a measure which would become law and meet an urgent necessity before the occurrence of the Puja holidays, I think we cannot travel very much beyond the purpose of the Bill which has been framed by the learned Advocate-General. But I may add that if in Select Committee it can be framed so as to work on the lines suggested by my hon. friend Mr. Ananda Mohun Bose, namely, that the Bill should be worked through municipalities, who should conduct all prosecutions after due and careful enquiry; if such changes are adopted in Select Committee, I shall have no objection to entertaining that proposal. But you will all understand that if there is any larger measure, of necessity we shall then be obliged to postpone its passing at the present meeting. The sanction of the Government of India to immediate legislation has been given on the lines on which the Bill is now framed. We cannot very well go beyond that, though there can be no difficulty in the extension of it on the same lines to other municipalities.

The motion was then put and agreed to.

The Hon. THE ADVOCATE-GENERAL moved that the Bill be referred to a Select Committee, consisting of the following members, with instructions to report in one week:- The Hon. Mr. Garrett; the Hon. Mr. Harrison; the Hon. Rai Jai Prokash Lall Bahadoor; the Hon. Mr. Anunda Mohun Bose, and the mover.

The motion was put and agreed to

The Council then adjourned for a week.

The Report for 1884-85 and the Resolution recorded thereon.

Crops, public health, and material condition of the people.—The Assistant Political Agent has submitted his report through the Political Agent and the Commissioner of the division. The year is said to have been healthy and a fairly prosperous one for the people. The cotton crop was injured by rain, but the rice crop was good, while the outturn of oilseeds in the hills was above the average. The price of common rice rose from Rs. 2-4 per maund in the preceding year to Rs. 2-6, which is said to have been due to a short outturn of joom paddy in some parts of the hills. This rise was advantageous to the cultivators of the plains, as they never purchase, and generally have a surplus for sale. The average price of common rice during the years 1880 to 1884 was only Rs. 1-7 per maund. The wages of labour are very high, being Rs. 14 per mensem for skilled labourers, and Rs. 6-8 for unskilled labourers. The high wages of labour appear to be due to the fact that the people are generally unwilling to serve for hire, unless they can get some service under the State, which gives them exemption from impressment for labour. As regards the material condition of the people, the Assistant Political Agent remarks:—"The unbroken state of freedom from internal disturbance and external oppression, which the country has been enjoying for a series of years, has generated in the minds of the people a sense of security which itself is conducive to their general prosperity. The people are now more settled in their habitation, and more ready to invest their little savings in silver ornaments and brass utensils." Though raids from beyond the frontier and actual internal disturbances have ceased, still it is evident that the internal administration leaves much to be desired. It may be said that there is a "sense of security" compared with the feeling that existed years ago; but Sir Rivers Thompson fears that that sense of absolute security, which is essential for the growth of a people's welfare and prosperity, does not exist in Hill Tipperah, and the remarks of the Assistant Political Agent are hardly in accord with the general tenour of the report, or with specific allegations made in other parts if it. For instance, it is stated that "the chief drawback to immigration is the want of full confidence in the general administration of the State on the part of the people living in the adjacent British districts, from which only immigrants are likely to come." Indeed, the marked contrast between British territory and the hill territory at their lines of contact appears to have forcibly struck both the Agent and his Assistant. On the British side there are stretches of cultivation and a teeming population; on the other side, scrub jungle and a scanty population. On the British side there are numerous large and thriving villages inhabited by the upper classes of the people, but on the hill side there is but one solitary Brahman hamlet, which is said to have been kept up only by the fostering care of the late Subdivisional Officer. Nor is this preference for British rule confined to the upper classes. "The lower orders of the people also," remarks the Assistant Agent, "are not, as a rule, willing to come across the border to live in the Maharajah's territory, which is not a very congenial soil for their growing desire for liberty. The only advantage enjoyed by a resident subject of the State, viz., exemption from liability to pay taxes for cutting forest produce for home consumption, is not a sufficient inducement to any but the helpless." The system of land revenue prevailing in the State also acts as a deterrent in the matter of immigration. No ryot, it is said, can acquire a right of occupancy under any circumstances. Tenant right is almost unknown. The pernicious system of farming is allowed to be carried to an enormous extent, and farmers are selected, not from persons fit by their position and qualities, but from amongst the favourites of the Court, who, as a rule, allow their farms to pass on to the hands of others. For want of permanency of any one's interest in the soil, there is generally a want of good understanding between the cultivators and the actual collectors of revenue—a want which, it is admitted, "is most prejudicial to the cause of immigration." In all these matters, which affect the interests of an agricultural population, there is need for large measures of reform. In the Lieutenant-Governor's opinion, the so-called "growing desire for liberty" is nothing more than a desire to live in peace and security, free from oppression and oppressive taxation. The well being of the people is almost entirely dependent on the character and quality of the administration. Since the close of the year under report Baboo Denonath Sen has been appointed Minister with very full powers delegated to him under a power of administration dated the 6th April 1886. He is evidently anxious to thoroughly reorganize and reform the administration, and the report shows that he has made a fair beginning; but Sir Rivers Thompson would impress on him that retrenchment of expenditure should go hand in hand with measures for increasing the revenue. The Maharajah, under the deed above referred to, has retained in his own hands the power of dealing with all officers drawing more than Rs. 100 per mensem, and it is to be feared that the Manager will experience considerable difficulty in inducing him to curtail expenditure, especially in the direction of getting rid of many useless persons in the employ of the State who render no service whatever to the State. It is too early yet to pronounce any opinion on the probable results of this appointment, but the report for the present year should show that substantial progress has been made, that necessary reforms have been instituted, and that the finances of the State have been placed on a sounder and more satisfactory basis.

2. Trade and Commerce.—The exports are said to have been of the value of about six lakhs of rupees, or less by about Rs. 26,000 than they were in the preceding year. The decrease is stated to be due to the smaller demand for elephants. The chief articles of export are various sorts of forest produce, cotton, til (sesamum orientale), wild elephants, parrots, dug-outs, molasses, and bamboo work. The chief imports are food-grains (except rice), piece-goods, hardware, tobacco, dried fish, sugar, and fancy articles. Cotton is sent to Naraingunge, whence it is forwarded to Calcutta for final shipment to Europe. No accurate statistics are available, but the quantity exported is estimated to have been about 20,000 maunds, or 4,000 maunds less than in the previous year. One hundred and thirty elephants, of the aggregate value of about Rs. 70,000, were exported against 114 in the previous year. Brass manufactures and kerosine oil are pretty largely imported, and umbrellas are said to be slowly finding their way to the interior of the hills. It is said that the export trade of the country might be considerably improved, if there were greater facilities of communication. The rivers by which all forest produce has to be exported are difficult of navigation, the channels being in several places blocked up by snags and other impediments, while their sides are covered with almost impenetrable jungle. Moreover, trade is said to be checked by the petty taxes levied by the State, and the rates of export duty are frequently changed by the farmers without the permission of the administration. The Political Agent states that the Maharajah's new Minister applied for permission to have notices served along the border in British territory that any British subject entering Hill Tipperah, without the permission of the police, would be treated as a trespasser, and that anyone found in the hill territory with forest produce for which he could not account would be treated as a thief. The first request was very properly refused. With regard to the second, the Political Agent has expressed his readiness to publish notices of the tolls due for forest produce, but has stipulated that they must be printed, and must state the places where, and the persons to whom, such dues are to be paid, and that similar notices must be published widely in the hills. This action has the Lieutenant-Governor's approval. At present there is reason to believe that while one set of tolls is sanctioned another is levied, and that attempts to levy the higher tolls lead to disputes along the border. With the exception of the Sonamura sâl reserves, the whole country is an extensive open forest. The splendid sâl forest of the Udaipur division is said to have been looked after as indifferently as heretofore, and the new Minister will do well to organize a proper system of forest conservancy. Twenty thousand trees are said to be fit for cutting now, and it is expected that an average of 10,000 might be cut in each succeeding year. As the forests are within a few miles of the river Gumti, which is the natural outlet for their products, there should be no difficulty in establishing a proper system of extracting the timber. Direct management may possibly not be practicable at present, but in a few years it should be feasible, and then the receipts from the forests would form a very considerable item in the revenues of the State. Hill Tipperah is naturally rich in many ways, but, as regards manufactures, the country is poor. This is due partly to poverty and want of enlightenment, but chiefly to want of due encouragement by the administration. Coal mines have been discovered, and the coal on examination has been found good. Two years ago silver was found in the Lalmai hills (in the district of Tipperah), which belong to the Maharajah; but the cost of getting it was too heavy to make the working profitable. A collection of the raw economic products of the country was made and sent during the year to the Indo-Colonial Exhibition in London, together with a collection of the principal manufactures of the hill people.

8. Revenue administration.—The financial difficulties are said to have been as great as ever owing to the expenditure largely exceeding the income, and to the heavy load of debt by which the State is embarrassed. Owing to these difficulties, not only was it impossible to undertake any reform, but the ordinary expenditure could not be met with any degree of regularity. It is said that in a number of instances useless and unnecessary employés had to be retained in the service merely because the arrears of their salaries and allowances could not be paid, and on several occasions applications were made to the Agency by claimants who could not realise their dues from the State. This very unsatisfactory state of affairs is due almost entirely to the want of firmness on the part of the Maharajah, who encourages an expenditure far beyond the resources of his State. The principal sources of revenue, and the amounts derived therefrom, are as follows:—

		Rs.
1.	Tax on cotton and oilseed	64,351
2.	Tax on forest produce	57,511
3.	Land revenue from plain lands	41,044
4.	Family tax in the hills	21,920
5.	Royalty on elephants caught	14,558
6.	Tolls on the Fenny river	12,190
7.	Stamps and court fees	8,447

All revenue is collected by the officials of the State except the tolls on the Fenny river, which are realised by a British forest officer, and remitted to the Maharajah. No details are given of the expenditure, but the State has an administrative staff at Agurtolla, five Magistrates' Courts (three of which are at subdivisions), four jails, three dispensaries, a police force and five frontier posts guarded during the cold weather. The Assistant Agent estimates that by a careful settlement or khas management of the ghats or toll stations, and by a proper supervision of the cotton and khedda mohals, the revenue of the State may be increased by over a lakh of rupees. The zemindaries in Roshnabad and Sylhet yield from five to six lakhs of rupees, whereas, according to the road cess papers, they should yield more than eight lakhs. The total receipts for the year under report, as furnished by the Durbar, amounted to Rs 2,43,824 against Rs. 2,38,724 in the previous year. The principal increase was Rs. 5,749 under the head of land revenue from the plain lands. The family tax in the hills shows a decrease of Rs. 1,657, said to be due to the reduced condition of the hill people on account of partial failure of their joom crops. The present rate of the export duty on cotton is Rs. 2 per maund, or 40 per cent. ad valorem. As the Assistant Agent remarks, this duty should be reduced according to the state of the market, to which it ought to bear a fixed ratio.

4. Police and crime.—The Police Department, like all other departments of the administration, is said to be in great need of reform. The Assistant Agent thinks there should be an Inspector for each of the divisions of the State, but the Inspectorships of two divisions were abolished during the year. This subject should receive the Minister's attention. There were 652 criminal cases of all kinds against 625 in the previous year. Of these, 269 were investigated by the police. There were 2 cases of murder, 2 of culpable homicide, and 2 of dacoity. The remainder were mostly cases of hurt, assault, theft, mischief, criminal trespass, and bringing false charges. Of 776 persons actually tried, 507 were convicted and 262 acquitted or discharged. The number of cases in which British subjects were concerned rose from 180 to 223. The increase is due partly to the unwillingness of the people in certain parts to pay the forest dues levied by the State, and partly to the working of the rule by which British subjects in Hill Tipperah are debarred from acquiring a right of occupancy—a circumstance which, on the occasion of every renewed settlement of ryotwari holdings in the occupancy of British subjects, is liable to create disturbance, if settlements are made with outsiders in supersession of the old holders. This rule still remains in force, though the Durbar promised to revise it. The new Minister's attention should again be prominently drawn to the subject. Sir Rivers Thompson considers it very desirable that there should be as complete a reciprocity as possible in all matters between Hill Tipperah and the adjoining British districts.

5. Civil Justice.—The total number of suits for disposal was 281 against 287 in the previous year. Only 104 cases were contested, 69 being decreed in favour of the plaintiffs and 35 in favour of the defendants. The aggregate value of the suits was Rs. 14,117-6-10, the total amount decreed being Rs. 6,491-15-5. The total amount of fees realised was Rs. 2,067-12, or about 14 per cent on the amount in litigation. This is nearly twice the percentage of fees levied under the Court-fees Act. There were 83 suits in which British subjects were concerned against 81 in the previous year. They were plaintiffs in 61, defendants in 6, and both plaintiffs and defendants in 16. The Assistant Agent remarks that in the civil courts British subjects appear more as plaintiffs, and in the criminal courts more as defendants.

6. Jails.—There are four jails in the State,—one at Agurtolla itself, and one at each of the subdivisions of Sonamura, Koylashur, and Bilania. At the close of the year they contained 75 prisoners against 87 in the previous year. There were 6 escapes. "The situation of these jails," remarks the Assistant Agent, "which lie within a few paces of British territory, not only facilitates the escape of prisoners, but also tempts them to commit the offence." The Political Agent should ascertain why it has been considered necessary to put heavy shackles on the prisoners in the Agurtolla Jail.

7. Military Force and Frontier matters.—The military force consisted of 273 men of all ranks, of whom 8 are Bengali-Hindus, 13 Christians, 113 Bengali-Mussulmans. It is said that these men belong to the cultivating classes, and make very poor sepoys. The remaining 139, namely, 58 Goorkhas, 11 Assamese, 45 Hindustanis and 25 Tipperahs and Manipuris, are, however, mostly reliable. Under Government orders there should be at least 70 Goorkhas in the frontier guards, and no time should be lost in making up the full number. In January and February there were vague rumours of Lushai movements, which caused some excitement amongst the people of Udaipur. But these rumours, as well as similar rumours from Bilania, turned out to be groundless. The three guard-posts of Dharmanagar, Cherakuti, and Kamalpur in the Koylashur division, the two posts of Udaipur and Eksari in the Udaipur division, and the post of Bilania in the Bilania division, were all duly garrisoned in the winter. Owing to extension of cultivation, the first post has had to be moved forward to an advanced position, about four miles to the south-east of the locality it hitherto occupied. The state of communications continues to be very bad.

8. Education.—The number of schools and pathsalas was the same as in the previous year, namely, 16 for boys and two for girls; but the number of students declined from 470 to 409. The teachers are said to be very irregularly paid, and there are no arrangements for inspection. The highest standards taught in the English and vernacular schools of the State correspond respectively to those fixed for the Minor and Vernacular Scholarship examinations under the Government rules. In order to make the schools more attractive, it has been suggested to the Durbar that the scholarships allowed by the administration should be tenable in schools outside the State. The visit of the Jubraj and the Bara Thakur to Comilla in September 1885 was quite an event in their otherwise uneventful lives. It is a pity, as the Commissioner observes, that want of funds should prevent their travelling and seeing a little more of the world before they have to assume the government of the State.

9. Dispensaries.—There are four dispensaries in the State, in which 4,728 persons received medicines as out-door patients against 4,009 in the previous year. There are no regular arrangements for in-door patients, and this want has been brought to the notice of the Durbar. The prevailing diseases were fever, bowel-complaints, sores, and skin-diseases.

10. Post Office.—There is no regular postal system under the management of the State, and it is said that the hill people are not in need of anything of the kind, as communication by letter is seldom carried on. The administration has special messengers of its own, who are used as dâk-runners when necessary. The only post office is attached to the agency, and continued to work satisfactorily. The value of money-orders issued during the year was Rs. 53,534, and that of insured covers Rs. 10,553, the former showing a decrease of Rs. 11,498, and the latter an increase of Rs. 5,158 as compared with the figures of the previous year. The increase indicates increased trade, while the falling off in money-orders is said to be due to the fact that several marriages in the Rajbari in the previous year occasioned unusually large remittances.

11. Boundary matters.—Some of the masonry pillars between Hill Tipperah and British territory are in a dilapidated condition, while some have been entirely destroyed. On the sites of three of the latter, iron pillars were erected during the year by the Public Works Department. The restoration of the remaining pillars is estimated to cost Rs. 1,165, and the work will, it is expected, be shortly taken in hand. The boundary posts are separated by long distances, and the Assistant Agent states that, as the intervening tracts are covered with jungle, disputes regarding territorial jurisdiction are of frequent occurrence. Some intermediate posts(since replaced by iron pillars) have already been erected by the Subdivisional Officers of Fenny (Noakholly) and Bilania (Hill Tipperah). It is very desirable, in the Lieutenant-Governor's opinion, that this work should be completed. A case of dispute regarding the jurisdiction over certain Tipperah punjis on the Sylhet side has been pending for some time, and the Assam Government have agreed to the proposal for a proper delimitation of the boundary between Hill Tipperah and Sylhet from Chooramun post to Udna post east. It has been arranged that a skilled surveyor should demarcate the boundary in the presence of a representative of the Maharajah, and the Commissioner has been directed to inform the Maharajah accordingly. Another portion of the boundary between Sylhet and Hill Tipperah has been relaid by the Assam Government, and the Maharajah has been informed that this boundary must be respected. It was clearly shown by the Surveyor-General that the boundary marks laid down by Messrs Jones and Davey in 1864, in conjunction with Mr. Campbell, the Maharajah's representative, were not in their proper places, and there were strong reasons for believing that they had been moved further west by the Maharajah's people. Indeed, in one particular instance, namely the Hatipara post, the villagers admitted having removed it.

12. As regards the Maharajah's zemindaries in British territory, the state of affairs is not satisfactory. The relations between the Maharajah's amla and his tenantry in Noakholly are so strained that the Collector is about to recommend a settlement under section 101 of the Tenancy Act. The Lieutenant-Governor agrees with the Commissioner in thinking that such a settlement is needed in the interests of all—landlord and ryots alike. Matters are not quite so bad in Tipperah, but the Collector reports that great difficulty is experienced in realising the cesses, and he proposes to appoint a Cess Collector under section 99 of the Road Cess Act.

13. In the report for 1884-85 it was stated by the Assistant Political Agent that some of the Hill Tipperah liquor shops were so close to British territory as to offer great temptations to the inhabitants of the latter to smuggle; and it was added that the Durbar had been addressed on the subject. The matter is not alluded to in the present report, and the Commissioner should at once see that these shops are removed to a greater distance from the boundary.

14. The report submitted by the Assistant Political Agent, Baboo Umakant Das, is as usual full and interesting, and shows that he is well acquainted with the people and the country and their wants. It is, however, no pleasing duty which devolves upon the Lieutenant-Governor to have to review every year, with disparagement and disapproval, the condition of things in Hill Tipperah. The efforts made here and there to remove defects of administration and to improve the revenues are laudable enough in their place, but they only aggravate the evil which is at the root, if increased revenues are applied to larger extravagances on the part of the head of the State. No administration can be effective for good in the position of things which the present report brings again to notice. The expenditure is considerably in excess of the income. Superfluous establishments are retained, because it is easier to retain them than to pay off the arrears of salaries which are due. Waste and indebtedness are thus perpetuated. In the meantime the country needs development by opening out communications, which are said to be everywhere bad. Schools deteriorate for want of funds to pay the teachers. Trade is restrained by the exaction of imposts, the levy of which is in the hands of not very scrupulous agents at a distance from supervision, and the entire revenue system leaves to farmers, with a temporary interest, the power to extort as much as they can from an impoverished body of cultivators, who have no kind of security in their holdings. If the Maharajah of Hill Tipperah—a State of ancient and distinguished lineage—cannot see his way to an effective reduction of the personal and other expenses at the capital, the Lieutenant-Governor anticipates very little from the exertions of any minister, however energetic and earnest, in the way of real reform. It should be the duty of the Commissioner to impress these views upon His Highness.

ORDER.—Ordered that a copy of this Resolution be forwarded to the Commissioner of the Chittagong Division for information, and for communication to the ex-officio Political Agent.

Ordered also that a copy of the Report and of this Resolution be submitted to the Government of India in the Foreign Department.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

F. B. PEACOCK,

Chief Secretary to the Govt. of Bengal.

BENGAL ECONOMIC AND ART MUSEUM.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT—MISCELLANEOUS (F.).

Calcutta, the 13th September 1886.

RESOLUTION.

READ—

The Progress Report of the Bengal Economic and Art Museum for the year 1885-86.

The year 1884-85 was remarkable in the history of this institution for a complete alteration and wide extension of its scope; and in the year now under review the energies of the management were wisely concentrated on consolidation of the work done in the previous year, rather than on original work in fresh directions. The removal of the Museum from the old premises in Hastings Street to the buildings adjoining the Imperial Museum constructed for the Calcutta International Exhibition of 1883-84 was completed during the year.

2. The courts in which the collections are now arranged are classified as follows:—Artware, Ethnology, Economic, Timber, Industrial. In the first three courts the exhibits have been completely re-arranged and catalogued, and the greater number of them have been correctly labelled. In the Artware Court the specimens are classified in 27 groups, and number altogether 7,949. The most valuable additions during the year were 161 specimens of gold, silver and enamelled jewellery, 127 of which are said to have been collected during the first Yunan expedition of 1868, and 18 samples of Jeypore marble carvings. The smallness of the court, and the want of show-cases, deteriorate greatly from the effect that might be produced by its exhibits, and the Lieutenant-Governor is glad to see that the Committee contemplate measures to remedy these defects. The Imperial Museum handed over during the year a collection of over 3,700 ethnological specimens, and the Ethnology Court of the Bengal Museum now contains over 6,500 exhibits. Some interesting specimens of Naga clothes, arms, &c., were presented during the year. The economic collection was still kept in a temporary shed, where the exhibits were much exposed to climatic influences The Lieutenant-Governor hopes that it will be possible before long to secure more sheltered accommodation for this Court. Two hundred and eighty-eight new specimens were added during the year to the 18,242 specimens of economic products exhibited in the previous year.

3. In the Timber Court the specimens were carefully arranged, classified, and labelled during the first five months of the year, and formed a valuable collection for reference to any student of the subject of Indian timbers. In August, however, the whole collection was made over to Mr. F. B. Manson, of the Forest Department, for the construction of an arch formed of Indian timber to be exhibited in the Indo-Colonial London Exhibition; and since then the Timber Court has remained closed. At the close of the London Exhibition the arch will probably be returned to the Museum, and will form a very handsome exhibit; but, as pointed out in the Committee's Report, it will, in that case, be necessary to make a new collection of timber for scientific study.

4. The Industrial Court contains most of the presentations made to the Bengal Government by British and Foreign exhibitors at the Calcutta International Exhibition. No systematic arrangement is at present possible, and the collection is too incomplete to be of much educational value; so the work done in this Court was confined to keeping the specimens in good order.

5. The Museum was closed in December during the continuance of the preliminary exhibition of articles sent home to the Indo-Colonial Exhibition. During the remaining eleven months of the year, 270,553 persons visited the Museum, the monthly average being 24,505. This is by far the largest number yet recorded, and the increase is no doubt due, as reported by the Committee, to the removal of the Museum to the close proximity of the Imperial Museum. The number of visitors was greatest in January 1886, when it reached 38,130. The cost of the Museum came to Rs 10,966-10-3 against Rs. 13,124-4, the decrease being mainly due to saving of house-rent formerly paid for the premises in Hastings Street. The Secretary reports favourably of the work done by the staff under his superintendence during the year.

PROGRESS REPORT OF THE BENGAL ECONOMIC AND ART MUSEUM FOR THE YEAR 1885-86.

The history of the Museum during the past year has been one of consolidation in the direction described in the previous report, rather than one in which many new departures have been made. It may be remembered that in the previous year 1884-85 the whole scope of the institution had been altered, and its area of work had been widened, so that it not only dealt with the economics of Bengal as in former years, but it had been extended to embrace the artwares and industries of the Province and also of India generally, and the ethnology of a considerable part of the same area.

The Museum also during the previous year had been to a great extent removed from its old premises in Hastings Street to the buildings which had been formerly occupied by the Calcutta International Exhibition of 1883-84, and this removal was completed during the current year. This change was essential primarily on account of the limited space available at the Hastings Street house, for instead of only one collection having now to be housed and dealt with, practically five collections have to be provided for in the Museum premises. In the second place the removal was necessary to bring the Museum in proximity to the Imperial Museum with which it is to be shortly connected. This removal has also enabled a large saving to be made in the cost of the Bengal Economic and Art Museum, for formerly the rent paid for the Hastings Street house was no less than Rs. 700 per month, but when the collections were partly removed to Chowringhee, half the house was vacated, and the rent was reduced to Rs. 300 per month, and since 15th June 1885 the whole of the house has been vacated, and the remaining cost has been saved to Government.

For practical purposes the amount of work which was carried on in the Hastings Street Museum during the first three months of the year 1885-86 was so small and was of so unimportant a nature that it need not be reviewed, and this report will have to deal solely with the work of arrangement and of consolidation, which has been carried out in the Museum buildings in Chowringhee.

In the report for 1884-85 it was stated that the large collections formerly belonging to, or which had been handed over to the Bengal Economic and Art Museum, were in some cases being arranged, and in others had been roughly arranged, under five separate heads and in five separate courts.

The arrangement of the courts which had been adopted is as follows:—

1.—Indian Art Manufactures Court, comprising principally artware and art manufactures.
2.—Ethnology Court.
3.—Economic Court.
4.—Timber Court.
5.—Court containing the various European exhibits presented to the Bengal Government at the close of the Calcutta International Exhibition, 1883-84, and which may be called the Industrial Court.

The work which has been done in the Museum during the current year will, perhaps, best be discussed under the headings of the five separate collections just mentioned.

1. Artware collection.—The Artware Court is situated in the permanent annexe to the south of the Imperial Museum, and therefore faces Chowringhee road; it is the building which was formerly occupied in the Calcutta International Exhibition of 1883-84 by the Jewellery Court. This Court had, as stated in the previous progress report, been roughly arranged in the year 1884-85, though great difficulty had been found in the arrangement owing to the fact that it was very much overcrowded. For the greater part of the present year the work which has been done in this Court has been in the cataloguing, re arranging, and labelling of the exhibits. In the register of exhibits, so far as has been found possible, full details with reference to each exhibit are entered, giving the name of the exhibit in English and the vernacular, its class, the place of production, the name of the manufacturer, and the cost. In many instances, however, very great difficulty has been found in giving these details owing to the partial or entire loss of the labels, originally attached to the exhibits, during the hasty removal of the articles at the close of the Exhibition. These details having been collected as far as possible, the second portion of the work was taken up, namely, that of affixing a label to each exhibit giving the above particulars. At the close of the year more than one-half, or perhaps nearly two-thirds, of the exhibits had thus been properly labelled. In all probability the whole of the work would have been completed within the year had it not been that for several months the Museum staff had to help in the work connected with the collection of exhibits for the Bengal Committee for the Indo-Colonial Exhibition of London, 1886, and with the preliminary show of these exhibits held in the museum buildings in December 1885.

At the time of cataloguing and labelling, the opportunity was taken to make some re-arrangements in the Court with a view to make the classification more systematic, and the arrangements more permanent. The exhibits in this Court are subdivided into 27 groups, and the catalogue, which has been made, shows that each group contains about the following number of articles:—

Group No.	1.	Indian cotton fabrics	575
		(Plain, bordered, striped and dyed and printed) ...	748

			7,949

These numbers include certain additions which have been made to this Court during the year by the transfer of a collection from the Imperial Museum to the Bengal Museum, and by presentations from various sources. The total number of additions to this Court during the year has been 199. These consist of 161 specimens of gold, silver, and enamelled jewellery, &c., amongst which 127 samples are said to have been collected during the first Yunan expedition of 1868. This collection was handed over by the Imperial Museum. Eighteen samples of Jeypore marble carvings have been also handed over by the Imperial Museum. Two large ornamented Burmese food boxes, which were found in the apartments of the Maids-of-honour in the King's palace at Mandalay, were handed over to the Museum by Mr. G. Barton Groves. Also seven specimens of Patna glass ware, ten crystal beads from Patna, and one ornamental floor tile from Raneegunge were presented to this Court by the Bengal Committee for the London Indo-Colonial Exhibition.

The following medals have been received by the Museum during the year and they have been deposited in the medal case, which is placed in a prominent position at the entrance of the Artware Court:—

One bronze medal which was struck in commemoration of the Calcutta International Exhibition, 1883-84, forwarded to the Bengal Economic Museum.

Three silver medals awarded to the Government of Bengal at the late Calcuttta International Exhibition, 1883-84.

One silver medal awarded to the Government of India at the Edinburgh Forestry Exhibition.

Two silver medals awarded at the late Calcutta International Exhibition, 1883-84, to the Bengal Economic Museum: one for a collection of oil-seeds, and the second for a collection of spices.

Three diplomas, which had been awarded to the Bengal Government and the Government of India at the London Fisheries Exhibition of 1883, were also handed over to the Museum during the year, but they are not exhibited.

The increase in the number of exhibits in this Court in the jewellery class has necessitated the purchase of two new exhibition cases from Messrs. Edmond and Co., and for the sake of extra precaution the cases containing jewellery and other articles of great intrinsic value have been provided in addition to the old locks with a set of Chubb's locks which had been specially procured from England. This was thought advisable, as there was a suspicion that on one occasion an attempt had been made to force one of the locks of the jewellery cases, but now these double locks will render such attempts futile. So far as can be ascertained, there has been no loss in this Court from theft during the year; but owing to the fall of a large pane of glass, which was apparently blown in from one of the upper windows of the Court, seven specimens of Patna glass were broken. One small earthen garua from Lucknow was also accidentally broken by a visitor to the Court, and one small Thibetan rug became so completely infested with insects and so worm-eaten that it has been destroyed. In connection with this fact attention is again called to the following remarks that were made in the last annual report on the condition of the Artware Court:—

"It is desirable also to place on record the fact that in the Artware Court there is great room for improvement in some of the arrangements. As before stated, the Court is far too small for the exhibits, and a Court nearly double the size could be filled with the things which are now crowded together in the present one. Further, large exhibits, such as valuable carpets, rugs, durries, mats, basketwork, musical instruments, &c., for want of other space and of glass show-cases, have to be exhibited by being hung round the walls, and though every possible care is taken to preserve them as far as practicable, it will be understood that it is only a question of time as to how long they will last under these conditions, and their general deterioration is a matter of certainty. These articles were of course exposed to the air in a similar manner during the whole of the Exhibition, and, when taken over by the Museum, their original beauty had been greatly destroyed by dust, dirt, &c., and they were also infested with moths, &c., which it was almost impossible to thoroughly remove. Every effort has been made to conserve such articles by periodical careful cleaning, and by placing the carpets, &c., from time to time in boxes with camphor and other articles which destroy insects; but even with the greatest care and attention a certain damage inevitably occurs during the rainy season in Calcutta, when articles, such as those contained in the Artware Court, have to be attended to almost daily to prevent them from being moth-eaten, mildewed, and from decaying generally. It will be necessary, in order to place this section of the exhibits on a satisfactory footing, to provide further accommodation, and to incur a large expenditure on show-cases."

Keeping this fact in view, arrangements have already been made to spend almost the whole of the small budget allowance of the Museum for cases, &c., for the year 1886-87 in providing some of the more urgently required cases for this court, though the cases which are being made from this grant will only go a small way to complete the arrangements which are required.

In connection with the Artware Court it may be perhaps mentioned that the following work appears to be the most pressing and urgent, and which will therefore be taken up at the earliest opportunity in the year 1886-87. The most important work will be to complete the systematic labelling of all the articles, nearly two thirds of which has already been done as mentioned previously; next the Court must be furnished with a considerable number of new exhibition cases, partly in addition to the cases already existing, and partly to replace sundry inferior cases of various shapes and sizes, which are now used and which certainly spoil the general effect of the Court. The new cases will have to be made as nearly as possible uniform with the large and appropriate cases which are already used in parts of the Court. Thirdly, it is urgently necessary to remove a portion of the contents of the Artware Court into some other Court so as to allow of the proper display of a large number of beautiful and valuable articles which are at present quite hidden in the back of the Court or at the back of other exhibits, and therefore useless, or in fact worse than useless, as they only crowd the Court to a most inconvenient extent and prevent other articles being properly displayed: Finally, several of the sections of the Court require re-arrangement, either in order to make the classification more systematic, or to group together things which are now inconveniently separated, or also to make the arrangement more artistic than is at present possible.

II. Ethnology Collections.—The Ethnology Court at the close of the previous year occupied one of the large sheds with the corrugated iron roofs to the east of the permanent annexe to the Museum containing the artware collections. This shed is the centre one of the three parallel sheds, and was occupied during the late Calcutta International Exhibition by the Tasmanian exhibits. Owing to the temporary nature of the building thus occupied, which was neither wind nor rain proof, and owing to the want of appropriate glass show-cases to contain the ethnological objects, the collection undoubtedly suffered an appreciable, if not considerable, amount of deterioration from the beating in of the rain and dust during the year 1884-85. Every effort was, however, made to keep the inevitable damage down to a minimum during the time when the objects were thus exposed and exhibited in this Court, but some amount of damage could not be prevented. Fortunately, however, arrangements were concluded with the authorities of the Imperial Museum very shortly after the close of the year 1884-85, by which possession was obtained by the Bengal Museum of the permanent buildings formerly occupied by the Bengal Secretariat Printing Press. These buildings consist of some small rooms opening into one another in a line east and west with a good enclosed verandah to the north of these rooms, and also of two large rooms or halls to the east. This space would have been far more than sufficient to contain the whole of the ethnological collection belonging to the Bengal Government, but at the same time the large ethnological collection belonging to the Imperial Museum was transferred to the Bengal Museum. Arrangements were also made by which the Imperial Museum transferred to the Bengal Museum two exceedingly large exhibition cases, each measuring about 60 feet long by 6 feet wide and by 8½ feet high. At the same time also sixteen smaller glass cases for the walls, each 11 feet long by 1 foot 9 inches deep and 6 feet 9 inches high, were handed over. The two large plate glass cases with iron frame work were fitted into the two large halls above referred to, so far as the size of the rooms would permit, and with the portions of the cases which remained over, three large cases, each 9 feet long, 6 feet wide, 8½ feet high were constructed, and were placed in three of the smaller rooms. The sixteen cases also were fitted round the sides of four of the smaller rooms, and to render the fourth room complete, a fourth case was constructed similar to the three above referred to at a cost of Rs. 876-14.

The ethnological collections belonging to the Bengal Government at the close of the year 1884-85 numbered about 2,817 specimens, while the ethnological collections handed over by the Imperial Museum extended to over 3,700 specimens. These two collections have been amalgamated so far as their exhibition is concerned, though, of course, the methods of labelling and registration of the two collections have been kept distinct. The combined collections thus obtained, numbering more than 6,500 articles, has been arranged geographically in the rooms and close verandah above referred to. In the smaller rooms the arrangements which have been adopted are to place the ethnological figures of a particular part of the country, or of some particular tribe in the central case, while the objects of ethnological interest belonging to the same tribe or district, such as their arms, implements, clothes, ornaments, domestic utensils, musical instruments, articles connected with religious observances, &c., are placed in the side wall cases. In the larger halls the ethnological models of races and the articles of ethnological interest corresponding to them are placed in neighbouring compartments of the large cases. Arranged in this way, the first of the small rooms deals with the ethnology of the Andaman and Nicobar Islands; the second is the Burma Court, the figures being those of Karens, and the side cases containing Burmese articles. The third room contains articles from Lower Bengal principally, and the fourth court deals principally with articles of ethnological interest from Darjeeling, Chittagong, Chittagong Hill Tracts, and Chota Nagpore. One of the large rooms then contains the large collection of Assamese tribes and their ethnological objects, and the second large hall contains models of various races from the remainder of India and their ethnological objects, though this is rather a miscellaneous collection, and far from complete. The collections from the Indian localities above referred to were found to fill the whole of the cases which have been previously enumerated, and when they had been arranged, it was found in addition, there was a very large miscellaneous ethnological collection from various parts of the world, such as Australia, China, the Straits Settlements, &c., which could not be arranged in these rooms. Fifty-two smaller additional cases were therefore provided by the Bengal Museum, and these have been placed principally in the enclosed verandah above alluded to, and in these cases the miscellaneous articles have been displayed, the geographical arrangement being adhered to as far as possible. Notwithstanding the large accommodation in the way of cases made over by the Imperial Museum, and notwithstanding the addition of the 52 cases from the Bengal Museum, it has not been found possible to arrange all the exhibits in glass cases, and a large number of articles are simply arranged on the walls, and are freely exposed to the dust and other atmospheric influences. This is greatly to be regretted, as such articles must inevitably suffer damage when thus exposed, but every effort has been and will continue to be made to conserve them. It is also to be regretted that a considerable portion of the articles handed over by the Imperial Museum was in rather bad condition. This Imperial ethnological collection has in fact met with rather hard treatment during the past few years, as it has been subject to several removals owing to various causes, and has also been stored in closed rooms for some months without receiving any continued supervision. The gradual deterioration of a perishable collection under such circumstances was inevitable.

The arrangement of the combined collections was commenced early in July, and it was roughly completed in September. During this period this portion of the Museum was closed to the public, but it was opened as usual from the beginning of October. The arrangement of the collection having thus been temporarily completed, the work of labelling the articles was taken in hand; but owing to the fact that the staff of the Museum during the cold weather months has been to a great extent employed in the work of preparation for the London Exhibition, the labelling had not made much progress up to the close of the year. The whole of the collection belonging to the Bengal Government had been labelled in the previous year, and the work of re-labelling was confined to the new collection. The form of labels adopted was to have, first, general labels to illustrate the class or sub-class of objects exhibited, and second, special labels descriptive of each article in the class.

It has previously been mentioned that the Ethnology Court has been greatly enlarged during the year by the addition of more than 3,700 ethnological specimens from the Imperial Museum. In addition to these some presentations have been received. Mr. W. Pigott has presented to the Museum the war basket of a Naga Chief with fringe of human hair. The Chief to whom this basket belonged was killed in a raid close to Jorehat. In addition, the pipe belonging to the same Chief was presented by Mr. Pigott and also a Naga woman's petticoat. A Nicobarese cooking stove made of bark and leaves was also presented to the Museum by Colonel J. Caddell, v.c., Chief Commissioner, Andaman and Nicobar Islands. Also Mr. E. F. T. Atkinson, c.s., kindly deposited in the Museum on loan a very complete set of three Naga warriors' arms, clothes, ornaments, &c., which are now being used to decorate two of the Naga figures belonging to the Museum.

With reference to the Ethnology Court, also the points which will claim immediate attention in the year 1886-87 are—first, the completion of the labelling and cataloguing of the exhibits; second, the provision of glass cases for the preservation of those specimens which at present are not thus protected; third, the expansion of the collection, as at present it is much cramped up in the building in which it is placed, and fourth, a more detailed re-arrangement and classification of the exhibits is necessary.

III. Economic collection.—The Economic Court, as stated in the previous progress report, is in the temporary shed with corrugated iron roof situated to the east of the Artware Court, this shed being the one next to the old Bengal Secretariat Printing Press buildings. The collections placed in this Court contained the old collections belonging to the Economic Museum, the value of which, however, had been very much diminished by the treatment it received during the Calcutta International Exhibition, and also the large index collection made by the Government of India for the same Exhibition.

The principal work which has been done in this Court during the year has been that of the general conservation of the very numerous specimens contained in it. As mentioned in the third page of the previous progress report, this collection, which is subdivided into 13 classes, contains no less than 18,242 specimens of economic products, and it can be easily understood that, in a climate like that of Calcutta, particularly during the rainy season and hot weather period, and with a collection of more or less perishable articles, it requires the constant supervision of one of the assistants of the Museum to keep such a large number of specimens in order, and to prevent as far as possible their gradual deterioration. A very large amount of re-labelling, re-arrangement of specimens, changing of damaged portions of specimens, &c., has thus to be carried out as part of the regular routine. This work is indeed much heavier than would be the case were the collection to be housed in a permanent building and not in a more or less open shed as is at present the case. The dust, wind, rain, &c., at present entering the shed cause rather rapid deterioration of the specimens and rapid decay of labels, to take place, and thus heavy work is entailed on the staff. No original work, such as altering the methods of exhibition of the specimens, or largely extending the scope of the collection so as to show the connection of the economic products with the plants, &c., from which they are derived, or showing the economic products produced by different districts, has been attempted during the year, but all these matters are undoubtedly of importance, and when opportunities arise, they must be taken up earnestly. They cannot, however, be attempted until a permanent home other than the temporary shed now occupied is secured for the collection, when the enevitable deterioration from climatic causes would be reduced to a minimum, and until the Museum staff has more leisure than it has at present, and finally until funds are available for such extension The economic collection has nevertheless been extended to a small extent during the year by the addition of the 288 new specimens belonging to the following classes :—

Food and foodstuffs	30
Gums and resins	10
Dyes and tans	31
Oils and oilseeds	18
Medicines	125
Opium	6
Poisons	7
Fibres	37
Tasar cocoons and manufactures therefrom	2
Camels and goats' hair and wool, and manufactures therefrom ...	17
Miscellaneous	5
Total ...	288

Of these 288 specimens, 122 were collected for the Museum by the local Committees at Balasore, Bankoora, Chittagong Hill Tracts, Darjeeling, Dinagepore, Furreedpore, Hooghly, Lohardugga, Manbhoom, Mymensingh, Patna, and Rajshahye. One hundred and sixty specimens were handed over among the ethnological, &c., exhibits by the Imperial Museum, four were presented by Mr. W. Gow, and two were received from other sources.

It was mentioned in the progress report for the previous year that a collection of trade samples of Economic products had been prepared in November 1884 for the Agri Horticultural Society. There was considerable delay in taking over the collection after it had been prepared, and it was only on the 1st of September 1885 that the collection left the Museum. The tentative collection, which had been prepared, consisted of six very large flat show cases with their contents of 520 trade samples, each placed in a small wooden box seven inches square and four inches deep, and provided with a glass lid fitting in a slot. These glass covers were of course intended to prevent insects from reaching the samples, and the form of box used was to enable the specimens to be easily taken out for examination, handling, &c., while at the same time the specimens could be easily displayed and without experiencing much damage. The delay, however, between the time of preparation and the time of handing over the collection was sufficient to show that in the case of certain specimens of food-crops it was almost impossible to prevent them from being attacked by insects even when thus protected, and it is to be regretted that in the collections as handed over to the Agri-Horticultural Society a considerable number of specimens had very considerably deteriorated. The number of specimens in each class, which was to be handed over to the Agri-Horticultural Society, was mentioned in the previous progress report, paragraph 10.

From time to time during the year attempts have been made either to replace some of the damaged specimens, or to render the collection more complete, and thus up to the close of the year the following additional specimens had been prepared in the usual cases and sent to the Society :—

IV.—Timber collection.—The Timber Court occupies the wooden annexé facing the Chowringhee Road to the north of the main entrance to the Imperial Museum. As stated in the last progress report, this collection comprised at the close of the last year some 2,000 specimens of Indian woods forming one collection, and 578 specimens forming a second, and also sundry smaller collections of wood from other countries which had been presented to the Bengal Government at the close of the exhibition. The two thousand specimens of Indian woods which had either been shewn in the Calcutta International Exhibition or had belonged to the Economic Museum had to a certain extent been systematically arranged on the following plan:—In every case, so far as was possible, the name of the tree yielding each specimen block was ascertained, and it was then referred to its proper botanical natural order, and the specimens were grouped according to the natural orders to which they belonged, the arrangement of the natural orders being the same as that followed by Mr. Gamble in his "Manual of Indian Timbers." This arrangement is undoubtedly most valuable from a scientific point of view, and it is the one best calculated to show the connection between the woods yielded by the trees of the same natural order, and it is also the arrangement probably that would be preferred by any one making a systematic study of the subject. On the other hand, the arrangement might have appeared to be a little puzzling to casual visitors to the collection. It was, however, fortunate that the second collection of 578 specimens of wood which had been exhibited at the Edinburgh Forestry Exhibition was handed over by the Bengal Government to the Museum. This collection was arranged alphabetically, and it could therefore be used as a kind of index to the larger collection, and with this system, which amounts practically to one of cross reference, no one could have any difficulty in studying the subject of Indian timbers.

During the first five months of the year under review, the work of identification, systematic arrangement, and classification and labelling and re-labelling of the numerous Indian timber specimens was most vigorously pushed forward, and by August this Court really represented a most systematic and valuable collection of Indian woods, carefully labelled with all available information with their botanical and vernacular names, place of growth, &c., and in such a way that information about the majority of Indian timbers could be very easily ascertained. When this work was virtually completed, orders were received from the Government of Bengal (No. 1804—228Mis. F, dated 13th August 1885) to make over the collection of timber specimens to Mr. F. B. Manson of the Forest Department for the purpose of constructing a triumphal arch for the Indo-Colonial London Exhibition. Mr. Manson in this matter was acting for the Government of India, and he had to construct the arch on behalf of the Revenue and Agricultural Department. Mr. Manson therefore took charge of the timber collection in September 1885, and from this time the Timber Court of the Museum has had to remain closed.

The total number of wood specimens which were in the first instance handed over to Mr. Manson was 1,952, but 254 specimens were subsequently returned early in 1886. The actual number of specimens of Indian wood belonging to the Economic Museum, which have been used in the construction of the triumphal arch, is 1,698, and it will be seen that these form practically almost the whole of the collection. The specimens were only handed over on loan to the Revenue and Agricultural Department, Government of India, and at the close of the exhibition they will have to be returned to the Museum. In the construction of the timber arch other specimens of wood were used as well, but it would appear that the main part of the surface of the arch has been made of the specimens belonging to this Museum. If the beautiful triumphal arch which was constructed is handed over to the Museum at the close of the exhibition as it is, it will undoubtedly form a very handsome addition to the Timber Court; but arranged in that way, the specimens of wood will be of little value for scientific study, and it will be impossible to give the names, localities, &c., of the specimens when thus forming part of the large structure. It must also be mentioned that in many cases Mr. Manson found it necessary to alter the shape of the specimens of wood for the purpose of fitting them into the various ornamental and geometrical designs with which the arch is decorated. The labels giving the scientific and vernacular names of the specimens had also to be removed from the specimens, though index numbers were stamped on them so that they can be still recognised, and thus to utilize this collection in its former way would necessitate much labour in making the specimens uniform, in re-labelling, and in other ways, and even when thus re-labelled, the alteration in the form of many of the specimens will have much deteriorated the value of the collection. Assuming then that the triumphal arch will be returned as such to India, and that it will be returned to the Museum, and that it will be considered desirable to exhibit it in Calcutta in this form, it may be suggested that the Forest Department should be asked to provide the Museum with new typical collections of Indian timbers to replace those which have thus been done away with, and that such typical collections should be arranged as the collections in this Museum were formerly arranged.

The only addition to the timber collections which was made during the year under review was a collection of 30 bamboos from various parts of India, which was handed over to the Museum by Mr. F. B. Manson, who was also engaged in preparing a bamboo trophy for the London Exhibition under the orders of the Revenue and Agricultural Department, Government of India.

V. Industrial collection.—The Industrial Court still occupies the wooden annexé facing the Chowringhee road on the south side of the main entrance of the Imperial Museum as stated in the last progress report. This Court contains almost all the presentations made by the exhibitors of the British and Foreign Courts at the late Calcutta International Exhibition to the Bengal Government. No change has been made in the arrangement of the Court during the year under review, and the nature of the exhibits does not admit of any very systematic display of the collection being made. The Court does not indeed represent any industry fully, and is therefore of small value from an educational point of view. Consequently all the work that has been done in this Court during the year has been to keep the specimens in good order, and to prevent their deterioration as far as possible. Most of the exhibits are in fair order, but it may be mentioned that there is one case containing 10 varieties of Worcestershire salt exhibited at the late Calcutta International Exhibition, which owing to the climate of Calcutta during the rains is gradually melting away and vanishing. It is of course impossible to prevent this in an atmosphere almost saturated with moisture.

General.—In the foregoing paragraphs the particular work done in each of the five divisions of the Museum has been commented on, but there are naturally a few points which fall outside the discussion of the state of the actual collections, and these must be recorded.

The buildings belonging to the Museum are larger than are at present actually occupied by the five collections previously referred to, and during the year the spare Courts have proved of the greatest use in the work connected with the London Exhibition. A very large portion of the available space was lent to the Revenue and Agricultural Department, Government of India, for the purpose of preparing parts of their collections. Thus in the Museum buildings a very great part of the work of modelling the various tribes of India in clay was carried on for many months, and one portion of the building was entirely occupied in this way. Again 41 of the ethnological models of the tribes of India belonging to the Museum were lent to the Revenue and Agricultural Department for the purpose of preparing moulds in plaster of Paris from which casts had to be made, also in the same material, for transmission to the London Exhibition. The whole work of preparing these moulds and of casting the figures and of packing for despatch to England was done in another part of the Museum. Further, as stated, under the Timber Court, Mr. Manson prepared the very large and handsome triumphal arch or timber trophy in the Museum, and in addition a very large triumphal arch of bamboos was constructed here It is in fact difficult to say how the work of the Revenue and Agricultural Department could have been performed if it had not been here for the large space available in the Museum. The whole of the operations in connection with these things from their original preparation to their final shipment for London was in fact carried out in the Museum.

Indo-Colonial Exhibition, London.—The buildings have also proved themselves very useful to the Bengal Government in the matter of the provincial preparations for the Indo-Colonial Exhibition. The Museum buildings were in fact made the head-quarters to the Committee appointed by Government for this Exhibition. Part of the buildings was used as the office. Another part was utilised to store the exhibits as they were received. In another part of the building the two very large screens for the Exhibition were prepared, one part being devoted to the Hindu screen, and a second to the Mahomedan screen, and all the wood-work and plaster-casting work was also done on the spot. Another Court was used to hold the preliminary show in December 1886, of the exhibits which were to be despatched to London, while finally the whole of the packing of the exhibits was also carried on in the buildings.

To strengthen the office staff of the Executive Committee, the services of Baboo Phoni Bhusan Dutt, one of the Museum staff, were lent for several months, and during the progress of the preparations for the preliminary show, and afterwards during the packing and despatch of the exhibits to London, the greater part of the Museum staff was occupied with the work for the London Exhibition. In addition too a portion of the accounts of the Exhibition had to be kept by the Museum office. At the close of the official year it might also be mentioned that the whole of the remaining work of correspondence, &c, in connection with the London Exhibition has been made over to the Museum staff, and it has been found necessary to depute the services of one clerk entirely to this work.

Presentations and additions.—It is perhaps desirable to state concisely the additions and presentations which have been received by the Museum during the year, though it is of course true that they have already been referred to more in detail in the description of the respective collections. Briefly the Museum has been enlarged by the addition of—

A.—In the Artware Court—

Jewellery—161 articles from Imperial Museum, &c.
Miscellaneous articles, 38.
Medals and diplomas, 10.

B.—In the Ethnology Court—

3,704 articles from Imperial Museum, &c.

C.—In the Economic Court—

288 specimens from various local Committees and the Imperial Museum, &c.

D.—In the Timber Court—

30 bamboos from Mr. F. B. Manson of the Forest Department.

Special Reports and References.—These have been remarkably few during the year, and the four or five requests for information which have been received have in every case been complied with as far as possible.

Attendance.—The number of visitors to the Museum during the year has been extremely large. The Museum was open to the public during eleven months, it being closed in December owing to the holding of the preliminary show for the London Exhibition in one of the Courts. During the eleven months no less than 270,553 people visited the Museum, which gives a monthly average of 24,505 persons. The Museum is in accordance with the previous custom closed on the gazetted Government holidays, though an exception was made in keeping it open during the Puja holidays last year. In addition too the Museum is closed on Thursdays to enable the Courts and exhibits to be more thoroughly cleaned than is possible when it is open to the public. The number of visitors attending the Museum is of course vastly greater than in previous years, but this is probably to a great extent due to the fact that it is now in close proximity to the old established and well-known Imperial Museum, and that visitors coming to that Museum are attracted to the Bengal Museum also. The summary of the attendance in the Museum is given in the following table :—

Control and establishment.—The Museum has remained in charge of the undersigned, throughout the whole of the year

Under the direction of the Secretary the Museum work is carried on by the following permanent staff :—

Babu Sreenarayan Dutt, Assistant Secretary, Mr. R. A. D'Cruz, head assistant, Babu Phoni Bhusan Dutt, 2nd assistant, Babu Devendranath Dhar, 3rd and general assistant, with one carpenter mistry, one duftri, one durwan, one peon, four bearers, and one sweeper. The services of Babu Phoni Bhusan Dutt were lent to the Bengal Committee for the Indo-Colonial Exhibition from 10th November 1885 to 31st March 1886.

In addition a temporary staff, consisting of one clerk, Babu Nemye Churn Chatterjee, who has rendered very good service, two durwans, and six bearers, has been engaged throughout the year.

The staff under the superintendence of the Secretary has worked well throughout the year, and considerable additional work has been thrown on them by having to help in the London Exhibition work, &c. The regular work of the Museum is in itself quite sufficient to occupy the whole time and energies of the staff, and it is difficult to see how the work of the Museum could efficiently be carried on with a smaller staff than at present. Some of the members of the staff have rendered themselves conspicuous during the year by their zeal and by the really excellent services which they have rendered, and undoubtedly one of the most active and energetic members of the staff is Babu Devendranath Dhar, the 3rd and general assistant.

Accounts.—The accounts as given in the small tabular statement below show that the cost of the Museum during the year was Rs. 10,966-10-3 against the budget estimate of Rs. 14,000. In the previous year the cost was Rs. 13,124-4. The principal cause of the saving has been that since 15th June 1885 it has been found possible to do away with the house occupied previously by the Museum and by the former Secretary's residence in Hastings Street.—

In addition to the accounts of the Museum, the accounts of the Central office, Calcutta International Exhibition, were kept by the Museum staff, and during the year certain points with reference to these accounts have had to be explained. Also a part of the accounts of the Bengal Committee of the Colonial and Indian Exhibition, London, was kept by the Museum staff throughout the year, and in future the whole of these accounts will remain in their hands.

Library.—During the year the Museum library was increased by the addition of 104 periodicals and 40 books and reports from Government and from various societies.

Calcutta, the 15th September 1886.

RESOLUTION.

READ—

A letter from the Director of Public Instruction, No. 5545, dated 14th August 1886, recommending that "Therapeutics in Bengali" by Assistant Surgeon Mohendra Nath Gupta, Teacher of Materia Medica and Therapeutics in the Campbell Medical School, be included in the list of authorized text-books for vernacular medical schools.

In their report on vernacular medical education at the Campbell Medical School, Sealdah, the Committee on Medical Expenditure in Bengal recommended the study of Therapeutics as an important part of Materia Medica. The Director of Public Instruction represents that the want of a text-book on the subject is much felt by the students, and he accordingly proposes that Babu Mohendra Nath Gupta's work on Therapeutics, which has been approved by the Medical Text-book Committee, be included in the authorized list of text-books. The Lieutenant-Governor is pleased to approve of this proposal, and to declare that Assistant Surgeon Mohendra Nath Gupta's work entitled "Therapeutics in Bengali" shall be used as a text-book on Therapeutics in medical schools in which Bengali is the medium of instruction.

RESOLUTION.

In Home Department Resolution, dated the 12th February 1886, cited in the preamble, which announced the establishment of six State scholarships of the value of £200 each per annum, tenable for three years in England by persons who are natives of India within the meaning of section 6 of the Statute 33 Vic', cap. 3, it was laid down, inter alia, that no candidate for these scholarships should be more than 21 years of age. It was further provided in paragraphs 4 and 6 of the Resolution—

(1) that each scholar would be entitled to receive a sum of £100 for passage money, and that a similar sum would be payable within one month before his actual return to India, if he should complete the full period of three years' residence, or be compelled by sickness to return before the completion of that period; and

(2) that if any scholar, not being disabled by sickness, failed to complete a residence of three years in England, or was guilty of gross misconduct, or disregard of the orders of Her Majesty's Secretary of State, he would, at the discretion of the Secretary of State, forfeit his scholarship and further be liable to refund the sum of £100 drawn by him as passage money.

2. As regards the age limit fixed by the Resolution of 12th February last, representations have been received by the Government of India to the effect that the result of prescribing a maximum limit of 21 years will practically involve the exclusion of Muhammadan youths from participation in the benefits of the scholarships in question. The Governor General in Council has now, after careful consideration and consultation with the authorities of the Calcutta University, resolved to raise the age limit. It is accordingly notified that the maximum limit of age for all classes of candidates for these scholarships shall be 22 years instead of 21 years as prescribed in paragraph 3 of the Resolution above cited.

3. In accordance with directions from Her Majesty's Secretary of State, the Governor-General in Council further announces that, in modification of the orders contained in paragraphs 4 and 6 of the Resolution of 12th February 1886,—

(1) each scholar shall be provided with a free passage to and from England instead of with a sum of £100 as passage money for each journey; and

(2) if any scholar, not being disabled by sickness, fails to complete a residence of three years in England, or is guilty of gross misconduct, or disregard of the orders of Her Majesty's Secretary of State, he will, at the discretion of the Secretary of State, forfeit his scholarship, and will also be liable to refund the amount representing the cost of his free passage to England.

Order.—Ordered, that a copy of this Resolution be forwarded to the Governments of Madras, Bombay, and the Punjab for information and communication to the authorities of the Universities concerned.

Ordered also, that a copy be forwarded to the Governments of Bengal and the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, the Chief Commissioners of the Central Provinces, Burmah, Assam and Coorg, and the Resident at Hyderabad for information, and to the Registrar of the Calcutta University for information and guidance.

Ordered further, that a copy be forwarded to the Department of Finance for information, and that the Resolution be published in the Supplement to the Gazette of India.

* Means for six days.

Explanation.—Summary.—The normal means of air pressure and temperature are the arithmetical averages or means of the readings during the same period for the past ten years. The humidity of the atmosphere is expressed as a percentage, saturated air being represented by 100. A clear sky is denoted by 0 and an overcast sky by 10. The number and the observed means or averages in the last column of the table are determined from the returns sent in by the sub-divisional stations for the period in question during the past week. The total rainfall in that district is determined from the returns sent in by the sub-divisional stations for the period in question during the past week. The mean rainfall of the district is the mean of the returns sent in by the sub-divisional stations in the district sending in returns divided by the number of stations. A rainy day is one on which at least hundredth of an inch fell.

for the week ending Friday, the 17th of September 1886.

CALCUTTA, the 14*th September* 1886.

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL FOR THE WEEK ENDING FRIDAY, THE 17TH OF SEPTEMBER 1886.

At the close of the previous week a barometric depression had existed over Behar, and the meteorological conditions had been such that they had brought heavy rain to the whole province, except to Orissa. On Saturday, the 11th, however, the barometric depression had almost disappeared, so far as having any definite centre, and its place was taken by a large, diffused, comparatively low pressure area, which occupied the whole of South Behar and the greater part of South-West Bengal and Chutia Nagpur. Winds on this day, however, still showed a faint tendency to cyclonic circulation over part of Behar, though over the greater part of the province moist easterly and south-easterly monsoon winds were blowing. No important changes of conditions occurred on the 12th, but on the 13th a fall of pressure took place in Orissa, and a feeble barometric depression was formed apparently close to the land in the north-west angle of the Bay, which was accompanied by a very feeble wind circulation round it. The wind system blowing over the province also altered on this day, and south-easterly winds were reported from North Bengal and North Behar, north-westerly winds in South Behar and Chutia Nagpur, and southerly and south-easterly winds in Central and South-East Bengal. There was therefore a slight tendency to wind circulation over the northern part of the province, and these winds, which were to a great extent of opposing directions, caused much interaction or interference, and conditions were thus again favourable to the production of rainfall over this area. As a matter of fact, particularly heavy rain was received at many stations on this day, and thus Julpigoree reported 15·71 inches, Buxar 7·16 inches, Balarampur (Purneah district) 3·88 inches, Mozufferpur 4·22 inches, and Rajmehal 6·22 inches. On the 14th the area of low pressure at the head of the Bay was intensified to a small extent, but in other respects conditions did not change much, and the area of heavy rainfall was transferred to South Behar, where on this day Shergati (Gya district) reported 4·50 inches, Monghyr 4·11 inches, Bhagulpur 3·38 inches, and Gogri (Monghyr district) 3·18 inches; while numerous other stations reported falls in excess of 2 inches. On the 15th the small depression at the head of the Bay commenced to drift slowly in a northerly direction, but in other respects conditions were unchanged, and on the following day the depression was passing very slowly indeed over the land in the direction of Chutia Nagpur, though even on the 17th a diffused area of low pressure occupied Orissa and parts of South-West Bengal. At the close of the week the centre of heavy rainfall had been transferred to the districts of North Bengal, and also to South Bhagulpur and the Sonthal Pergunnahs, and thus on the 16th Buxa reported 10·32 inches, while on the 17th Dinhatta (Cooch Behar district) received 5·72 inches, Mohadebpur (Dinagepur district) 4·59 inches, and Pakour (Sonthal Pergunnahs) 4·11 inches; while the following stations on this day received between 3 and 4 inches—Raigunge, Bagdogra, Bhagulpur and Rajmehal. These rainfalls are very heavy for the middle of September, and thus North Bengal, Behar and Chutia Nagpur have received falls in excess of the normal; while Orissa, South-West and East Bengal had received falls rather smaller than the normal.

Owing to the conditions above described pressure has been comparatively low throughout the week, but the lowest pressures have been recorded in connection with the very feeble depression. Compared with the normal, pressure has been in defect on every day of the week, and the mean pressure is in defect at all stations by amounts which vary from 0·078″ at False Point to 0·016″ at Durbhunga. The mean pressure of the province for the week has been in defect by 0·048″.

Temperature, owing to the heavy rainfall in the northern and western districts, has been rather largely below the normal during the week, and in South Behar the defect has been no less than 4·1°. In North Behar the defect has been smaller, and it only equals 2·9°, while in Chutia Nagpur it has been 1·8°. Temperature has also been in defect in East Bengal, but the defect here is small and only equals 0·8°, while in South-West Bengal an absolutely normal temperature has been recorded. The temperature in Orissa on the other hand has been distinctly above the normal, and here the excess is 0·6°. For the whole province the temperature of the week has been 1·5° below the normal.

The distribution of the rainfall has to a great extent been referred to previously. In Orissa the average fall has been 2·20 inches on 3·7 days, and this compared with the normal fall and expressed as a percentage, shows the fall in Orissa to have been 74 per cent. of the normal. In South-West Bengal rain has fallen on an average of 3·9 days, and the average amount has been 1·62 inches. This compared with the normal fall shows a percentage of 91. In East Bengal the average fall for the week has been 1·82 inches on 4·2 days, and this rainfall represents 79 per cent. of the normal. In North Bengal the rainfall at all stations has averaged 4·05 inches, falling on 4·4 days, and this is equal to 136 per cent. of the normal. In North Behar the average fall has equalled 4·16 inches, while the normal fall is only 2·03 inches. Rain has fallen on 4·3 days, while the usual number is only 2·4 days. The actual fall has therefore been 205 per cent. of the normal. Again, in South Behar the average rainfall has been even larger, amounting to 4·50 inches, while the normal quantity is only 1·49 inches. Rain has also fallen on 4·8 days, while the normal number is only 2·5 days. The actual rainfall in this division has therefore been 302 per cent. of the normal. Finally, in Chutia Nagpur the average rainfall for the week has been 3·13 inches on 5·6 days, and this compared with the usual fall shows that the actual has been 167 per cent. of the normal fall. The northern and western districts of the province have therefore received a fall equal to about 202 per cent. of the normal, while the eastern and southern divisions (including Orissa) have only received 81 per cent., and taking all the divisions as having an equal value in the calculation, the rainfall of the province for the week under review has been 151 per cent. of the normal.

The following table gives the summary of the temperature and rainfall data of each of the seven meteorological divisions of the province for the week ending Friday, the 17th of September 1886:—

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph, and from observations made at 6h, 10h, 16h and 22h.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

THE mortuary returns of the districts in Bengal (excluding Balasore town, from which no return has yet been received) for the month of July 1886 furnish the following results:—

1. That 93,399 persons died among a population of 56,143,619, representing a casualty-rate of 16·92 per 1,000 per annum, against 15·96 per 1,000 in the preceding month, and 18·72 per 1,000 during the corresponding month of the past year, indicating, as compared with the last-named period, a large decrease in mortality.

2. That the highest death-rates were reported to have occurred in the following districts:—

Districts.	Ratio per mille.	Districts.	Ratio per mille.
Darjiling	42·36	Puri	24·12
Julpaiguri ...	30·60	Patna	23·64
Shahabad	24·36

3. That the mortality from the principal diseases, as contrasted with the results of the corresponding month of 1885, stands as noted below:—

	Ratio per mille during—
	July 1886.	July 1885.
Cholera	·72	2·16
Small-pox	·04	·03
Fever	12·12	12·12
Bowel-complaints	·60	·84
Injury	·72	·72
Other causes	2·28	2·52

The only noticeable feature revealed by the above figures is that the severity of cholera had, on the whole, declined considerably.

4. That cholera and fever caused the greatest loss of life in the following districts, while the rest of the maladies mentioned above did not display conspicuous fatality anywhere excepting bowel complaints in Darjiling, where they caused the death of 11·04 per 1,000 of the population:—

* A special census of the Europeans in the Darjiling Municipality was recently taken, as the census of this section of the community, taken in February 1881, was not reliable owing to the Europeans being at a minimum in that month. The number of the natives remains as before, as it was not necessary to re-census them. The ratios have consequently been calculated on the revised population under all heads in the above table, except "Age," the ratios under which have been omitted, inasmuch as the returns of the Europeans, above alluded to, cannot be employed as a basis of calculation owing to the results of the census under this head not having been recorded under the authorized form of age classification.

P. NOLAN,

NOTIFICATION.

The 28th September 1886.—The following letter from the Secretary to the Trustees of the Gilchrist Educational Trust to the Secretary of State for India, dated the 19th June 1886, is published for general information.

P. NOLAN,
Offg. Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

Dated 4, The Sanctuary, Westminster Abbey, S.-W., 19th June 1886.

From—H. A. PAPPS, Esq., Secretary to the Trustees of the Gilchrist Educational Trust,

To—Her Majesty's Secretary of State for India.

I HAVE the honour to inform Your Lordship that at a recent meeting of the Gilchrist Trustees it was decided, in consequence of the continued small competition in India for the scholarship offered annually by the Trust to youths in India, and latterly to those also in Ceylon, to withdraw the same after the award which may be made on the result of the examination which will be held in January 1888; and I have to request that Your Lordship will cause this information to be conveyed, so far as concerns India, to the authorities there, in order to its publication.

I may inform Your Lordship that in the year 1868 two scholarships of £100 per annum each were instituted for India by the Gilchrist Trustees. In 1882 one scholarship of £150 per annum, to take effect after 1883, was substituted in the hope of its proving more attractive; and in 1883, in consequence of only one candidate appearing for the two still existing scholarships, the second was given to a native of Ceylon, and that Island was thenceforth included in the Indian Scholarship.

I have further to inform Your Lordship that it is not the desire of the Gilchrist Trustees to sever their connection with the educational advancement of India; but they wish, if possible, to find some mode of expending such portion of the Trust income as they may consider expedient for advancing on a more comprehensive scale the higher education of the native youths of India.

I have therefore to beg the favour of Your Lordship's causing it to be communicated to the authorities in India that the Trustees desire to invite the advice and co-operation of the heads of all higher educational institutions and of others who may be interested in the subject in India. They wish to obtain opinions as to whether a scholarship, tenable in England, can be made (if, say, of larger value, and offered perhaps every third year) an object of real emulation to the youths of India; or whether, having regard to the alleged difficulty arising from the Latin tongue (which forms an essential part of the Matriculation Examination of the University of London) not being generally taught in India, and to the objection arising from loss of caste to most natives of India from crossing the sea, and other considerations, it might not be better to substitute a scholarship or scholarships to be held at some place or places of higher education in India, and thenceforth to abandon the idea of bringing youths to England.

And the Trustees would further invite, from those who may favour the institution of scholarships to be held in India, suggestions as to the number, amount, and length of tenure of such scholarships, and at what institutions in India to be held, so as to attract the largest possible competition and to produce the most comprehensive and beneficial results in an educational point of view; also to point out the most suitable limits of age, the character of the competitive examination upon which the award of such scholarships should be made, on what conditions such scholarships should be held, and in what manner they could be kept under the supervision and control of the Gilchrist Trustees.

[Second Publication.]

NOTIFICATION.

The 20th September 1886.—It is hereby notified for general information that the Lieutenant-Governor is pleased to sanction the substitution of the following rules for numbers 190 and 191 of the rules framed under section 143 of Act I of 1882 (Inland Emigration) for places of labour in Chittagong and the Chittagong Hill Tracts, and published at pages 708-710 of Part I of the Calcutta Gazette of the 25th June 1884:—

190. Every place in a district, where labourers registered under the Act are employed, shall be visited by the Inspector of Labourers or the Assistant Inspector of Labourers at least once every year, and after each visit an inspection report, in form No. 9, shall be submitted to the Commissioner of Chittagong. The Inspector of Labourers or the Assistant Inspector of labourers shall also visit any estate liable to inspection under section 114 of the Act whenever he finds reasonable cause for doing so.

191. The Inspector of Labourers may also, if he thinks fit, inspect any lands and house which he is authorized to inspect under section 114 of the Act.

NOTIFICATION.

The 22nd September 1886.—In supersession of the notification, dated the 19th July 1877, published under the provisions of section 69 of the Indian Registration Act III of 1877, in the Calcutta Gazette of the 8th August 1877, the following revised rules under the Act have been approved by the Lieutenant-Governor, and are hereby published for general information. These rules will come into force in the Provinces under the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal on and from the date of their publication in the Gazette.

F. B. PEACOCK,

Chief Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

Rules framed under Section 69 of Act III of 1877 (the Indian Registration Act) and sanctioned by the Government of Bengal.

LEAVE AND APPOINTMENTS.

Changes of incumbency to be reported.

1. REGISTRARS and Sub-Registrars, on giving or receiving charge of their respective offices, shall report the fact to the Inspector-General in the form given in Rule 133 below.

In the case of Sub-Registrars, such reports shall be made through the District Registrar.

Temporary appointments to be reported.

2. Whenever a District Registrar makes a temporary appointment under section 12, he shall at once report the fact to the Inspector-General.

3. When a Sub-divisional Officer who is also ex-officio Sub-Registrar goes on tour, he should, if possible, avoid carrying the sub-registry office about with him, and should ordinarily make over charge to his Sub-Deputy Collector or to the Munsif. In the latter case, the assent of the Registrar and of the District Judge must first be obtained.

4. The report referred to in section 13 shall be submitted to Government by the Inspector-General at the end of each month.

5. Head-quarter Sub Registrars having been permanently placed in charge of district registry offices under section 7 of the Act, clause 2, temporary appointments under section 11 need only be reported when some person other than the Special Sub-Registrar is appointed to perform the duties of the Registrar during his absence.

Registrar may assume charge of the office of absent Sub-Registrar.

6. When a Sub-Registrar is absent, or his office is temporarily vacant, if the District Registrar is unable to appoint a suitable substitute, he may himself assume charge of the sub-registry office until the return of the Sub-Registrar or the appointment of a successor; and in such cases the extra or additional fee chargeable for registration by a Registrar under section 30 (a) of the Act and article K of the Table of Fees shall not be charged upon registrations effected during the absence of the Sub-Registrar.

Leave to Rural Sub-Registrars.

7. Rural Sub-Registrars are not subject to the uncovenanted leave rules. It is a condition of their appointment that they should reside at the head-quarters of their jurisdiction. Leave should, therefore, be seldom required, and should be given only in cases of urgent necessity. When the leave asked for does not exceed one month, the Registrar is competent to grant the application and appoint a substitute. All leave exceeding one month, and every extension of leave which will prolong the period of absence beyond one month, must receive the previous sanction of the Inspector-General. All leave granted to Rural Sub-Registrars shall be at once reported to the Inspector-General, and included by him in the monthly report submitted to Government under Rule 4.

8. The seals of District Registrars and Deputy Registrars made under section 12 of Act XVI of 1864 shall be taken to be seals of Registrars and Sub-Registrars under this Act. The seal shall always remain in the personal custody of the registering officer.

11. A power-of-attorney intended for use in another Province or Presidency, if authenticated in Bengali, Uriya, or Hindi by an officer unacquainted with English, may, if the parties desire it, be forwarded by him to the District Registrar for the endorsement on it of an English translation of the authentication.

When a document is presented under section 24 to a registering officer other than the Registrar, the registering officer shall, after examining it in regard to the above particulars, forward it at once to the Registrar, and if it is returned with an order for registration shall deal with it in the same manner as other documents presented within the time allowed for registration.

Proviso.—Provided that when a document is presented not duly stamped, the Registering Officer shall at once impound it under section 33 of the Indian Stamp Act I of 1879. But before forwarding it to the Collector, the Registering Officer shall record on it the endorsement prescribed by Rule 44, and if possible that under Rule 46. But the document shall not be copied or certified as registered under Rule 55 until it is returned to him with the Collector's certificate that the proper or deficient stamp duty has been paid.

(Sd.) I. J., Sub-Registrar of

When the document has been presented by the executant himself it will not be necessary to repeat in the second endorsement all the particulars recorded in the first endorsement regarding his father, &c., but the endorsement may be recorded thus—

"Execution is admitted by the above A. B., who is identified by E. F., son of G. H., of , by caste , by profession ."

"Agent for K. L., under a power-of-attorney (No. for 18) executed in the presence of the Sub-Registrar of ."

When the executant or his agent is personally known to the registering officer, the words "personally known to me" should be substituted for the identification clause.

When execution is admitted by the representative of a deceased person, the following words shall be added:—

When any payment of money or receipt of consideration is acknowledged, the following clause should be added :—

49. Whenever a registering officer administers an oath, he shall record the evidence of the witness examined on a separate sheet of paper, and a note of the fact shall be endorsed on the deed itself.

50. When a document is presented which has only been executed by some of the parties to it, the other executants may attend and execute the document and admit their execution without the payment of any further fee, so long as the certificate of registration under section 60 has not been endorsed thereon; but if the registration of the document has been completed, it must be presented afresh for registration and a second fee shall be payable.

Document to be copied after admission.

51. When all the persons executing a document, or their representatives, assigns, or agents, have appeared and admitted its execution, the document shall be copied in the register.

56. In order to establish the identity of persons appearing before him, the registering officer shall require the best testimony procurable. The testimony of persons known to himself, or of persons in a public position, such as zemindars, court officials, pleaders, &c., is better than that of unknown and obscure persons.

57. Registering officers should be very cautious in accepting the testimony and statements of so-called mukhtars, who are not enrolled as such, when appearing before them for the purpose of identifying persons.

58. It is not sufficient for the registering officer to record the statement of any witness the parties may choose to produce. He must satisfy himself that the witness is really acquainted with the person or persons whom he is produced to identify. The name of the person to be identified must be stated to the identifier, and he should be clearly and specifically asked whether that person is or is not the person that he professes himself to be.

DELAY IN PRESENTATION AND APPEARING.

59. Sections 23, 24, 25, 26 and 34.—Section 25 refers to documents executed out of British India, and is noticed below. With regard to all other documents the law requires (sections 23 and 34, clause 1), that both the presentation for registration and the appearence of the executant shall take place within four months from the date of execution. But in order to avoid hardship in certain cases, it also provides that a further period of four months shall be allowed, subject to a fine: (1) when a document cannot be presented within the first four months owing to urgent necessity or unavoidable accident (section 24); and (2) when after a document has been presented, the executants, owing also to urgent necessity or unavoidable accident, cannot appear, or cannot be made to appear, to admit execution (section 34, Proviso). In cases of urgent necessity or unavoidable accident, therefore, a delay of four months is allowed for presentation, and a similar delay for appearance; and both periods may be allowed for the same document, if an urgent necessity or an unavoidable accident occurs to prevent both the presentation of the document and the appearence of the executant in due time (sections 24 and 34, Proviso). The two periods are quite distinct, and are given for different purposes and at different stages in the procedure of registration. This distinction is important; and if it is borne in mind, the following instructions will be readily understood.

60. Sections 23 and 34.—When a document has been presented under section 23, the executant must appear to admit execution within four months from the date of execution, and, on his failure to do so, the sub-registrar must immediately after the expiration of the four months record a formal refusal to register, leaving it to the parties to appeal to the registrar under section 72 within 30 days, if they think proper. Notwithstanding the executant's failure to appear, however, the sub-registrar shall not record an order refusing registration if the person presenting the document has, before the expiration of four months from the date of execution, taken proceedings under section 36 to procure the appearance of the executant, but, in that case, he shall report the matter to the registrar for orders at the end of the four months. Both in this case and in the case of an appeal under section 72, the registrar shall not pass an order directing the sub-registrar to register the document, unless it is shown that the executant had not appeared owing to urgent necessity or unavoidable accident. In both cases also, if he passes such an order a fine must be paid under section 34, and the document may be registered at any time within eight months from the date of execution, as the order would be equivalent to the granting of a delay of four months for appearance. If, after this order, the executant does not appear within the eight months, the sub-registrar must record a formal refusal to register immediately after the expiration of that period. No document presented under section 23 can, under any circumstances, be kept pending after eight months, as the presentation having been made within the ordinary time only an additional four months can be granted for the appearance of the executant.

61. Sections 24 and 34.—A document presented, on payment of a fine, under section 24 is allowed four months in addition to the ordinary period, and the executant must, therefore, appear to admit execution within eight months from the date of execution. Should he fail to do so, the sub-registrar will record a formal refusal to register immediately after the expiration of the eight months, leaving it to the parties to appeal to the registrar under section 72, within 30 days, if they think proper. Notwithstanding the executant's failure to appear, however, the sub-registrar shall not record an order refusing registration, if the person presenting the document has, before the expiration of eight months from the date of execution, taken proceedings under section 36 to procure the appearance of the executant, but in that case, he shall report the matter for the orders of the registrar on the expiration of the eight months. Both in this case and in the case of an appeal under section 72, the registrar shall not pass an order directing the sub-registrar to register the document, unless it is shown that the executant has not appeared owing to urgent necessity or unavoidable accident. In both cases also, if he passes such an order, a fine must be imposed under section 34, in addition to the fine already imposed under section 24, and the document may be registered at any time before the expiration of one year from the date of execution, as the order would be equivalent to the granting of a delay of four months for appearance, in addition to the delay of four months for presentation already granted under section 24. If, after this order, the executant does not appear within the year, the sub-registrar must record an order refusing registration immediately on the expiration of that period. No document presented under section 24 can, under any circumstances, be kept pending beyond one year from the date of execution.

62. Sections 25 and 34.—The above instructions regarding documents presented under section 23 apply also to documents presented under section 25, with this exception only that the first period of four months and the extended period of eight months must be reckoned from the date of their arrival in British India, and not from the date of their execution. These documents can, under no circumstances, remain pending beyond eight months from the date of their arrival in British India

In the case of a document executed by some of the parties in and by others out of British India, the party presenting the document may proceed at his option under section 23 or section 24 instead of section 25, and if he does so the provisions of and the above instructions regarding those sections shall apply.

All pending documents must thus be refused registration after eight months from the date of execution, if presented under section 23; after twelve months, if presented under section 24, and after eight months from the date of arrival in India, if presented under section 25.

63. Section 26.—This section refers only to the time allowed for presentation. It therefore applies to the first period of four months from the date of execution allowed under section 23, to the second period of four months from the same date, which may be allowed on payment of a fine, under section 24, and to the period of four months after arrival in India allowed under section 25, but not to the additional period of four months which may be allowed for appearance, on payment of a fine, under section 34.

REFUSAL OF REGISTRATION.

Documents inadmissible on presentation.

64. If the deed has not been presented in the proper office [Rule 41 (1)], it shall be simply returned to the presenting party. In this case no entry need be made in Book II.

65. If the stamp is incorrect [Rule 41 (2)], the deed shall be impounded and forwarded to the Collector (section 33 of the Indian Stamp Act).

Note.—If the executant of a deed who is in doubt about the proper stamp consults a registering officer on the subject before formal presentation, the required information may be given to him without impounding the deed. But any deed formally presented with an insufficient stamp must be impounded.

66. If the provisions of Rule 41 (3) to (7) have not been complied with, or if the presenting party refuses to pay the proper fee, the deed must be returned at once to the presenting party with the endorsement—an entry being made at the same time in Book II.

Note.—Orders under this rule may be deferred at the request of the parties in order to enable them to comply with the requirements of the law. But in such cases an order of refusal shall be passed if the requirements of the law have not been complied with within the time allowed for presentation under sections 23, 24, 25, or 26 as the case may be.

67. A Sub-Registrar is not authorized by law to refuse to register a document because he is directly or indirectly interested in the transaction to which it relates; but he will always recommend the parties to present such a document at some other office. If the document relates to moveable property only, such other office may be the office of any Sub-Registrar under the same Local Government at which all the parties may desire the document to be registered. If the document relates to immoveable property, such other office will (unless the parties prefer to resort to the Registrar of Calcutta) be the office of the Registrar of the district. The latter officer will (as provided by the note to Article K of the Table of Fees) register such document without charging the usual extra fee. If the parties, after being recommended as above, insist on the Sub-Registrar registering a document in which he is interested, he must do so. In this case he will report the fact for the information of the Registrar to whom he is subordinate.

68. The circumstances under which a document should at once be refused on presentation are given in Rules 64-66.

Refusal of duly presented documents.

A document duly presented and accepted for the purpose of inquiry will not be admitted to registration under the following circumstances:—

(1) If the executant denies execution (Section 35.)
(2) If the executant fails to appear and admit execution. (Section 35.)
(3) If the person by whom the document purports to be executed be dead, and his representative or assign deny execution. (Section 35.)
(4) If the person purporting to have executed the document appear to be a minor, an idiot, or a lunatic. (Section 35.)
(5) If the registering officer be not satisfied of the identity of the person appearing before him and alleging that he executed the document. (Section 35.)
(6) If the registering officer be not satisfied as to the truth of the allegation that a person who executed the document is dead. (Section 35.)
(7) If the admitting agent's power-of-attorney has not been made in accordance with the Act, or if an alleged representative or assign has failed to prove his status. (Section 35.)

Provided that a document executed by several persons shall not be refused registration merely by reason of one or more of the executants denying execution, or appearing to be minors, idiots or lunatics, or being dead; but shall be registered in respect of any of the other parties who admit execution.

69. The reasons of refusal must be recorded by the registering officer with his own hand in Book II, and the particulars should be fully and clearly stated in each case. When one out of several executants declines to comply with the requirements of the law, his name should be given: when the registering officer is doubtful as to the identity of a party admitting execution, the grounds of his suspicion should be stated.

Reasons of refusal to be clearly stated.

REGISTER BOOKS.

70. The register copy of every document shall be compared with the original by some person other than the copyist, and both the copyist and the comparer shall append their signatures to the copy in the book. The registering officer shall

He shall also affix his initials to each page, and shall certify with his full signature each copy to be a true one, and shall date such certificate with his own hand. The copier in his signature shall use the word "copied," and the comparer the word "compared."

71. No erasures shall be made with a knife in any register book, but mistakes shall be corrected with the pen, and shall invariably be attested by the registering officer. All interlineations and corrections in the register books shall be made in red ink when the entries are in black ink, and in black ink when the entries are made in red ink.

72. The register books shall have two margins. On the left-hand margin shall be copied in red ink the value of the stamp, the certificate of admissibilty under Rule 42, and all the endorsements made in the office; in the centre shall be copied the deed itself in black ink, and the right-hand margin shall be left vacant for notes under section 20 and Rule 148. The stamp vendor's endorsement on each document shall be copied in red ink in the registers in the centre of the page below the copy of the document itself.

73. Several volumes of Register Books I and IV may, if necessary, be kept in use simultaneously, when the documents registered are so numerous as to make this course necessary. Register Books II, III, and V shall be continued from year to year until they are full, and in small offices where the number of documents registered is inconsiderable, the same volume of Register Books I and IV may also be used for two or more years.

Certificate of closure.

74. When a book is closed, a certificate to that effect shall be appended at the close of the written portion, and a certificate showing the number of pages written upon shall be entered on the first page

75. When, owing to omission or error in any document which has been registered, a supplementary document rectifying such mistake or omission is presented for registration, a note of such rectification shall be made in the margin of the register in which the original document is registered.

76. When a document occupies more than one sheet of paper, the seal and the signature of the registering officer shall be attached to every sheet at the time that the document is presented for registration.

COPIES, MEMORANDA, AND SALE CERTIFICATES.

77. In addition to the bound volumes of Register Book I, every Sub-Registrar shall keep two file-books, in one of which he will file the memoranda of registered documents which have been forwarded to his office, under sections 64, 65, and 66 of the Act, and in the other the copies of the sale certificates received by him from Civil Courts under section 107 of Act XII of 1879. Similarly, Registrars shall keep two separate file books—one for memoranda and one for copies under sections 65, 66, and 67 of the Act These papers shall be bound into a volume, or volumes, of convenient size at the end of the year. They shall be numbered consecutively, but in a series distinct from that of original registrations in Register Book I.

78. Copies shall be made on paper of the same size and description as that of the bound books. Memoranda shall be drawn up in the prescribed form.

79. Memoranda for sub-districts in another district shall be enclosed to the Registrar of that district, together with the copy required for his own office; but no memorandum need make mention of any property other than that which is situated in the sub-district to which the memorandum is to be sent.

80 When a copy of a document is sent to the Registrar of another district under sections 65-67 of the Act, a memorandum need not be sent to any Sub-Registrar whose office has been amalgamated with that of the Registrar of such district

81. The date on which copies and memoranda are despatched under the last rule shall be entered in the right-hand margin of the book in which the document has been copied.

Receipts for copies and memoranda.

82. When a memorandum or copy under sections 64-67 is transmitted from one office to another, it shall be accompanied by a receipt in the prescribed printed form, which shall at once be signed and returned by the receiving officer. If delay occurs in the return of the receipt, the despatching officer should send a reminder for it. All such receipts, when returned, should be filed separately.

Copies and translations of documents in a foreign language.

83. The copies and translations of documents required to be filed under sections 19 and 62 shall be made upon hand-laid medium paper, which may be sold to the public for this purpose at one anna per sheet. They shall be kept in a separate file, a reference being made to this in the right-hand margin of the page on which the translation is copied in the register book. The file shall be bound from time to time, when it contains a sufficient number of copies and translations to form a volume. The endorsements under Rules 42, 44, and 46 and the certificate under section 60 recorded on the original documents returned to the presentant shall be entered on the left-hand margin of the register into which the translation is copied, as provided in Rule 72.

88. Except in rural offices in the charge of Sub-Registrars unacquainted with English, all indexes shall be kept in English, and shall be prepared in accordance with the following rules.

Arrangement of entries.

89. English indexes shall be kept according to the letters of the alphabet, the entry under each letter being arranged according to the vowel of the first syllable if the word begins with a consonant, or according to the second vowel in the word if it begins with a vowel.

Transliteration.

90. If the documents to be indexed are written or executed in English, the names of the persons and places shall be spelt in the same way in which they are written in the documents. If the documents are written or executed in a vernacular language, the spelling shall be regulated according to Professor H. H. Wilson's system of transliteration as modified by the Syndicate of the Calcutta University.

91. In the case of Europeans the surname shall be taken as the index word. All native names shall be indexed according to their first letters as they stand in the deed. They will be transliterated in the same form in which they are written in the document. Thus in Bengali the same affix may be written, either Banurjya or Bandopadhyay, and whichever of these forms is used in the document will be retained and transliterated.

92. When a document is executed on behalf or in favour of Government, the index entry shall be made under G, Government, the name of the officer executing the document being entered in the column headed Addition; if on behalf or in favour of the Court of Wards, under W, Wards, Court of; and in the case of any other Court, under C. The names of companies shall be entered as they stand, the article only being omitted; thus Land Mortgage Bank of India, Limited, under L; Hanaes Steam Navigation Company, Limited, under G.

Two or more names in one document to be entered separately.

94. When there are two or more executants or claimants, their names shall be separately entered in Index I, III, or IV. Similarly, when two or more properties are conveyed by a single document, they shall be separately entered in Index II. But no Sub-Registrar need enter in his Index II any property which does not lie in his own sub-district.

95. Copies and memoranda of documents and sale certificates shall be indexed in the same way as original documents, but the entries relating to them shall be made in red ink.

In Index No. I, the names of the decree-holder, auction purchaser, and judgment-debtor shall be indexed from sale certificates, and the names of the parties from memoranda.

96. In rural offices in the charge of Sub-Registrars unacquainted with English, the indexes shall be kept in the vernacular. The rules given above apply to indexes in the vernacular. In all rural offices one copy of Indexes I, II, III, and IV shall be made for office use in a bound volume, and a duplicate of the entries made each month in Indexes I and II shall be submitted at its close to the Sub-Registrar at sub-divisional head-quarters. In the head-quarters sub-division, or where there are no sub-divisions, the duplicate will be sent direct to the Registrar for record.

97. The Sub-Registrar, on receiving vernacular Indexes I and II from Rural Sub-Registrars shall translate the same and incorporate them in his own indexes, noting the place of registration of each document. English indexes he shall directly incorporate in his own. He shall also at the end of each year, or at such shorter intervals as the Registrar shall direct, prepare on hand-laid medium paper a copy of the incorporated index for all offices in his sub-division, and submit it to the Registrar.

A copy of the entries in his Index III shall be sent to the Registrar by each Sub-Registrar at the end of every calendar year.

Duplicate indexes of amalgamated offices.

98. Where the office of a Registrar has been amalgamated with that of a Sub-Registrar, the duplicate copy of the incorporated indexes of the sudder sub-division shall be sent for safe custody to the office of the Registrar of Calcutta.

99. A printed table of fees in English and in the vernacular of the district shall be suspended in some conspicuous place in every registry office.

Fee-Book.

100. Columns 1 to 7 and 13 in the fee-book should be filled up as soon as any document is presented, except in the case of documents presented at the wrong office and returned immediately under Rule 64; columns 8 and 9 should be filled up as soon as a document is admitted or refused; columns 10 and 11, as soon as registration has been completed; column 12, as soon as the document has been delivered; and column 14, as soon as the required copies and memoranda have been despatched

101. Fees levied on documents presented for registration (whether registration has been deferred or not) shall not be retained in the personal custody of any registering officer for any time longer than may be absolutely necessary. They shall be dealt with in the same way as other public money, and be paid into the nearest treasury. From district and sub-divisional offices the fees shall be remitted to the treasury daily: from rural offices they shall be sent to the treasury twice monthly or at such shorter intervals as the Registrar shall direct. In all cases remittances to the treasury should be accompanied by the chalan book duly filled up in duplicate. One copy of each chalan will be then kept by the treasury officer and the other returned with his signature.

102. The receipts entered in the fee-book need not be entered in detail in the cash-book: their daily totals will be sufficient. But all other receipts, and all payments whatsoever, must be entered in full detail in the cash-book. All cash received must at once be entered either in the fee-book or in the cash-book. No money should under any circumstances be kept out of account. The cash-book should be balanced every day, and signed after careful examination by the registering officer.

Chalan books.
The receipts referred to in section 52.
Receipts referred to in Rule 82.
All correspondence, whether in English or in the vernacular, which is of an ordinary routine character, and which the Registrar considers may be destroyed.
Monthly returns, petitions, and other records and papers not otherwise specified.

114. No documents, books or papers whatever shall be destroyed at a sub-registry office without the previous sanction of the Inspector-General; and before documents are destroyed an endeavour must always be made to induce the presentants to take them back.

115. The register books and indexes of the general registry office under Act XVI of 1864 and Act XX of 1866 shall be preserved in the Calcutta registry office.

APPLICATIONS FOR SEARCH OR FOR COPIES.

116. All applications for search or for copies should be made to the registering officer himself. If an application is made in writing, the registering officer should initial it at once, giving the date. If an application is made vivâ voce, the registering officer should write on a slip of paper "Give copy," or some such brief order, adding his initials and date. All such applications and orders should be preserved on a separate file, the date on which a search has been made or copy completed being noted. Applications made through Sub-Registrars for copies from registers deposited in the district office must be in writing, and should be at once transmitted to the Registrar for compliance. No stamp is required on applications for searches or copies.

117. Registrars shall permit search and grant copies of entries in the registers kept up previous to the enactment of Act III of 1877 at the same rate of fees and to the same extent as in the case of registers under that Act.

118. A call for information from any court or revenue authority shall, if it necessitates search in the registers, be accompanied by the necessary fee for search. Officers of Government shall be permitted to inspect the registers without fee; but if the production of a register book in any court is required, it shall be produced by an officer of the registration establishment deputed for that purpose, who will be entitled to claim payment of his expenses like any other witness.

On the occasion of the annual enquiries prescribed by Government regarding the securities of ministerial officers, the usual fee must be paid when the search is made by clerks of the registration office, but no fee will be charged if the search is made by a clerk deputed by the officer making the enquiries.

INDENTS.

Indents for forms.

119. Before the 15th June of each year every Sub-Registrar shall submit to the Registrar to whom he is subordinate an indent in the prescribed form for all register books and other registration forms which will be required in his office during the following calendar year.

120. Every Registrar shall submit to the Inspector-General on or before the 1st July of each year an indent in triplicate in the prescribed form for all register books and other registration forms, including the forms prescribed by the Accountant-General, which will be required for his own office and for those of the Sub-Registrars subordinate to him during the twelve months from the 1st March to the 28th February following. When it is desired that the supply of register books, &c., should be forwarded to any sub-registry office direct instead of being sent through the office of the Registrar to whom the Sub-Registrar is subordinate, an intimation to that effect should accompany the Registrar's indent, and the indents of such Sub-Registrars should be submitted separately in triplicate with the Registrar's endorsement, instead of being embodied in the Registrar's indent. A supply of new register books required to be opened on the 1st January of each year should be included in this annual indent. The indents will be forwarded by the Inspector-General to the Superintendent of Stationery, after being checked and countersigned, by the 1st September.

121. When delay occurs in supplying register books and other registration forms, reminders should be addressed, not to the Inspector-General of Registration, but to the Superintendent of Stationery, the number of this office order being quoted. Reminders are useless without it.

122. Rural Sub-Registrars may be supplied with registration ink and other stationery from the district office at cost price, which should be ascertained from the Superintendent of Stationery. The hand-laid medium paper required for copies under sections 64 and 65 will be supplied to them gratis. They are also supplied with registers, index books, and printed forms free of charge.

123. The cost of sending the registers, &c., from the Stationery Office to the offices of Rural Sub-Registrars which are situated at a distance from Calcutta is borne by Government, and the charge is met from the provision made in the budget for the Registrar's office contingencies.

Indents for Stationery.

124. Before the 1st March in each year all District Registrars should send to the Inspector-General an indent in duplicate in the prescribed form for the stationery (including registration ink) which will be required for the registry offices in their districts during the next twelve months. Indents from Sub-Registrars should be submitted to the district office at least fifteen days before the 1st March. The Registrar's indent should include all ink and other stationery likely to be required by Rural Sub-Registrars under Rule 122 above. The indents will be forwarded by the Inspector-General to the Superintendent of Stationery, after check and countersignature, by the 1st April.

SALARY BILLS.

125. Registrars and Sub-Registrars who are paid by fixed salaries will draw their pay in Accountant-General's form No. 187, and the bill may be paid without the countersignature of superior authority.

126. Sub-Registrars who are wholly or partly remunerated by a commission on the number of documents will draw their commission at the end of each month, in Accountant-General's form No. 198, upon such documents only as shall have been completed during the month. Documents presented but still pending at the close of the month or refused registration shall be excluded; but if they are eventually registered, the fees previously credited in respect of them will be brought into the commission account for the month in which they are completed. Commission bills require the Registrar's countersignature before payment.

127. Commission to ex-officio Sub-Registrars will be drawn in Accountant-General's form No. 199 at 25 per cent. upon such fees only as shall have been actually paid into the treasury during the period for which the commission is drawn. In calculating commission, the fees levied on documents which are still pending at the close of the period, or which have been refused, shall be excluded; but if the documents are eventually registered, the fees previously credited in respect of them will be brought into the commission account of the period in which they are completed. No commission is payable on fines or on the extra fees for registration by a Registrar, or on the receipts for the sale of paper. If an officer of Government is appointed ex-officio Sub-Registrar during the temporary absence of a Special or a Rural Sub-Registrar, he may draw his commission at the end of each month on the bill countersigned by the Registrar. If the duties of the sub-registry office are ordinarily performed by an officer of Government ex-officio, the commission is payable half-yearly, and the bills require the countersignatures of both the Registrar and the Inspector-General of Registration. The commission is not payable at more than Rs. 100 per month, or Rs. 600 for each half-year.

128. When an officer is temporarily placed in charge of the office of a Special or an ex-officio Sub-Registrar during his absence on casual leave or on inspection duty in the interior of his district, he is not entitled to draw commission, but the commission for that period shall be retained by the Special or the ex-officio Sub-Registrar.

ESTABLISHMENT BILLS.

129. Salary bills for permanent establishments will be drawn in Accountant-General's form No. 188 by the head of the office. They do not require the countersignature of any higher authority.

130. Bills for extra establishments paid by salary may be drawn in the same way as those for fixed establishments in Accountant-General's form No. 201A, the orders sanctioning their entertainment being always quoted in the bill.

131. Whenever special establishments are entertained, whether they are paid by salary or at contract rates, a weekly progress statement must be submitted to the Inspector-General in printed form No. 42.

PERMANENT ADVANCE.

132. A permanent advance, not exceeding Rs. 200, will be allowed for each District Registrar on account of (1) contingencies, (2) service postage, and (3) refund of registration fees; but he need not draw the full advance of Rs. 200 where his ordinary expenses fall much below that amount. The Registrar will apportion the amount drawn according to the requirements of each subordinate office, care being taken that a sum is allowed sufficient to meet charges for refunds only; because in the case of rural offices contingent charges will be defrayed by the Rural Sub-Registrars, and in other sub-registry offices they should be met from the advance for general purposes received from the Accountant-General. In cases of the dismissal or death of Rural Sub-Registrars, the District Registrars will be held responsible for the amount of the advances made by him. At the close of each official year the District Registrar will send an acknowledgment of the entire advance to the Accountant General, Bengal, in A. G. B. form No. 177, of which a supply should be kept at hand.

133. The advance received by a Sub-Registrar will never be repaid into the treasury, but recouped from time to time, when necessary, by the submission to the Registrar of an abstract bill or bills supported by needful vouchers. On the first office day after the 25th March in each year the officer receiving the advance will forward an acknowledgment of its receipt to the District Registrar. Whenever there is a change of incumbency, the relieving officer shall also address to the Registrar an acknowledgment in the following form:—

"To the Registrar of

"We, the undersigned, have the honour to report that we have this day, at o'clock in the forenoon (or afternoon), respectively made over and received charge of the office of

"Relieved Officer."

"Relieving Officer."

"And I, the Relieving Officer, acknowledge to have received Rupees of the permanent advance of Rupees , and that the full amount of such advance is due from and to be accounted for by me.

"Dated the 188 .

"Relieving Officer."

In case of transfer of charge by a Registrar, a similar certificate shall be sent to the Accountant-General by the relieving officer.

134. Contingent charges are divided into three categories, viz.—

A.—Special contingencies.
B.—Countersigned contingencies.
C.—Contract contingencies.

135. Special contingencies are those which cannot be incurred without the sanction of the Inspector-General of Registration, or of Government previously obtained.

This class includes—

(2) Petty construction.
(4) Other exceptional contingencies of large amount and unusual character.

When any single item of this class involves an expenditure of more than Rs. 100, the sanction of Government must be obtained by the Inspector-General When the expenditure on a single item is Rs. 100 or less, the sanction of the Inspector-General will be sufficient.

136. Countersigned contingencies are those which are under the direct supervision of the Inspector General, and for which detailed bills are submitted to him for check and countersignature. They are—

(1) House allowances, and
(2) Purchase of tents

137. Contract contingencies are those for which a lump sum is allotted annually to each Registrar, within which he can spend without any further sanction At the beginning of each year the Inspector-General will distribute the allotment sanctioned by Government amongst the officers subordinate to him, keeping 10 per cent. of the total allotment for distribution towards the end of the year according to the requirements of the different districts. If any disbursing officer can make a saving from the amount allotted to him, he will be able to spend it on those items of extraordinary contingencies which would otherwise require to be separately sanctioned and accounted for, provided that the amount is drawn within the year for which the allotment was made.

138 Under contract contingencies are included the following charges:—

(2) Hot and cold weather charges.
(3) Purchase and repair of furniture.
(4) Office and ground rent.
(6) Petty repairs.
(8) Office expenses.
(9) Miscellaneous
(10) Municipal rates and cesses.
(11) All other items of expenditure not specially included under special or countersigned contingencies.

* Previous sanction of the Inspector-General is invariably necessary for the employment of extra writers at section rates.

139. A separate register will be kept for each of the three classes of contingencies, viz., one for special contingencies, one for countersigned contingencies, and one for contract contingencies; the first two in Accountant-General's form No. 181, and the other in form No. 181A. The entries in these registers will be made in accordance with rules 5 to 7, Chapter 5 of the Civil Account Code.

140. For each of these classes of contingencies separate bills must be drawn up (that is to say, the same bill may not contain contingent charges of more than one class), and the bill must be headed "Special Contingencies" or "Countersigned Contingencies," or "Contract Contingencies," as the case may be. Sub-Registrars must not in future draw any of these bills themselves without the countersignature of the Registrar, as the allotment for contract contingencies is for the whole district.

141. The money required for special and countersigned contingencies will be drawn from the treasury upon abstract bills in Accountant-General's form No. 192, and corresponding detailed bills will be drawn up at the end of the month to which all sub-vouchers, and in the case of special contingencies all sanctions, will be attached, and upon which the certificates prescribed in Chapter 5, paragraph 14 of the Civil Account Code, will be recorded.

142. In the case of special contingencies this monthly bill will always be sent to the Accountant-General direct. In the case of countersigned contingencies the monthly bill will be sent to the Inspector-General. To expedite the adjustment of these contingent charges, no abstract bill of contingencies will be paid at the treasury after the 15th of any month, unless it is accompanied by a certificate to the effect that the detailed contingent bill for the preceding month has been forwarded with all necessary vouchers to the Inspector-General.

143. Money to meet contract contingent charges will be drawn from the treasury upon bills in Accountant-General's form No. 192A. No sub-vouchers are required, and no details need be stated beyond the total figure opposite each of the printed headings. If any charge occurs which the printed headings do not provide for, the general nature of it may be entered in a similar heading in manuscript. The disbursing officer must be careful to bring forward from the last bill the correct amount of total expenditure to date, otherwise he may overrun his limit without perceiving it.

144. The disbursing officer is responsible for keeping and reproducing, when required, any sub-vouchers of his expenditure under contract contingencies, except those which he is authorized (Chapter 5, paragraph 14 of the Civil Account Code) to destroy.

145. A bill must always be drawn on or immediately before March 31st of each year for all expenditure under contract contingencies up to date. Money drawn from the treasury after that date comes out of the allotment of the next year, and it is contrary to the principle of the scheme that expenditure incurred in the current year should be in any way held over, after being incurred, to be paid out of the allowances of the next year. This final bill will produce a total which either exceeds, equals, or falls short of, the total allotment. For any excess the drawing officer is personally responsible, and unless he can procure exemption from the Government, the amount will be recovered from his personal allowances.

146. No charges for printing may be incurred without the special sanction of the Inspector-General. Such printed forms as are necessary will be printed at the Alipore Jail Press under the authority of the Inspector-General.

147. English stationery procurable from the Stationery Office may not be purchased in the local market, but charges for petty articles, such as sealing-ink, paste, thread, country-paper, &c., may be included in the monthly contingent bill.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Interlineations, &c.—section 20.

148. When the executant of any document appears personally he shall be required to attest all interlineations, &c. When he appears by agent, &c., the attestation of such agent, &c., shall be accepted, unless the interlineations, &c., are of an important character. A registering officer shall also be at liberty, on due cause being shown, to accept the attestation of an agent, &c., even in the case of important interlineations, &c.

149. When a document is presented or admitted more than four months after execution, the Registrar may either register it himself, in which case an extra fee under Article K of the table of fees as well as the penalty under Article O shall be levied, or he may direct its registration (on payment of the penalty under Article O) by any Sub-Registrar in whose office it could have been registered if presented within four months. In such cases the date on which the application was made to the Registrar shall be regarded as the date of presentation.

Documents presented or admitted after four months—sections 24 and 34.

150. Every Sub-Registrar shall sit daily during certain hours which shall be approved by the Registrar and made known to the public by a notice in some conspicuous place outside the office. The holidays to be observed in registration offices shall be those which are gazetted by the Government under section 25 of the Negotiable Instruments Act, XXVI of 1881, and those specified in the section itself.

Daily sittings; holidays—section 69.

151. Applications for the remission of fines under section 70 may be filed with the registering officer, but no such application shall be received until the fine has been paid. The application shall be forwarded to the Inspector-General with any remarks which the registering officer may wish to make.

Section 70.

152. Registering officers shall take care that their clerks have no dealings with the public, except in their presence. They shall themselves receive documents which are tendered for registration, and when they are registered, shall return them with their own hands.

153. The serial number of the last document completed and ready for return shall be daily exhibited in the prescribed printed form in some conspicuous place outside every office.

154. A catalogue in the prescribed form shall be kept up and permanently preserved in every registry office. On the occasion of every permanent change in the incumbency, the officer receiving charge should compare his books with the catalogue, and certify therein that he has found them correct.

Catalogue.

155. All official letters and covers sent by post from any sub-registry or district registry office must be prepaid by service labels. These labels will be supplied to Sub-Registrars (on application) by District Registrars, who will disallow unreasonable and excessive demands. A monthly statement of the distribution of service labels should be submitted by each District Registrar for the information of the Inspector-General. The cost of these labels will be met from the consolidated advance mentioned in Rule 132.

156 Bills, monthly returns, and regular indents should not be accompanied by covering letters The envelopes containing them should be marked "Returns." Letters and urgent indents should be separately sent.

157. A duplicate bill should never be submitted unless the original is lost in transit or otherwise, in which case a certificate should be attached to the effect that the bill has not been cashed at the treasury.

158. Travelling allowances of registering officers and their clerks will be drawn in Accountant-General's forms Nos. 189 and 191 respectively; and in both cases they must invariably be submitted to the Inspector-General for countersignature before payment, whatever may be the amount of the bill.

159. When ministerial officers of the department are deputed to give evidence or to produce records before any Court, application for the payment of their travelling expenses should be made to the Registrar of the district.

160. The security bonds of head-clerks should be examined at the close of each financial year, the result being reported to the Inspector-General.

CALCUTTA SMALL CAUSE COURT.

NOTICE.

In accordance with suggestions contained in a report to the High Court, signed by Mr. Justice Wilson and Mr. Justice Trevelyan, on their inspection of the Calcutta Small Cause Court, a new system will, on and after the 28*th October* 1886, be tried for the purpose of revising the list of cases which come daily into the court.

All summons cases will, on the returnable date of the summons, come before one only of the Judges, who will revise the whole list of the court for each day.

He will go through the list, enter "compromises," make decrees in cases in which the defendant does not appear, give fresh summonses in cases where the summons has not been served, grant necessary postponements, ascertain what causes are defended, and dispose of any cases which, in his judgment, can be disposed of summarily.

This would leave the whole time of the other Judges free for the trial of defended causes. The defended causes will be assigned by the Judge revising the list to the lists of the different Judges on the earliest possible days, and will be adjourned by him to those days. The Judge revising the list will have before him the list of each Judge for each day, so far as already filled up, and will arrange that there should always be a sufficient number of cases, say 25 or 30, on each Judge's list. Each of the other Judges will thus have each day his list of defended cases provided for him. When a second summons has been granted, the case will, on the new return day, come again before the Judge who revises the list for that day.

If under this system a Judge should at any time find his list becoming clogged, he will communicate with the revising Judge, and inform the latter that he must have a day or days left clear to enable him to pull up. Thus if on the first of the month a Judge finds that his lists were getting blocked, and that it will take a day to get them clear, he will tell the revising Judge that this is the case. The latter, when revising the lists of the Judge in question, may see that they are already filled, say up to the 9th: he will leave the 10th blank. The Judge who had found himself blocked, knowing that the 10th would be a clear day, will use his discretion: he will either go on as usual up to the 10th, trusting to clear himself on that day, or will adjourn a sufficient number of cases to that day to enable him to take the other cases as nearly as possible on their proper dates.

ADJOURNMENTS.

No "costs of the day" will be allowed on adjournments.

Nor will adjournments be allowed, even by consent, except upon good cause shown.

By order of the Court,

COURT OF SMALL CAUSES OF CALCUTTA,
The 28*th July* 1886.

C. Y. C. BOLST,
Clerk of the Court.

BYE-LAWS UNDER ACT III (B.C.) OF 1884 FOR CULNA MUNICIPALITY.

For regulating the conduct of business at meetings of the Commissioners.

1. Meetings shall be convened by the Chairman or Vice-Chairman, by notice to be addressed to each Commissioner, at least three days before the day of the meeting.

2. In the event of the Chairman or Vice-Chairman determining to call a special meeting, not less than one clear day's notice shall be given to the Commissioners of the day fixed for such special meeting.

3. Every notice convening a meeting shall be accompained by a list of the business signed by the Chairman or Vice-Chairman to be brought forward at such meeting.

4. Any Commissioner wishing to bring forward any business shall give notice of such intention in writing to the Chairman a week before the meeting, so as to admit of its being included in the list of business to be laid before such meeting.

5. No resolution, or any business or proposition not included in the list of business, shall be considered final unless ratified at a subsequent meeting.

6. At all ordinary meetings, the proceedings shall be commenced by the minutes of the last ordinary or special meeting being read with a view to ascertain if the resolutions passed at such meeting have been faithfully and accurately recorded in the words used by the mover of such resolution, or if amendments thereto shall have been passed, in the words used by the mover of such duly passed amendments.

7. In the event of any Commissioner being of opinion that any such resolution has not been accurately recorded, it shall be competent to such Commissioner to state his opinion to that effect, and thereupon the Chairman shall decide whether or no such resolution has been accurately recorded, by reference to the original draft of such resolution written and signed by the mover, and if he finds the minute to be inaccurate, he shall then and there make the necessary correction in the minute book, provided that no discussion as to the propriety or otherwise of such resolution shall be allowed.

8. The order in which several subjects shall be discussed at a meeting shall be determined by the order in which they are mentioned in the Chairman's list.

9. Every proposition made shall be written out by the proposer and signed by him.

10. Every proposition shall be seconded by one Commissioner, who shall also sign the draft proposition written out by the proposer.

11. The Commissioner who first addresses the meeting shall be entitled to be heard first, and should more than one Commissioner address the meeting, the right of precedence shall be determined by the President.

12. Any Commissioner may propose an amendment to a proposition, to the effect that certain words in the proposition originally made be omitted therefrom, that certain words be substituted, or that certain words be added thereto, provided that such amendment be proposed when the subject is being discussed and the original proposition is still before the meeting.

13. On the discussion being concluded, in the event of several amendments having been proposed, the President shall put the last amendment to the vote first: then he shall put the second amendment and then the first, and if all the amendments be lost the original proposition shall be put to the vote.

14. No Commissioner shall be allowed to vote by proxy when he is unable to attend a meeting or under any circumstances.

15. On a proposition being made and seconded, the President shall put the same to the vote.

16. All votes shall be put by the President first in the affirmative and then in the negative form.

17. Any Commissioner may decline to vote on any subject without assigning his reason from abstaining from voting.

18. Any Commissioner may make a proposition that a subject under consideration be postponed, or that the consideration of it be adjourned either to a fixed date or sine die.

20. A subject once finally disposed of by a resolution duly passed at a meeting shall not be re-opened at any subsequent meeting unless at least three-fourths of the total number of Commissioners present at a meeting of which due notice has been given consent that such subject shall be re-opened and reconsidered; provided that resolutions adjourning the consideration of a subject may be reconsidered at any meeting after the usual notice.

Partial application of this Act to Act III, 1880.

10. In the Cantonments Act, 1880, the word "soldier" shall not include a warrant-officer but shall otherwise have the meaning assigned to it by clause (13) of section 3 of this Act. III of 1880.

Application of this Act and Act I, 1868, to Regulations under 33 Vic., c. 3, s. 1.

11. This Act and the General Clauses Act, 1868, shall apply to all Regulations which may receive the assent of the Governor-General under the Statute 33 Victoria, chapter 3, section 1, after the commencement of this Act. I of 1868.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THIS Bill is supplementary to the General Clauses Act, 1868, and is designed, as stated in the preamble, to further shorten the language used in Acts of the Governor-General in Council.

2. In section 3 there is nothing which calls for remark. The definitions in the section will materially shorten the defining clauses of Acts to be hereafter passed.

3. Section 4 is a repetition of a clause very generally employed by the Council of the Governor-General with the object of enabling the executive authorities, in the interval between the passing of an Act and its coming into force, to make preparations for bringing the Act into full operation as soon as it is legally possible to do so.

4. The English rule that a power given to the Crown by statute, having been once exercised, is exhausted and cannot be exercised again, has been applied by Indian Courts to powers conferred by the Indian legislature on the Governor-General in Council and Local Governments. Section 5 of the Bill is intended to remove the inconvenience resulting from the application of that rule.

5. Provisions in the terms of section 6 have been inserted in no fewer than eighteen Acts during the last three or four years and form part of several pending Bills. Their object is to give persons likely to be affected by statutory rules an opportunity, before the rules are made, of making objections and suggestions with respect to any matter which it is proposed to insert in them.

6. Section 7 is taken from the English Municipal Corporations Act, 1882, and is much needed in this country in the case of acts and proceedings to which the Indian Limitation Act, 1877, does not apply.

7. Section 8 is a repetition of a section which is very frequently inserted in Acts of the Governor-General in Council.

8. Clause (l) of section 3 of the General Clauses Act, 1868, has always been construed by the legislature as though the words "wholly or partially" were inserted before the word "repealed." It is proposed by section 9 of the Bill to insert those words in the clause and to require them to be deemed to have been there since the Act of 1868 was passed.

9. Difficulty has been experienced by some Courts in interpreting the word "soldier" in section 14 of the Cantonments Act, III of 1880. With the judgment of the High Court for the North-Western Provinces at I. L. R. 3 All. 214, to the effect that a warrant-officer is not a soldier within that section, the military authorities are content; but they consider it desirable that the word should have a wider meaning than has recently been assigned to it in Oudh, where the Judicial Commissioner has held a private in an European regiment, employed as a telegraph-signaller, not to be a soldier within the meaning of the section.

10. Section 11 of the Bill applies the General Clauses Act, 1868, and the proposed General Clauses Act, 1886, to Regulations to be hereafter made under the Statute 33 Vic., chapter 3.

The 1st September, 1886.

C. P. ILBERT.

S. HARVEY JAMES,
Offg. Secretary to the Government of India.

XIV of 1882.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE object of this Bill is to correct certain minor defects in the Code of Civil Procedure which have been brought to the notice of the Government of India during the four years which have elapsed since the Code was passed, and to amend that portion of the Indian Limitation Act, 1877, which relates to Chapter XXI of the Code.

The several amendments which it is proposed to make in the Code are noticed in the following remarks in the order in which they occur in the Bill:—

Section 3.—The second paragraph of section 8 of the Code, which, as the second paragraph of section 8 of Act X of 1877, was repealed by the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act, XV of 1882, was unintentionally reproduced in Act XIV of 1882. Its place has been taken by section 23 and the second schedule of the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act.

Section 4.—The Explanation which it is proposed to add to section 17 of the Code is suggested by the cases reported at I. L. R. 4 All. 423 and 5 All. 277.

Section 5.—The addition proposed by this section to be made to section 27 of the Code has been suggested by Mr. Justice Plowden of the Punjab Chief Court with reference to the remark of Pontifex J. at I. L. R. 6 Cal. 376.

Section 6.—In proposing to amend section 58 of the Code in the manner set forth in this section, the Government of India has followed the almost unanimous advice of the authorities whom it consulted in its letter Nos. 22-27, dated the 5th January, 1886.

Section 7.—In April, 1882, the Governor-General in Council published a resolution directing that postage-charges on all processes, notices and such other documents as are issued from any Court, and are required to be transmitted by post, should in future be paid by means of service postage-stamps without any additional charge being levied from the parties at whose instance the documents are issued. This resolution practically superseded the section of the Code which it is now proposed to repeal.

Section 8.—The addition to section 137 of the Code has been suggested by Bábú Brajendra Coomar Seal, the District Judge of Bankoora, on the ground of the difficulty which occurs in obtaining affidavits where the applicant under the section is a parddnashin lady.

Section 9.—The object of the amendments proposed to be made in section 141 of the Code is to remove the inconvenience caused to both public officers and private persons by the detention of their records in Civil Courts. The detention of the records of a village-accountant may bring his work to a standstill, and the Hon'ble Mr. Gibbon stated to the Select Committee on the Bengal Tenancy Bill that the inconvenience is quite as great in the case of private as of public records.

Section 10.—The addition to section 216 removes the doubt expressed in the case reported at I. L. R. 7 All. 284.

Section 11.—The circumstances which have suggested clause (a) of the proposed proviso to section 245 of the Code have been described in the Statement of Objects and Reasons of the Debtors Bill. If the clause becomes part of the Code, the Courts will be competent to require the property of a judgment-debtor to be proceeded against before proceedings are taken against his person.

Section 12.—As clause (h) of section 266 is at present drawn, half the salary of a public officer or railway servant in receipt of a monthly salary of twenty-one rupees may be attached. This was not the intention of the legislature.

The primary object of the additional clause (m) which it is proposed to insert in the section is to empower the Council of the Governor of Bombay to proceed with a Bill to declare and amend the law relating to toda girás allowances.

Section 13.—This section has been introduced at the suggestion of the Advocate General of Bombay, its object being to abolish, as regards the seizure of moveable property, the privilege conferred on debtors by the fourth resolution in Semayne's case (Smith's Leading Cases, Vol. I). At present that privilege operates mainly to enable debtors to avoid or delay payment of their just debts.

Section 14.—The necessity for the first of the proposed additions to section 320 of the Code is shown by the Full Bench judgment of the High Court for the North-Western Provinces at I. L. R. 5 All. 314. As regards the second addition, it appears to the Government of India that, if the Collector is to act effectively under section 320 and the following sections of the Code, he ought to be subject to the control of the Civil Court only to the extent expressly provided by the Code, being as to the rest subject only to the control of the higher revenue-authorities.

Section 15.—The addition to section 341 has been proposed by the High Court and Government of Madras with reference to cases which have recently occurred in Southern India. In one of these cases the debtor committed to prison was suffering from leprosy in an advanced form, and in the other the prisoner was suffering from illness so serious as in the opinion of the medical officer to render it necessary that he should be immediately released from confinement.

Section 16.—The object of sub-sections (1) to (7) is to assimilate practice under Chapter XX of the Code to that to be prescribed by the proposed Indian Bankruptcy Act.

Sub-section (8) is designed to extend the jurisdiction of subordinate Courts in matters of insolvency. Most cases under Chapter XX are of little importance and may properly be disposed of by munsifs. Where any considerable sum is involved, the District Judge, who will have concurrent jurisdiction, can transfer the case to his own Court.

Sections 17 and 37.—The amendments proposed to be made in Chapter XXI of the Code and in the second schedule to the Indian Limitation Act, 1877, have their origin in the complaints of the hardship caused by the rules of limitation required by that Chapter and schedule to be observed in the substitution of legal representatives in the place of deceased parties to suits and appeals. With respect to these portions of the Code and Limitation Act, Mr. Rattigan, the Government Advocate of the Panjab, by whom the form of the amendments has been suggested, has recorded the following remarks :—

"Considerable hardship has been experienced in the Panjab in the working of those sections of the Civil Procedure Code which deal with the procedure to be followed in the case of the death of a plaintiff or defendant. It is of course perfectly correct and desirable that in the case of the death of one of the litigant parties, where the right to sue or be sued still survives, his legal representatives should be brought on the record, for it is clear that without such a process the suit could not validly proceed. But the hardship consists in requiring the legal representatives to apply for the above purpose within a comparatively short period after the death of the deceased plaintiff or defendant. In the Panjab it frequently happens in land-suits that fifty or a hundred persons are obliged, owing to community of interests, to sue or be sued in the one suit. Now, when such a suit comes up eventually to the Chief Court, a date for hearing is fixed which is generally not less than a year, and, at present, owing to the state of the work in the Court, is not unfrequently eighteen months from the date of filing the appeal. Within this period it often happens that one or more of the litigants is or are carried off by death from disease or violence; the representatives of the deceased, or the appellants, being ignorant agriculturists and not knowing the requirements of the law, take no action to put the representatives on the record and thus, when the appeal finally comes on for hearing, a pleader on the opposite side takes the objection that no application has been made within the prescribed period, and, this being ascertained to be the fact, the appeal abates, and the unfortunate appellants find themselves deprived of all remedy simply in consequence of a harsh limitation law of which they had no knowledge. It is true that sections 368 and 371 allow the Court to extend the period if the plaintiff (or appellant-plaintiff) addnces sufficient cause for not making the required application within the prescribed period. But in nine cases out of ten of the kind I refer to the only cause assignable is ignorance of the requirements of the law—and this of course cannot be deemed to be 'sufficient' within the meaning of the section. So that the law as it stands at present works considerable hardship, and the hardship is irremediable.

"The question therefore arises, whether it is really necessary to prescribe a hard-and-fast period of limitation within which alone an application to put the legal representatives of a deceased plaintiff or defendant on the record can be entertained.

"For my own part I cannot see that there is any such necessity. If I remember rightly, the rules framed under the English Judicature Acts do not prescribe a period for such applications, and I do not see why the Indian law should do so. It would surely be sufficient to require the legal representatives of a deceased plaintiff or defendant, where the right to sue or be sued survived, to be put on the record; and to leave it to the Court to direct this to be done within such time, and upon such terms as to costs or otherwise, as it thinks fit."

Sub-section (6) of section 15 of the Bill is intended to cure the defect noticed at I. L. R. 9 Bom. 56.

Section 18.—This section, which would restore the rule of the Code of 1859, has been proposed by Mr. Justice Straight.

Section 19.—The amendment made in section 386 of the Code by Act XII of 1879, whereby commissions to examine witnesses are required to be issued to a Court or a pleader of a High Court, has caused much inconvenience. In remote parts of the country High Court pleaders do not exist, and in few parts have Judges leisure to close their Courts and travel considerable distances for the purpose of taking the evidence of persons who cannot appear before them. Moreover, in some Provinces the Government maintains a staff of officials among whose duties is the execution of these commissions.

Section 20.—The addition which it is proposed to make to section 396 has been suggested by a gentleman of long standing at the Bombay bar. It is based on the Partition Act, 1868 (31 & 32 Vic., c. 40).

Section 21.—A Government Pleader does not exist in every Court.

Section 22.—It has been doubted whether the Government is empowered by section 432 to appoint a person generally to prosecute and defend all suits which it may from time to time be necessary to prosecute or defend on behalf of a Prince or Chief. It is obviously inconvenient that the Government should be compelled to make a special appointment in the case of each particular suit.

Sections 23 and 25.—The object of these sections is (a) to define more precisely, with reference to the definition of "Government" in section 2 of the Code, by whom consent to the institution of a suit against a Sovereign Prince, ruling Chief, ambassador or envoy may be given; (b) to make the provisions of section 433 more elastic as regards the mode of giving the consent, the cases in which the consent may be given, and the Courts to which the consent may apply; and (c) to prescribe the name in which a Prince or Chief may sue and is to be sued. To effect this last object it is proposed that a Prince or Chief may sue and shall ordinarily be sued in the name of his State.

Section 24.—Section 434 of the Code, under which execution may be had of a decree in a suit between British subjects, is out of place in a chapter relating to Suits by Aliens and by or against Foreign and Native Rulers. The section may conveniently take the place of section 651, which was repealed in March last by Act X of 1886.

Section 26.—The amendments proposed by this section to be made in Chapter XXXI of the Code are those referred to in paragraph 4 of the Statement of Objects and Reasons of the Guardians and Wards Bill. The additions to sections 443 and 446 confer on a guardian who has been appointed, or whose title has been declared, by a Civil Court, Court of Wards or other competent authority, a preferential right to be appointed next friend or guardian for the suit. The amendment of section 461 gives effect to a suggestion by Sir Charles Turner, late Chief Justice of Madras, that, when a Court makes over property to a next friend or guardian for the suit who is not a duly constituted guardian of the property of the minor, it should be required to give such directions as, having regard to the nature of the property, may sufficiently protect it from waste and secure its proper application. Section 464, as amended, saves all local laws relating to suits by or against minors or by or against lunatics or other persons of unsound mind.

Section 27.—There are two reported cases, I. L. R. 8 Cal. 32, and I. L. R. 7 All. 178, with respect to the meaning to be assigned to the words "direct interest" in section 539. It appears that the authority for the insertion of the words "having a direct interest in the trust" is In the matter of the Masters, Governors and Trustees of the Bedford Charity (2 Swanst. 470). There certain Jews, some being residents of Bedford and others being members of Dutch and German Synagogues in London, sought to establish the title of Jews to the benefit of the Bedford Charity. It was contended that under Sir Samuel Romilly's Act (52 Geo. III, c. 101), on which section 539 of the Code of Civil Procedure is based, any two or more persons might be petitioners, and therefore the Jews of the London Synagogues, who, though not interested, considered it their duty to support the claims of those of their own persuasion, might be petitioners. With respect to that contention, Lord Eldon, admitting that every person possessing the character of an inhabitant of Bedford and describing himself as an object of the charity was entitled to apply to the Court, asked how he could notice the members of the London Synagogues. "Under Sir Samuel Romilly's Act," he observed, * * * "no person can petition who has not a direct interest in the charity. The Act indeed, authorises 'any two or more persons' to present a petition, but I conceive that those words must be understood to mean persons having an interest. * * * Those who are interested in the fund, provided Sir Samuel Romilly's Act, or the Bedford Charity Act, apply to this case, namely, persons residing in Bedford, are entitled to the summary interference of the Court, but I know not on what ground these gentlemen residing in London can appear as petitioners."

The contention which Lord Eldon overruled was that any one, though he had no interest whatever, might petition. He did, no doubt, remark that "no person can petition who has not a direct interest," but he immediately qualified that remark by adding that the words of the Act "must be understood to mean persons having an interest." The case cannot, therefore, it seems, be taken as an authority for the proposition that the interest of the petitioner must be direct. On the contrary, it may be inferred from the case that an indirect interest would have been deemed sufficient; for, when, in support of the contention that the words "any persons" comprehend persons who may not have an interest, the counsel for the petitioners pointed out that, in the instance of charities for relief of the blind and the poor, it had been the practice to receive the petition of the minister of the parish, Lord Eldon observed that "the petition of the minister of the parish is received, because the poor may be burdensome to him."

It may be doubted whether the case justified the insertion of the word "direct" in the Code, where it assumes a peculiar pointedness and must have some definite meaning assigned to it; and after consultation with the High Courts it has been decided to propose the removal of the word.

Sections 28 and 31.—It is proposed, in accordance with the advice of the great majority of the authorities consulted by the Government of India in its letter of the 5th January last, to declare ex parte decrees to be appealable.

Section 29.—Section 561 has been so amended as to require the objection to be filed in the Appellate Court, and notice of the filing thereof to be given to the appellant, and to admit of the objection being filed and the notice given at any time not less than seven days before the actual date of hearing; and, on the suggestion of Bábú Brajendra Coomar Seal, it applies to the objection and notice under the provisions of section 5 of the Indian Limitation Act, 1877, applicable to an appeal.

Sections 30 and 32.—The amendments proposed to be made by these sections merely correct typographical errors in sections 568 and 588 of the Code.

Section 33.—Section 599, and the portion of section 601 which it is proposed to repeal, were repealed by Act XV of 1877 and were unintentionally reproduced in the Code of 1882.

Section 34.—This section removes a doubt which has been expressed in the cases noted on the margin of the section with respect to the construction to be placed on the word "made" in section 624.

Section 35.—Sub-section (1) of this section has been suggested by the following remarks of the Hon'ble Judges of the High Court at Fort William in their Registrar's reply to the letter of the Government of India of the 5th January last :—

"I am further to request attention to another point in this section (648) which, though not referred to in your letter, seems to the Judges to call for notice. The section gives absolute power to a Court to cause the arrest through another Court of a person summoned as a witness, and so to cause him to be sent under arrest to the Court issuing the process. The Court to which the warrant is sent has no power of hearing the person arrested or of dealing with any question except the giving of security by him. It seems to the Judges that this is a power far too great to be entrusted at any rate to the subordinate Courts in the Mufassal."

Sub-section (2) has been transferred to this Bill from the Provincial Small Cause Courts Bill, and will be of general application instead of being applicable to Courts of Small Causes only. With respect to the necessity for this addition to section 648, the District Judge of the 24-Parganas writes as follows :—

"Under section 648 I would also beg to point out that a warrant for the arrest of a person residing within the limits of the original jurisdiction must be executed through the High Court. This is very inconvenient to small suitors, and, in a case which occurred in my Court only a few weeks ago, a defendant preferred abandoning all attempts to get a recusant witness into Court to undergoing the trouble and expense of having a warrant of arrest served through the Original Side of the High Court. I would suggest that the procedure prescribed by section 86 should be made applicable to section 648, and that warrants of arrest which are to be served within the original jurisdiction should be executed by the Small Cause Court."

Section 36.—This section is designed to remove a doubt as to the extent of the powers of unchartered High Courts to make rules on matters not strictly connected with procedure.

REPORT ON THE WORKING OF THE LICENSED WAREHOUSE ACT FOR 1885-86.

No. 92MM, dated Calcutta, the 8th September 1886.

From—A. SMITH, ESQ., Commissioner of the Presidency Division,
To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Municipal Department.

UNDER the provisions of section 30 of the Licensed Warehouses and Fire-Brigade Act IV (B.C.) of 1883, I have the honour to submit the annual report on the working of the above Act in the Suburbs of Calcutta during the year 1885-86, together with a statement showing the warehouses in the Suburbs for which licenses were granted.

2. There were altogether 117 warehouses in the list, viz., 11 hydraulic presses, 6 jute mills, 2 cotton mills, 2 hand-screws, and 96 warehouses for the storage of jute, against 104, viz., 11 hydraulic presses, 6 jute mills, 2 cotton mills, 2 hand-screws, and 83 jute warehouses in the preceding year, showing an increase of 13 in the number of jute warehouses. Of the 117 warehouses in the list, 90, including the new ones, were licensed during the year, against 74 in the previous year, and of the rest, 26 were wholly or partially left unoccupied, and one was converted into a dwelling-house. Particulars of the warehouses left unoccupied or occupied by parties other than those named in the previous year's statement and other necessary informations are noted in the remark column of the statement.

3. The total amount of license-fees realized during the year was Rs. 16,753-10-6, against Rs. 15,767-10-6 in the previous year, showing an increase of Rs. 986, which is due to the increase in the number of warehouses.

4. A statement showing in debtor and creditor form the income and expenditure of the fund, as called for by paragraph 4 of Government letter No. 723, dated the 20th August 1881, is herewith appended.

5. I also annex another statement showing the number of fires which occurred in the Suburbs during the year under review, the localities where they broke out, their cause, and the extent of damage, &c., done, and other necessary particulars. The total number of fires, was 16 against 12 in the previous year, and the loss about Rs. 11,000 and Rs. 83,000 respectively.

Fire from an earthen pot in supposed to have ignited the mat-wall of the thatched hut of Bhunee Bewah. Constable Chody Singh, G 16 while at duty at the thanna gate at 12 30 P M saw fire in the direction of Tantee Bagan and gave the alarm Inspector Sanyal at once sent information to the Pulwer's Bridge station and proceeded with Sergeant Radah Singh and some constables, and on reaching the spot saw Shaik Gungie's golpatta house burning. In a few seconds, before any measures could be adopted two adjoining tiled houses caught fire, and fanned by a strong breeze, the fire extended from house to house. Police came from adjoining Sections G Town K Town and N Town, and E. and F, Suburbs, with Inspectors Jacob, Sellety, and the fire brigade at about 1-15 P.M. A little after a hand engine from Pulwer's Bridge Pumping station came Both the engines were set to work, and the fire was got under at 3 P.M. The approximate amount of damage done is about Rs 8,000. The fire originated from the room of one Bhoomy Bewah, aged sixty-five years, who is a tenant in the golpatta house of Shaik Gunnee Dr Sardar, Suburban Police and Kussibun Bibee, saw smoke coming out from the room and the roof on fire. At this time Bhoomey Bewah was not at home. She is a coolly and goes out to work every day at 9 A M, and so this day, as usual, Bhoomey Bewah says that after cooking last night she put water on the fire to extinguish it, but was unable to say whether it was properly extinguished when she left it. Explanation.—Summary.—The normal means of air pressure and temperature are the arithmetical averages or means of the readings during the same period for the past ten years. The humidity of the atmosphere is expressed as a percentage, saturated air being represented by 100. A clear sky is denoted by 0 and an overcast sky by 10. The numbers are the numerical means or averages of the rainfall in that district determined from the returns sent in by the sub-divisional stations for the period in question during the past stations in the district sending in returns divided by the number of stations. A rainy day is one on which at least hundredth of an inch fell.

for the week ending Friday, the 24th of September 1886.

CALCUTTA, the 28th September 1886.

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL FOR THE WEEK ENDING FRIDAY, THE 24TH OF SEPTEMBER 1886.

At the commencement of the week under review, a small depression began to form in the north-west angle of the Bay. Its existence was shown on the morning of the 18th by the wind directions and amounts at the coast stations, all of which indicated feeble cyclonic circulation about a centre probably near the Sandheads. The barometer was rising at this time at all stations excepting those in the immediate neighbourhood of the centre. Moderately heavy and fairly general rain continued to fall over the province (except in North Behar and East Bengal), apparently due to the wave of moisture brought up into the province during the previous week. Some heavy local rainfalls were registered on the 18th, amongst which the following were the most remarkable:—Jungipore (Moorshedabad district) 6·28 inches, Naogaon (Rajshahye district) 5 26 inches, Sibgunj (Maldah district) 4 5 inches, Burhi (Hazaribagh district) 4·14 inches, and Silli (Palamow district) 4 9 inches.

Barometric pressure increased steadily on the 19th and 20th, and until the morning of the 21st. The rise was least in Behar, Chutia Nagpur, and Orissa. The small depression off the Balasore Coast appears to have remained almost stationary during this period. The air motion in Orissa and South Bengal continued to indicate feeble cyclonic circulation about a centre approximately in the same position as on the 18th. Little or no intensification appears to have occurred, probably due to the fact that the supplies of aqueous vapour feeding it were not large. Rain in diminishing amounts fell during this period in the Province. Orissa, South-West and North Bengal, South Behar and Chutia Nagpur obtained fairly general rain, whilst East Bengal and North Behar received light local showers.

The barometric depression crossed the Orissa Coast between False Point and Balasore on the evening of the 21st This occasioned a slight fall of the barometer over the greater part of the Province, and gave moderate general rain to Orissa and South-West Bengal on the 21st and 22nd. The rainfall was nowhere excessive, thus showing that the wave of moisture brought up by it was much feebler and smaller than that of the preceding week.

The depression advanced to the west and north-west, and was on the borders of Chutia Nagpur and Orissa on the morning of the 22nd, and in South Behar on the 23rd. Pressure began to increase generally on the 24th, on which day the depression in South Behar also commenced to fill up. Feeble cyclonic circulation continued to exist in South Behar and Chutia Nagpur for two or three days longer. Orissa, Chutia Nagpur, and South-West Bengal obtained light showers during the remainder of the week South Behar received moderate rain on the 22nd and 23rd, and light showers on the 24th. A considerable portion of the moisture current appears to have been carried into North Bengal in consequence of the abnormal atmospheric conditions of that area on the 22nd and 23rd, and several large rainfalls were registered on the mornings of the 23rd and 24th. The most excessive were—Baloorghat (Dinagepore district) on the 24th 6·25 inches, Mohadebpore (Dinagepore district) on the 23rd 5·4 inches, Alipore (Julpigoree district) on the 23rd 4·48 inches, and Gajol (Maldah district) on the 23rd 4·23 inches.

With the disappearance of the depression, fine weather with light north-easterly winds (such as usually occur at the end of September) set in over the province.

The average pressure of the week varies little from the normal average. The Darjeeling average indicates a considerable deficiency over the adjacent districts of Northern Bengal, whilst the Durbhunga and Patna observations show that an abnormal excess of pressure obtains at present in North Behar. The relation between these features and the rainfall of the week is self-evident.

Temperature in the rains depends mainly upon the rainfall. During the past week it was considerably below the average (2°) in Chutia Nagpur and Behar, slightly below it in Orissa and South-West Bengal, and above it in East Bengal. The deficiency of temperature averages 1° for the whole province.

The distribution of the rainfall has been already indicated. Orissa, South-West Bengal, North Bengal, and South Behar have each received amounts in excess of their normal rainfall of the week, whilst in East Bengal and North Behar the rainfall of the week was in defect.

Orissa received an average fall of 3·00 inches, or ·49 inch in excess of the normal average. In South-West Bengal the rainfall of the week averaged 2·71 inches, an excess of ·60 inch. The average number of rainy days was 5, being 2 in excess of the normal number. North Bengal received an average of 4·71 inches, the average number of rainy days being 4·9, as contrasted with the normal averages 3·12 inches and 3·2 days, thus showing an excess of 1·59 inches in the rainfall. East Bengal received an average of only 1·73 inches, the normal being 3·02 inches. There was thus a deficiency of 1·29 inches, or 57 per cent., of the normal rainfall of the week. The average rainfall of Chutia Nagpore was 3 38 inches, the normal being 1·88 inches, or 80 per cent in excess of the normal amount, and of South Behar 3·58 inches, which was 2·15 inches in excess and more than double the normal rainfall of the week. North Behar obtained an average of 1·91 inches, as contrasted with a normal average of 2 inches. The average number of rainy days in North Behar was 3·5, whilst the normal number is 2·4.

Hence the week was characterized by rainfall considerably in excess in all parts of the province, excepting East Bengal and North Behar, and more especially in South Behar, by unusually high humidity, large amount of cloud, low temperature, and by an excessive number of rainy days.

The following table gives the summary of the temperature and rainfall data of each of the seven meteorological divisions for the week ending Friday, the 24th of September :—

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph, and from observations made at 6h, 10h, 16h and 22h.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No. 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

MEMORANDUM.

THE principal Municipalities in Bengal returned, during the week ending 11th September 1886, the birth and death rates of 20·5 and 28·1 per 1,000 of population respectively, as opposed to 22·3 and 29·4 per 1,000, respectively, in the preceding week ending 4th September, indicating a retrogression in the registration of both events.

2. These events were recorded at the highest rates in the following Municipalities :—

showing that, in comparison with the results of the preceding week, there was a sensible abatement of mortality from fever, and only fractional differences in that from other diseases.

4. Of the diseases specified above, while bowel-complaints and injury were noticeably fatal only in the Gya town, viz, at the rates of 12·3 and 4·8 per 1,000 of population, respectively, and small-pox proved nowhere severe, cholera, fever, and the maladies returned under the head of "Other causes" caused the highest mortality in the following Municipalities :—

* A special census of the Europeans in the Darjiling Municipality was recently taken, as the census of this section of the community, taken in February 1881, was not reliable owing to the Europeans being at a minimum in that month. The number of the natives remains as before, as it was not necessary to re-census them. The ratios have consequently been calculated on the revised population under all heads in the above table, except "Age," the ratios under which have been omitted, inasmuch as the census of the Europeans, above alluded to, cannot be employed as a basis of calculation owing to the results of the census under this head not having been recorded under the authorized form of age classification.
